TURKEY ACCEPTS RUSSIA'S DEMANDS

And Begs That the Russian Squadron Be Withdrawn.

Alarm in Berlin Over the Situation—Dispatch of Italian Vessels Not a Counter Demonstration.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 20.—Tewfik Pasha, the Foreign Minister, yesterday visited the Russian Ambassador, notified him that the Turkish Government accepted all the Russian demands, and begged that the Russian squadron be withdrawn from Turkish waters.

The Russian squadron arrived off Indiada, on the eastern coast of European Turkey, this afternoon.

The news of the arrival of the Russian squadron is spreading, notwithstanding the continued suppression of all telegrams and announcements on the subject. The general opinion of the Europeans here is that the time has arrived for vigorous intervention and the abandonment of all semi-measures, which are regarded as the cause of the present rising.

BERLIN, Aug. 20.—The German Foreign Office appears to be as much puzzled by Russia's purpose in moving a squadron of her Black Sea fleet to the Turkish coast as a non-political layman would be. The Foreign Office officials have made no inquiry of Russia on this point, as such a question might be construed as suspecting Russia's designs, and Russia, The Associated Press is informed, has sent no explanation or assurance on the subject, none being considered necessary.

The rising in Macedonia is regarded here as entering upon a darker stage. The insurrection is taking on proportions unexpected by the German diplomatic agents. Bulgarian feeling, excited by the murders and tortures across the border, is less restainable by the Bulgarian Government, and the movements of the Russian and Italian fleets add to the nervousness on the Bourse and among traders and bankers owning Turkish railroad shares or having commercial interests in Turkey.

The German Government maintains its passive attitude, with the desire to join the other powers in any communication to Turkey or Bulgaria designed to prevent war and tending to confine the disturbance to an insurrection which Turkey must suppress.

ROME, Aug. 20.—In official circles it is declared that the fact that Italian war vessels are preparing to start for Turkish waters must not be interpreted as a counter-demonstration to the movement of the Russian squadron toward the Bosphorus. It is affirmed, in an official way, that Russia and Austria with regard to the enforcement of reforms in the European provinces of Turkey.

POWERS LIKELY TO INTERVENE.

New and Radical Plan for Settling the Macedonian Trouble Under Consideration.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 20.—The Independance Belge says it states that the powers have arrived at an understanding regarding the steps to be taken to suppress the revolt and apply reforms in Macedonia.

According to this unconfirmed report, Russia will act on the sea, occupying the Dardanelles and the Bosphorus; Austria will act on land, and Italy will exercise surveillance over Albania.

After peace is restored the powers are to withdraw and restore to Turkey her full sovereignty.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—The Associated Press learns that important negotiations are in progress between the powers which promise to result in the early adoption of a new plan for the settlement of the Macedonian trouble. A Foreign Office official said yesterday afternoon:

"It is somewhat premature to say that a definite agreement on the subject has already been reached, as stated by the Independance Belge, but notes are being exchanged in this direction."

In other quarters it was intimated that the scheme was partially on the lines referred to by the Belgian newspaper.

There is no doubt that an agreement of some kind has been reached, as at the beginning of the negotiations the powers started with the general purpose of co-operating, and this harmony has continued.

The Admiralty yesterday denied the Daily Chronicle's statement that Admiral Borbville, commanding the British Mediterranean Squadron, now off the coast of Portugal, had received urgent orders immediately to dispatch some of his ships to the vicinity of Salonika. The officials informed The Associated Press that nothing had been done regarding the dispatch of a British force to Turkish waters, and it was not expected that such action would be taken in view of Great Britain's announced support of the policy of Russia and Austria, unless a radical change in the situation occurred.

The British Foreign Office has been notified of the orders issued to the Italian squadron, which appear to have been communicated to all the capitals, and which, the Italian diplomats say, do not mean that Italy intends to withdraw in the slightest degree from co-operation with the other powers.

While there is a general belief that the United States will not intervene in Turkey, interest is displayed in diplomatic circles in the question whether the authorities at Washington will order American warships to Turkish waters. The United States European Squadron will leave Villefranche to-morrow for the purpose of engaging in evolutionary drills preparatory to taking part in the manoeuvres in the Caribbean Sea. It is not believed in American official circles here that if it is decided to have the United States represented in Turkish waters more than a gunboat will be sent, and it is pointed out that the Machias would be available for this purpose.

ALLEGED TURKISH ATROCITIES.

Indiscriminate Slaughter at Krushevo—Town of Vasiliko in Flames—Insurgents Advancing on Drama.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES Special Cablegram.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—A revolutionary circular quoted by The Times's correspondent at Sofia says that twelve more Christian villages have been burned by the Turks. The women and children saved themselves by flight to the mountains. One woman, failing to escape from the village of Smileno, was murdered, and a woman and a child in the village of Serulia met the same fate.

The circular states that women and children elsewhere have been assaulted and slaughtered by the Turks.

By The Associated Press.

SOFIA, Aug. 20.—Fugitive families from Krushevo who have arrived at Monastir give terrible details of the situation which prevailed in Krushevo after its capture by the Turks. The latter, they say, acted like fiends, running from house to house and street to street, slaughtering everybody they met. The town is now a heap of ruins.

A dispatch from Burgas to the Autonomye says the town of Vasiliko, thirty miles south of Burgas, and the villages of Urunkoi and Poturnakovo are in flames, and the sound of cannon can plainly be heard from the Bulgarian frontier.

The Greek Patriarch asked the Bulgarian Exarch to address a circular note to the Bulgarian ministers and school teachers in Macedonia urging them to remain quiet and not to fight against the Sultan. The Exarch replied that he was sorry he was not in a position to serve the Sultan. As all the Bulgarian ministers and teachers had been cast into prison and the churches and schools were closed his voice could not be heard there—only the sound of guns was audible.

The Austrian and Russian Consuls at Uskub requested the Valiyy to court-martial the officers and soldiers who fired on and killed several Bulgarian workmen who were repairing the railroad line near Uskub. The Valiyy declined all responsibility in the matter and said he would refer the Consuls' request to Hilmi Pasha, the Inspector-General of Macedonia.

The Bulgarian Agent at Salonika says arrivals from the centres of disturbance assert that not a single Turkish village has been burned.

VIENNA, Aug. 20.—Dispatches from Salonika say an important fight occurred in the mountains of Pasoder on Aug. 18. The village of Erminseco was burned by the Turks and many insurgents were killed.

SALONIKA, Aug. 20.—Skirmishing is reported to be proceeding at Vodena and Ostrovo. Small bands are operating in the Doiran district.

A large band has crossed the frontier and is advancing on Drama, the commandant of which town has urgently requested reinforcements.

It is reported that the Government has authorized the formation of a corps of Christian Albanian volunteers.

Although a week ago the Macedonian Revolutionary Committee notified the foreign Consuls at Monastir that it was no longer able to prevent reprisals, as the result of the Turkish atrocities, Boris Sarafof, the Macedonian leader, has now addressed a circular to the Turkish notables on behalf of the Committee announcing that the insurgents will not attack the peaceful Turkish population except in self-defense.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 20.—According to the Turkish official reports, the strongest positions of the insurgents are at Krushevo, Meriboro, and Florina. Contrary to previous reports, it is now stated officially that Krushevo is still occupied by the insurgents.

The headquarters of the revolutionists are in the Perderi Mountains, in the vicinity of Monastir.

Women and children are not molested by the insurgents, who have destroyed only fortified dwellings occupied by rich Turks. It is not denied that they kill all Bulgarians and Greeks found acting as Turkish spies, but the strictest orders have been issued not to interfere with women or children.

CORRUPT TURKISH OFFICIALS.

Accused People of Being Agitators Unless They Sold Cattle for Next to Nothing.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES Special Cablegram.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—The Constantinople correspondent of The Times says that a commission sent to Kirkkilisse to inquire in regard to the general emigration from that district to Bulgaria found that over 3,000 inhabitants had gone, escaping arrest at the frontier by heavy bribes.

All the officials concerned are being brought to trial, as well as the functionaries and others in Kirkkilisse who organized a regular trade of accusing people of being agitators unless they sold cattle for next to nothing.

PAN-SLAVIST LEADER'S TOUR.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES Special Cablegram.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—The Vienna correspondent of The Times says the President of the famous Russian Pan-Slavist organization, the "Slav Benevolent Association," has just passed through Vienna en route for Russia, after a visit to the Balkans. It is understood that he endeavored to promote a league among the Balkan Slavs with the object of hastening Macedonian independence under Russian protection.

Nothing is known in regard to the success of his efforts.

Turkish Cavalry Needs Horses.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES Special Cablegram.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—The Constantinople correspondent of The Times says the Turkish cavalry is badly in need of horses.

TWO BOYS BURNED TO DEATH.

SAGINAW, Mich., Aug. 20.—James Budd and Eugene Moss, aged sixteen years, were burned to death here in an electric light tower at eight o'clock to-night. It has been the practice of boys playing in that neighborhood to climb the tower, which is 125 feet high, to the platform at the top. To-night the Moss boy, while at the top, touched a wire carrying a heavy current and instantly his body was a mass of flames.

Young Budd had started to descend, but returned to rescue his companion. The moment he touched the wire he, too, became enveloped in flames. Both were instantly killed. The electric current on the west side of the city was turned off while linemen were engaged in securing the bodies of the boys, a process that required two hours' work.

Saturday, August 22d, during which period ferry will run to and from Pennsylvania R. R. terminal, foot Desbrosses St., N. R., on the same time as at present from Franklin Street.—Adv.

WILSON TALKS ON COTTON

Secretary Says Gambling Is Injuring the Industry.

Other Nations Seeking to be Independent of America—Output Here Not Increasing.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Secretary Wilson has made an interesting statement in regard to the immediate effect on the cotton manufacturing industry, and the probable result on the growth of cotton in this country of the wild speculation by which the cost of that staple has been unduly advanced.

"The shortage of raw cotton to the manufacturers," said he, "is not due to the shortage in the crop, but to the fact that the corner in cotton has put the price of the raw material to a point where the manufacturer cannot profitably use it. The producer of cotton has not profited by the present high prices. The cotton is practically out of his hands, but some of the profit is going to the manufacturers who sold their supply of raw material.

"With regard to the idleness of the cotton mills, I see no prospect for the relief of the workingmen who are thrown out of employment until the corner bursts, and the price of raw cotton comes down. The new crop will soon begin to come in. The corner can continue, however, if the gamblers have enough money to buy in the new crop."

With regard to the closing of mills in the East, in consequence of the high price of cotton, the Secretary said:

"The gamblers have cornered the cotton market and put up the price so high that manufacturers cannot use raw cotton. At existing prices there is no profit to them. The price of manufactured goods cannot be manipulated as can be the price of raw cotton. The manufacturer found it more profitable to sell his cotton to the gamblers. Mills were closed down because of there being no raw material left, and in some instances cotton which was sold to European manufacturers has been brought back to this country and used in the gambling operations."

"Infinite mischief is being done to the manufacturing industry and the cotton growing industry of the United States by this gambling movement. Most European nations which manufacture cotton and own lands in outlying provinces where cotton might be grown are anxious to become independent of our gamblers, and so are organizing and holding out inducements for the development of the cotton raising industry. The British, the French, the Germans, the Belgians and others own lands in Africa, and they have been for some time organizing to produce cotton.

"They know that we are training scientists here to study the cotton plant, and they have been anxious to get our high class experts to organize for them. The United States sent $5,000,000 to Egypt last year to pay for long staple Egyptian cotton. The Department of Agriculture is trying to grow as good a staple at home by hybridizing and creating new varieties.

"The Secretary of Agriculture for Egypt paid me a visit not long ago and said that with the irrigation of enlarged areas along the Nile Valley growing out of the completion of the great dam the production of Egypt would be greatly increased. They pay 15 cents a day for labor there. There is a breed of cattle which does all the work and stands the heat better than mules. Those European nations owning territory in Africa have been coming to our Southern States and arranging to secure seed, labor to cultivate it, and organize the natives.

"Twelve cent cotton in the United States is a great encouragement to all those people to increase their output. The nations in Asia are doing everything in increasing the cotton production to become independent of us. There has been a feeling for some time that it would be wiser for us to grow more cotton, but gambling operations this Summer had the immediate effect of stimulating efforts for increased production.

"We have not been increasing our output for several years. The annual yield has been around ten million bales for a number of years past. Texas promised for a while great things in the way of increasing the supply, but the Mexican cotton boll weevil has done great damage. The department has been studying the subject and Congress has given money to establish object lesson stations to see if cotton can be grown notwithstanding the appearance of the weevil. It is estimated that the Texas crop was one-half million bales short last year on account of the ravages of the weevil. Louisiana has stamped out the plague. If it extends to the Eastern cotton-growing States the effect will be disastrous.

"Every effort is being made by the Department of Agriculture to help the cotton growers of the Southern States to a better system of agriculture through which a larger yield of cotton can be had, but increased output, necessarily will come slowly."

MISS BROWN'S BODY FOUND.

Young Woman Wore a Diamond Ring Supposed to Have Been Given Her by George Evans, Drowned With Her.

Special to The New York Times.

GLOVERSVILLE, N. Y., Aug. 20.—The body of Miss Florence Brown, who was drowned with her companion, George Evans, a Harvard student, while the two were out rowing on Canada Lake one day last week, was recovered to-day.

The theory that there was an attachment between the two, although young Evans was engaged to another young lady, was lent color to by the finding on Miss Brown of a diamond ring, which, it is believed, was given to her by Evans. This ring was attached to a ribbon, which the young girl wore around her neck. The ring was this afternoon returned to Mrs. Evans, mother of the young man.

Miss Brown's body was found by James Morrey and William Mosher, lakemen, about 200 feet from the west shore of Canada Lake, and about 300 feet southwest of the point where Evans's body was discovered. It came up head first after the men had rowed over the spot, and was towed to shore with a rope, afterward being placed in a boat and taken to a shed at the head of the lake, where it was viewed by a Coroner's jury. It will be sent to New York.

VICTIM'S FATHER HALTS MOB.

Lynching of Negro in Georgia Averted by Man Whose Daughter Had Been Attacked.

Special to The New York Times.

AUSTELL, Ga., Aug. 20.—The spectacle of a father pleading for the life of a negro who had attacked his daughter was witnessed near here this afternoon. Early this morning Miss Emma Strickland, daughter of a wealthy planter, was met by Will Slatton, a young negro.

Miss Strickland was returning from a neighbor's when she was confronted by the man. The girl made a desperate fight, but in vain. Staggering home, she told her pitiful story, and soon a posse was in pursuit of her assailant.

Late this afternoon the negro was captured and taken to the Strickland home, where he was identified by his victim. The mob cried: "Lynch him!" and a rope was put about the negro's neck.

Just as he was being strung up the father of Miss Strickland urged the mob to let the law take its course. He said that he feared the lynching of the negro in front of his home might dethrone his daughter's reason, and he begged that the wind then be turned over to the Sheriff. The mob yielded to Mr. Strickland's plea, and the negro was surrendered to the Sheriff, who carried his prisoner to jail.

Miss Strickland is in a pitiable condition, and will probably die.

GUN LOOSE ON THE GRESHAM.

An Eighteen-Hundred-Pound Hotchkiss Breaks Fastenings on the Cutter and Causes Alarm.

On board the revenue cutter Gresham, which was the flagship of the patrol fleet off Sandy Hook yesterday, much excitement was caused by the breaking loose of an 1,800-pound Hotchkiss gun.

The big gun was taken on board at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, and it will be taken to Baltimore, where the Gresham is to sail after the close of the races. The gun was put on board on wheels.

As the boat began to get the full benefit of the great swell which disturbed the ocean all day long, the Hotchkiss began to edge about in the drumroom. When the cutter began to roll and dive the gun acted in a most alarming manner.

Presently it crashed against the door of the room with a clang heard throughout the ship. Then it brought up against it again, still harder.

Fearing serious results, the commander ordered the gun taken from its set of wheels and placed flat with blocks at either end. But it retained that position for a short time only.

Another crash was heard below, and then another. Those on board looked at each other with dismay, and speculated on the probability of the gun being driven through the side of the vessel. Quick action was necessary to avert disaster. Some of the sailors, under the lead of Assistant Gunner Turner, went to examine the unruly monster, and discovered that it had battered down a steel door and was at liberty.

The boat was rolling to such an extent that for a time it was dangerous to go near enough to attempt to lasso the gun. Finally a noose was fashioned and an end of the gun was caught. It the ntook but a few minutes to secure it, and so lash it with ropes attached to the inside of the compartment and to the railing that its future motions were very much restricted to the great relief of all on board.

CANAL OPPONENTS ORGANIZE.

Decide That an Aggressive Campaign in Cities of the State Will Be Necessary.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, Aug. 20.—The committee appointed at the recent Rochester Convention held in opposition to the proposed thousand-ton barge canal met in this city today and formed plans for carrying on the work. Representatives were present from nearly every county in the State. The name formally adopted was the State Committee in Opposition to the Barge Canal Scheme.

The first matter considered was that of organizing. This was done with the election of the following officers: Chairman—James Wood of Westchester; Secretary—John I. Platt of Dutchess; Treasurer—Fred S. Stevens of Attica. In addition to these officers the Executive Committee includes E. B. Norris of Wayne, Robert Spitzer of Kings, H. P. Dunlap of Jefferson, and Lewis P. Moss of Monroe.

Practically the only county not represented in the committee is Onondaga. Assemblyman Martin L. Cadin had been named, but he declined to act, not being in sympathy with the movement.

Most of the business of the conference was done in executive session. The position of every class of voters in the State was discussed, and reports were received from the various counties in response to the roll-call. It was decided that the only question in the rural districts would be that of getting the voters out on election day, but that in the cities it would be necessary to carry on an aggressive campaign.

Robert Spitzer of Kings County stated that the strongest sentiment in New York in favor of the enlarged canal was on the part of those who expected to be directly benefited by the appropriation.

The committee expressed the opinion that the labor vote would favor the appropriation in view of the work which would be furnished. The opinion was also strongly voiced that the working people of the State as a whole would oppose the spending of the money as proposed.

Detailed arrangements for the campaign were left to the Executive Committee to decide. This committee will meet soon to take action.

TWO WOMEN RESCUED.

Policemen Save Lives of Bathers at Rockaway Beach and Far Rockaway.

Policemen rescued two women from drowning yesterday—one at Far Rockaway, the other at Rockaway Beach.

Miss Sadie Yates of Inwood, L. I., who is twenty-seven years old, acts as cashier at the Hotel Kuloff, Far Rockaway. She was swimming about in the inlet which opens from the ocean into Jamaica Bay when the strong tide carried her outward. She is a good swimmer, but her strength proved unequal to the task of breasting the swift tide and she was soon among the breakers.

Policeman Turstall saw Miss Yate's plight and rode into the water. Springing from his horse he swam to the woman's assistance. When he reached her, she had lost consciousness. Another man, who afterward declined to give his name, hastened to Turstall's assistance. Together they bore Miss Yate's to a bathing house where physicians resuscitated her after an hour's work.

At the same time the policeman was rescuing Miss Yate's, anther officer, Dennis Gleason, was saving Mrs. Anne Tuxley from drowning in the ocean off Wainright & Smith's pavilion at Rockaway Beach.

Mrs. Tuxley resides at 377 Bright Street, Jersey City. She was drawn beneath the surface by a strong undertow and was carried seaward. Gleason at the risk of his life plunged in and carried the woman out. She warmly thanked her rescuer, who was nearly drawn under while returning with her.

ELEVATED PILLAR CHARGED.

Defective Insulation Knocks Down Two Boys and Causes Shower of Sparks.

Through a defect in the insulation of an electric light wire that feeds an arc light at One Hundred and Fifty-fifth Street and Third Avenue last night, the residents of that section were treated to an electrical display that threatened to tie up the elevated road and the surface trolley cars throughout the Bronx. Electricians sent by the North Side Electrical Company at the request of the police of the Morrisania Station, finally ended it.

The wire ran under the north-bound track of the elevated structure. In some way the insulation broke about 8 o'clock and the wire touched the iron pipe in which it was incased. Instantly the arc light went out, and in its place the live wire, scattering a shower of molten iron, illuminated the street.

Within a foot of the illumination was the feed wire of the surface line as it crosses Third Avenue, and two feet above it was the third rail of the elevated.

The escaping electricity soon charged the whole elevated structure at this point, a fact soon discovered by a couple of small boys, who came in contact with the pillars at this point, and were knocked off their feet.

The light was gradually moving toward the surface trolley feed wire when the electricians arrived.

After it was all over one of the electricians remarked that if the wire had reached the feed wire of the surface trolley line and the third rail of the elevated it would have allowed all of the power in both lines a vent to escape and tied up all the lines in the Bronx.

YACHT RACE FAILS FOR LACK OF WIND

Reliance Rounds Outer Mark Two Miles Ahead of Shamrock III.

In the Faint Breezes Defender Consistently Outpoints Challenger.

Result Significant, as Turning to Windward in Light Winds is Challenger's Best Quality — Heavy Rain Squall Drenches Spectators.

To Reliance and Shamrock III., to the owners of the two great yachts, and to the many thousands who journeyed down the bay to see them race, yesterday was a day of disappointment. The yachtsmen were disappointed because there was not enough wind to drive the yachts around the thirty-mile course within the five-and-one-half-hour limit; the spectators were disheartened because there was more than enough rain thoroughly to drench them. Of all, however, who watched the race, the most disappointed and discouraged must have been Sir Thomas Lipton, who saw his latest challenger, in which he has high hopes to win back the America's Cup, outpointed in windward work and beaten to the outer mark by two miles in distance and about ten minutes in time.

Reliance rounded the outer mark at 3:37:20, and 7 minutes and 27 seconds later, homeward bound, passed Shamrock III. headed for the mark. As there was then no possibility of finishing the race the challenger less than one minute later went up into the wind in the wake of the defender and headed for home after her. The Shamrock III., by declining to continue to the outer mark, thus unofficially declared the race off. Both yachts then took in their club topsails and signaled for their tugs. Officially the race was declared off at 4 o'clock, and at 4:30 a gun was fired from the committee boat to signify that the five and a half hour limit had expired.

WHERE RELIANCE EXCELLED.

Although the lightness and fickleness of the wind was such as to rob the race of any value as a basis for determining the real ability of the two yachts, the contest was interesting because the conditions were just those in which it has been admitted that the challenger would do her best work. The wind was light, never, except in a few puffs, exceeding five miles an hour, and the sea was comparatively smooth, but with a heavy ground swell—the best opportunity that Shamrock III. could have had to demonstrate her ability to point high in a light breeze. The course was fifteen miles south-southwest, or from Sandy Hook Lightship to a point about three miles east of Asbury Park, and return. For three-quarters of the distance the direction of the wind held true, then it went a little to the west, and later shifted around to northwest, with intermittent soft spots that made comparisons futile and destroyed all chances of finishing the race.

The race plainly demonstrated, however, that in the light breeze and smooth sea, such as prevailed yesterday, the defender can decisively outpoint the challenger. Wringe, naturally, was able to draw away from Barr when he gave Shamrock a good full. But while he was thus able to foot faster, he got further and further to leeward. When he had done this for two long tacks and went about at 1:50 o'clock the gain that Reliance had made by continually pointing higher became evident, for she was a good half-mile ahead. The wind then died away almost entirely, but Reliance managed to catch little puffs, which kept her sails from flapping, and a half hour later Shamrock was in a flat calm and a mile astern. After that the wind shifted, and it was all a matter of luck, and, as seems proverbial in yacht races, the leading boat got it all. So when Reliance rounded the outer mark, she was two miles ahead.

The sails of both boats, apparently, were all that could be desired. Both carried their biggest club topsails ever lower sails, and at the start Shamrock III. carried a larger baby jib topsail than Reliance, but the defender's did the better work. When they dipped down into the long rolls there was not much to choose between them. Reliance's flat bow threw more spray, but she seemed to be bothered less than Shamrock III., which rolled more. The challenger entered the water more easily, but carried a bigger drag behind her, and neither yacht sailed as cleanly as Columbia has always done. In the one or two slight puffs Shamrock III. showed herself to be much more tender than Reliance, as she heeled over appreciably, while the defender was quite unaffected.

Even as a spectacle also the race was a distinct failure. An imposing crowd of spectators was there to see it, and on the finest yachts in the country were the best-known men in politics, finance, and the professions, and the best-known names of men and women in society. J. Pierpont Morgan watched the race from his steam yacht Corsair, Col. John Jacob Astor had a large party of guests on board his big yacht Nourmahal, W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., made his first appearance in these waters with his new turbine yacht Tarantula, and Cornelius Vanderbilt, recently returned from abroad, was there in the North Star. Admiral Winfield Scott Schley and Gen "Joe" Wheeler were on the yachts of friends.

CABINET OFFICERS OUT.

The flag of the Secretary of the Treasury, a rare sight afloat, flew from the revenue cutter Onondaga, where Mr. Shaw entertained a party of friends. Secretary of the Navy Moody, was aboard the President's yacht Mayflower, where Miss Alice Roosevelt entertained. Gov. Odell was aboard the the State yacht Aileen. Police Commissioner Greene was on the Patrol and Commissioner of Immigration Williams took a day off from his labors at Ellis Island, and went down the bay on the immigration cutter, H. B. Chamberlain. The biggest yacht there was Howard Gould's Niagara, and the fastest, with the possible exception of the Tarantula, was the Kanawha, which recently won the Lyndstrats Cup and which is owned by Henry H. Rogers. Other well known yachts with well known owners, were the Emerald, George J. Gould; Electra, Elbridge T. Gerry; Delaware, Commodore Frederick G. Bourne; Varuna, Eugene Higgins; Norman, Frank Tilford; Colonia, Clarence H. Mackay; Seminole, John N. Robins; Ituna, Frederick H. Stevens; Alvina, Clement A. Griscom; Surf, Adrian Iselin, Jr.; Ariadne, Henry W. Putnam, Jr.; Wacouta, James J. Hill; Nomad, Wm. R. Leeds; Hanoli, F. M. Smith; Onsida, E. C. Benedict; Fauvette, Robert Bacon; Bafa el Bahr, formerly owned by the Khedive of Egypt and now chartered by Francis R. Leland; Privateer, R. A. C. Smith; August Belmont's Scout, Marada, Henry Walters; Tuscarora, Walter Jennings; Conqueror, Robert J. Collier; Josephine, F. A. B. Widener; Mayita, Edward C. Schafer; Valkyr, S. Parker Bremer; Yamoden, Walter Lewisohn; Susquehanna, Joseph Stickney; May, Alexander Van Renselaer; Nesira, Charles A. Gould; Peerless, Charles W. Harkness.

The steamboats of the big excursion fleet carried their full limit of passengers. The New York Yacht Club members and their guests went on the Sandy Hook flier Monmouth; the Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht Club had the Gay Head, the Fall River Line steamboat Plymouth carried a big crowd of Larchmont Yacht Club members, the Taurus was chartered by the Atlantic Yacht Club, and members of the Knickerbocker Yacht Club saw the race from the De Witt C. Ivins. Besides these, the Richard Peck, the Sirius, the Angler, the Edmund Butler, the City of Savannah, the Thomas Patten, and the Isabel were loaded down with excursionists.

KEEN INTEREST OF THE CROWD.

The interest of this great crowd in the race was of the keenest, particularly because of the big time allowance conceded by Reliance, and because the conditions were most favorable to Shamrock, so when the starting gun was fired at 11 o'clock every eye was riveted on the two great sea birds. Shamrock crossed the line 22 seconds ahead of Reliance, but Reliance had advantage of position, as she went over at the windward end of the line. She had more headway, so she rapidly closed up the gap between herself and Shamrock. Shamrock, however, gathered away quickly, and soon was able to hold Reliance. Both were on the starboard tack, with Shamrock a little ahead and Reliance a little to windward. These positions were maintained for a half hour or so, when Shamrock began to open out a little clear water. It was evident, though, that Wringe could not get far enough ahead to cross Reliance's bows, and Barr did not dare tack away from the challenger. Reliance gradually pulled up and at 11:30 had Shamrock abeam. Wringe in order to foot faster, eased his boat off a little and drew away from Reliance, the latter, however, gaining to windward. There was every prospect of a fine light wind race.

RAIN SPOILED THE VIEW.

Just then, from the point of view of the spectator fleet at least, came the worst feature of a disappointing day. Heavy drops of rain began to fall. Among the excursionists there were hundreds of enthusiastic yachtsmen who did not mind the rain, or would not mind a snowstorm, so long as they could watch the evolutions of the yachts. Many hundred others, though, were aboard the different boats who went down the bay to see the yacht races because it is the fashion now to see the international races just as it is to go to the Horse Show or to a subscription performance at the Metropolitan Opera House, and they did mind the rain. Soon it was coming down in torrents, and so crowded were the decks of the larger boats that only a small and fortunate minority were able to find refuge below.

The deluge continued for three-quarters of an hour and few escaped the wetting. So heavily did it come down that it almost hid the yachts from view, and the two lines of following yachts became invisible to each other. When the rain began to clear up a big bank of fog came out of the east and effectually hid for a few moments not only the racing yachts from the excursion fleet but the vessels of the excursion fleet from one another, and the smart revenue cutters barked up and down the two lines like mighty shepherd dogs keeping their herds in order. The final disappointment came when the sky cleared and the sun came out, for the wind went away with the rain and it was seen that the yachts could not finish the race within the time limit.

The rain squall had borne out the prediction of the early morning sky, for at 4 o'clock there were heavy clouds, much mist, and little wind. As a result a number of steam yachts which had anchored in the harbor with the intention of going down the bay remained at anchor, the owners preferring not to give their guests a disagreeable day in the lower bay. The yachts that stayed at home, however, were in the minority, for at 10 o'clock all varieties of craft—steam yachts, revenue cutters, ocean-going steamboats, tugs, innumerable launches, and a big sprinkling of indescribable sea craft, were outward bound. As soon as they reached the starting line they were told off by the patrol fleet into one of the two lines that were to follow the racers.

GROUND SWELL CAUSES TROUBLE.

The troubles of the floating audience began at once, for the heavy ground swell was not conducive to happiness, either outwardly expressed or inwardly felt. It was not long before those who were not seasick had reason to be proud of themselves. The severest test, however, came when the fleet assembled at the outer mark, waiting for Reliance to make the turn. The swell was much longer and heavier, and most of those who had managed to keep up a bold front while the vessels were under way gave up, metaphorically and literally, when their craft rolled to and fro in the long seas. There was a long wait for Reliance to get into a soft spot, so the relief was great when finally she tacked around the mark and the excursion fleet started home. Just as the defender went around the whole fleet saluted her, and sirens, foghorns, whistles, and bells gave her a mighty cheer as she swept majestically around the buoy.

As soon as Shamrock came up into the wind without going to the outer mark the time-honored race for home began. W. R. Leede's Noma was one of the leading yachts when the race was thus declared off, and the smoke that poured from her funnels said plainly that she was going to try to stay in the lead. A quarter of a mile behind the Noma was Clement A. Griscom's Alvina, and about the same distance astern of the Alvina was the speedy Kanawha, with the Electra abreast of her inshore, and the Corsair making good time further off shore. For a short time the Alvina kept up the pace, but when the Noma began to draw away from her Mr. Griscom's yacht dropped out. The Kanawha then began creeping up on the Noma, when she defeated at Newport in the race for the Lyndstrats Cup, and in half an hour had passed her. Half an hour later the graceful white yacht with the aluminum rimmed smokestack was lost to view ahead. The Colonia also made fast time in the run home.

The Monmouth, as she has so often done before, had little difficulty in disposing of the steamboat fleet, and she was easily the first of all to land her passengers. The Plymouth and the Richard Peck made a good race of it up the bay. The Plymouth had a start of about a hundred yards when the dash for home began and she just about managed to maintain that margin in the race up the bay.

According to the conditions of the match the first race will be sailed on Saturday, and the course, as yesterday, if possible, will be 15 miles to windward and return. If on account of the direction of the wind a 15 mile windward course cannot be laid the race will be sailed to leeward as return.

THE RACE IN DETAIL.

Both Skippers Make Good Starts—How Wringe Tried to Go Through Reliance's Lee.

It was not a race, but it was race enough to show pretty conclusively the relative standing of the yachts under the prevailing conditions. The prevailing conditions were light weather, so light that the Reliance took more than four and a half hours to cover the fifteen knots between the lightship and the outer mark, which means that at times there was not more wind than barely enough to make steerage way. For the wind did not fall so light until at least ten knots of the fifteen had been covered and the defender had fairly won a commanding lead and brought the mark in plain sight. The wind was light at the start, less than four knots, but during two squalls that succeeded each other after a short interval it rose somewhat. Then it gradually died away again almost to the zero point. For at least three hours, however, whether high or low, it held fairly steady at south-southwest and the yachts have equally. So the result while the wind held was a fair enough test.

At the preparatory signal at 10:45, the Reliance, standing eastward with boom on the port hand and lifted sheets, was crossing the bows of the committee boat Navigator, anchored north-northeast of the Sandy Hook lightship. The lightship, it must be borne in mind, was at the windward end of the line. Shamrock was about half a cable's length, say 120 yards, to leeward, also standing to the eastward. She passed astern of the Navigator, and subsequently hauled up to windward of Reliance's wake.

The course had been previously given as south-southwest, and the tug John E. Scully had been sent off to lay it. The guide boat Constitution had also been started after her to take position in advance of the racers. It already has been said that the wind was light, yet there was enough to give the yachts life. The sea was smooth, except for a rather heavy ground swell, which became heavier as the yachts advanced seaward. The yachts were equally clothed, except in one respect. Both had their jargoes club-topsails above the ordinary working sails, but the Shamrock flaunted a considerably larger jibtopsail than the Reliance.

The Reliance went on the port tack a few seconds before the warning signal, at 10:55, to cross tacks with the Shamrock, and at the smoke of the gun was crossing the latter's bows. The Shamrock went to port at gun fire, and both then stood westward for the line, which was perhaps three-quarters of a mile away. The Reliance had the better pace at the moment and drew visibly ahead. But the wily Scotch skipper was holding his vessel in leash. That fact became plain later when he let her go free. The signal was given at 11 o'clock, before either yacht had reached the line. The Reliance was still leading by several lengths, but she was southward of the lightship and had to bear away to the northward to round it. She were ship and stood to cross the line to the windward end of the line. There had been no jockeying, but Barr had shown good judgment in taking a position which rendered it impossible for his adversary to get to windward. Wringe, however, had a plan of his own, and he carried it out boldly. He had timed his pace so as to reach the line before the Reliance, and, once above it, tacked quickly and went over in the lead, and, though in the leeward place, with his wind perfectly free. He had secured a lead of 28 seconds. Here are the official times of the start:

Shamrock III.....11:01:34
Reliance.....11:01:41

They went off on the starboard tack, heading about south by east half east for the open ocean. Shamrock showed immediately much more life than in the preliminary maneuvering, and therefore seemed at first to be dropping the Reliance. But the Reliance was not lagging. It was instantly apparent that she was looking closer to the wind. The yachts were going almost head into the ground swell, and they churned up the foam at each drive. There was little difference between them in this respect, but the Reliance rolled the less of the two. For at least a quarter of an hour it was difficult for the unpracticed eye to determine which was gaining the advantage. Surely, if slowly, however, the Reliance was drawing away to windward and thus taking the lead, though the Shamrock seemed to be ahead. Eventually it was plain to every one that the yachts were abreast, and the Reliance fully 100 yards to windward. And that was their relative position before they had been sailing half an hour.

Capt. Wringe did not relish the situation. He had given his boat a full to drive her ahead and keep clear of his adversary. Yet here was that adversary in less than half an hour on his weather beam. He had set a larger jibtopsail to make his boat foot faster in the light air prevailing, but the Reliance, with a smaller jibtopsail, was steadily outfooting him. At 11:25:30 he doused his jibtopsail, and three minutes later broke out a smaller one.

The weather had been threatening all the morning and for some time a rain squall had been making up over the Jersey headlands. This now broke over the right wing of the excursion fleet, two miles away to the westward, and shut it out of view. About 11:30 it came down in a deluge upon the sails of the racers, but instead of killing the wind according to the predictions of the weather sharps it brought more wind and put the racers to a pace that necessitated opening the throttle valves of the steamers. The rain continued for thirty minutes, then suddenly ceased. But while the wind continued from the southwest, the passing cloud turned unexpectedly backward and brought another shower harder than the first. This also ceased before noon and then as the wind continued fresh the prospect seemed excellent for a good race.

The yachts held on the starboard tack for more than an hour until the guide boat had dwindled to a mere speck in the southwest. Shamrock's skipper evidently did not want to go about under the Reliance's lee and the skipper of the Reliance had no idea of breaking tacks with his adversary. Finally the signals threw the Shamrock to port at 12:18:50. The Reliance followed to port at 12:20:35, and her position was then well up on the weather bow of the Shamrock. And now a thing happened that gave the inexperienced observers much concern for a while. The Shamrock steadily closed up the gap between herself and Reliance, and in less than ten minutes reached through her lee.

The friends of the defender were concerned, and the admirers of the challenger found their drooping spirits wonderfully revived. But there was no cause for depression on the one hand or exhilaration on the other. What happened was simple enough and not at all surprising when understood. Wringe, finding that he could not shake the Shamrock in the wind and make her foot with the Reliance eased her off and gave her a good full in the vain hope that he could get to the front by that means. How vain the hope was shown when the yachts made the next tack. The Reliance increased her lead so plainly that though the Shamrock again reached through her lee nobody was moved to make a remark on the subject.

The port tack was a comparatively short one. The Shamrock returned to starboard at 12:45:15 and the Reliance at 12:46:15. This tack was held for less than a quarter of an hour. Shamrock again took the initiative and went to port at 12:58:40, and the Reliance five second later tacked to port. Again the racers came within a mile of the tip of her bowsprit. The race was over, so far as any doubt of the result was concerned; the only question unsettled was as to how many minutes lead the Reliance would have at the outer mark. Guesses were freely made at from five to ten minutes.

The mark boat was now in plain sight, and it seemed probable that the Reliance would fetch it on the next tack, and the way in which she began to draw away from the Shamrock on the starboard tack delighted one of those enthusiasts who had ventured to give her ten minutes lead for the windward leg. At 1:23:45 Shamrock went to starboard, and, though more than a mile astern, seemed to be in position to fetch the mark. Reliance went on the starboard tack at 1:23:55 to windward as well as ahead.

Up to this time the wind, though gradually failing, had held fairly steady, and there had been a gratifying absence of flukes. Shamrock was heading straight for the mark, and it was a reasonable estimate that she would turn it in half an hour. But just here the wind fell flat. Shamrock was the first to fall off her course. She had previously taken in her jibtopsail and set a larger one. Reliance about the same time took in her working staysail and replaced it with a balloon. At 2:06 she headed off to the southeast. And four minutes later she set a balloon jibtopsail as if she were bound for the Jersey shore. For some inscrutable reason Barr tried the same sail on the Reliance and was presently also heading for the other side of the Atlantic. Thus the spectators were edified by the singular spectacle of two yachts trying to beat to windward with a single head sail, and that a balloon jibtopsail.

The wind now fell very light, and though the boats kept steerage way they made little progress toward the mark. When Reliance tacked to port at 2:38 o'clock she sailed back almost parallel with the line she had held on the starboard tack. She did little better when she returned to the starboard tack at 3:06. Shamrock all the while held to the starboard tack, and about 3:15 she caught a streak of wind from the northwest that enabled her to head straight for the mark. Reliance did not catch it until several minutes later, but when she did she came for the mark with a big bone in her teeth. She rounded the mark, amid deafening salute of steam whistles, at 3:37:20.

Shamrock was then over two miles astern, but as the time limit of five and one-half hours for the race was near that she could gear she was racing against her watch for the day. Reliance, on the home stretch, met her going out at 3:44:47. As soon as the Reliance passed the Shamrock she put about and followed homeward. The latter signaled for a tow at 4:30 and the latter at the same time dropped her club-topsail. The struggle was over for the day.

YACHTSMEN ON THE MONMOUTH.

How Members of the New York Club and Guests Viewed the Race—Not Sea-Legs Enough for All.

The Monmouth is a fast boat, and when she is making records or contending for a championship with the Arrow she has not time to exhibit to the full her susceptibility to vibration or her appreciation of a heavy swell. But when she has beaten every other excursion boat over the first leg of an international yacht race course, and is obliged to rock more or less gently in the cradle of the deep for three-quarters of an hour, while the racers emerge from a fog and make a tedious tack, there is another story to be told, as many will testify who were aboard yesterday.

The sudden showers drove many of the passengers to the cabin to search raincoats and cloth caps which had been checked, but the ground swell also had its little joke in store for them. Raincoats, umbrellas, canes, and women's circulars were thrown on the floor in a hopeless mix-up. In despair many of the men adjourned to the bar. Another lurch, and glasses went sliding down the counter, to crash into confusion at one end, and bottles of peach brandy mixed their contents fraternally with Belfast ginger ale and innocuous lemon soura.

Another smart run to the mark, and once more the engines of the Monmouth had a rest while the excursion boat awaited the arrival of the racers. As these were still several miles from the buoy, many of the passengers concluded it to be a good time to take luncheon. And many of them took it—in their laps. The amount of chicken salad which found its way to all parts of the vessel was something at which to wonder. Some misguided individuals ordered coffee, with disastrous results to duck suits and more ambitious yachting "creations." The crash of crockery was incessant and omnipresent. The steady pounding of the vessel had established a record for the Monmouth.

SOME WERE NOT HUNGRY.

But not all were inclined to eat. Other matters demanded their attention, and of these matters the relative positions of the boats was not altogether the most important in the majority of cases. For instance, there was a clergyman in the saloon. Strange that he should hurry to the side of the boat opposite to that fringed with yachting enthusiasts who were indifferent to swells or choppy seas. There was—but why continue. There were many who saw mighty little of the race who will describe it with much elaboration of detail to-day.

For the passengers on the Monmouth there still remained the excitement of the run home, for it has come to be understood by this time that the Central Railroad boat must be the first to dock after a yacht race. On this occasion the Richard Peck, which was recently overhauled and fitted with new boilers, challenged for the honor. But the Monmouth stood her off and picked up one by one all of the other excursion boats and swift steam yachts, with the exception of H. H. Rogers's twin-screw marvel, the Kanawha, which was the first of the returning boats to show her nose above the Battery.

During the run back the race was discussed by members of the club and several experts who were their guests.

George A. Freeman, the Chairman of the Committee which had charge of the excursion, spoke for his fellow members as follows:

"The general sentiment of those members of the club with whom I have talked, is that this was a typical day for the Shamrock, and that if she could not lead us to-day, she will not be likely to do so at the finish of any one of the races of the present series. They base their opinions on the fact that only a few days ago, one of their number asked Mr. Fife what kind of weather would be best to his liking. He replied: 'Weather that will enable the Shamrock to win five hours and twenty-five minutes after the start.'

"Surely this was such a day, and I think that statement ought to tell the whole story of this year's races when read in conjunction with the account of to-day's results. The Shamrock got away 24 seconds ahead, but she didn't point up as well, and at the first tack she was obliged to go under Reliance's bow.

Admiral Sigsbee, who was asked how he had enjoyed the day, answered:

"Very much indeed. I think I speak for the entire naval party aboard when I say that we are quite satisfied. The superiority of the American boat was apparent. It was particularly noticeable that when the Reliance dipped, she did not spill the wind out of her sails, and that there was that first tack. Little remained for conjecture after that."

"While the wind was flukey," said Commodore Moleson of the Royal St. Lawrence Yacht Club, one of the Monmouth's passengers, "and not the kind of wind to judge a yacht by, yet it is quite clear that the Reliance outclasses the Shamrock."

"The Shamrock does not and cannot hold a candle for the Reliance. She is in every way outclassed," said F. E. Silliman of the Bridgeport Yacht Club.

ATLANTIC YACHT CLUB'S GUESTS.

The Atlantic Yacht Club turned out in force yesterday for the first race between Reliance and Shamrock III., and the eight hundred people who went down on the big iron steamboat Taurus to see the American boat walk away from her competitor seemed to enjoy themselves to the full.

The Taurus left Pier 1 North River promptly at 9 o'clock. Her decks were crowded with the members of the club and their friends, whose numbers were considerably augmented by a large contingent that got aboard at the clubhouse. A good band of music was aboard and the wants of the inner man were well attended to by the committee in charge, consisting of F. G. Bonford, Chairman, and Secretary of the club; Louis F. Jackson, Fred Vilmar, Charles J. McDermott, and E. E. Vernon.

SIR THOMAS CONFIDENT

Tells His Guests on the Erin That the Shamrock Will Win.

He and His Companions Say the Trial Was Not Significant—How the Challenger Watched the Contest.

Sir Thomas Lipton said last night that he was as sure of lifting the cup as he was before he saw the Reliance, from the deck of his beautiful Erin, rounding the outer mark so far ahead of his Shamrock that she did not even attempt to turn it, there being no possibility of the American boat making a race of it. Nothing but a blow that would rip her pretty sails into ribbons, tear her tall masts out of her, lift her with a tidal wave and throw her across the finish line a winner and a wreck, could make it anything but a fluke.

Sir Thomas when the race was declared off joined his guests in the after-cabin. They were utterly dejected and certain that the Reliance was some sort of invincible contrivance, a veritable flying machine, that chose to rest lightly on the water, rather than to soar high above it. As Sir Thomas looked over his friends with the kindly smile that is singularly his own, his eyes laughing in harmony with his pleasant salutation, he asked the company to cheer up and toast the Shamrock III.

"Why," he said, "this race is utterly inconclusive. I am more confident than when I started out this morning that mine is the better boat. Just remember that in previous races against Shamrocks that have not been completed and the racers having been called off because they could not finish within the time limit, the Shamrocks have been leading by safer distances than the Reliance to-day. There is really no cause to be discouraged, and every reason to be sanguine.

"The Shamrock had the best of the start to-day, a good deal the best of it, and that does not indicate that our skipper is inferior. While the wind held true he kept his lead, and the Reliance did not gain a second. Then they ran into a fog and rain. When they came out of it the Reliance was way ahead, but she had caught the best of the temporary breeze, and the shift in the wind which struck the Shamrock, long before it did the Reliance, was one to send her homeward rather than to the outer mark. She had to tack about in a vain search for a breeze, and when she did get it she rapidly crept up on the American boat.

"When the two boats were actually under the same conditions the Reliance had no advantage over the Shamrock. It seemed to me that it was the other way. I am glad you are sorry about this because it shows your friendship, but your judgment is favorable to one boat as the other I believe should prove the winner."

SIR THOMAS TOASTED.

Henry Watterson, who had been among the sympathetic mourners, proposed a toast to Sir Thomas, saying that he had done more than all the diplomats in establishing the cordial relations now existing between the United States and Great Britain, and that he knew the majority of Americans wished to see the Shamrock win for the sake of the sport and the good-feeling between the nations. He declared that his toast was not one of treason, because we had held the cup so long it was time we should have a chance to struggle for its recovery. If the Reliance should prove the winner, it might be twenty-five years before some other daring man could be found with a large purse and confident heart who should attempt to give the American Nation another outing at sea and an opportunity to witness the struggle of the representative yachts. The toast was drunk with hearty unanimity.

"It will make for sport," said Col. Watterson; "for international good relations, if the man we adore shall win this series of races. Adore is a big word, but it is fitting in describing one whom we Americans admire so much."

Sir Thomas Lipton was not the only one who felt that the Shamrock was not conclusively beaten. There were many Americans and Englishmen to voice the contention that the race proved little or nothing as to the relative qualities of the boats.

In addition to Sir Thomas Lipton's "house party" his other guests were taken to the yacht on the side-wheeler William Fletcher, of the Ellis Island transfer fleet. She left Pier A in the North River at 7:30, bound for the anchorage of the Erin, inside Sandy Hook Point. There was an elaborate breakfast eagerly devoured by those who, to catch the boat, had to neglect their breakfasts. They were a goodly lot of sailors, for though they encountered the long swell of the Atlantic later in the day, seasickness, even among the women, was very unusual.

When the Erin had received the passengers from the Fletcher, Sir Thomas greeted each one cordially as his invited friends came aboard. The Erin headed for the lightship, where the big single stickers were to compete for the cup. Sir Thomas invited his guests to pluck for their buttonholes shamrocks that were luxuriating in pots filled with the real sod of old Ireland, and every sonny-boy aboard wore the dainty emblem of their host's people. Coming up to Miss Crimmins, who was sitting by her father, John D. Crimmins, Sir Thomas presented her with a rose.

"Don't you think I had better be content with the shamrock alone, Sir Thomas?" asked Miss Crimmins.

"Better wear both," said the British knight. "One can never tell just how these races may end, and you will be on the safe side."

Sir Thomas was on the bridge, when the yachts started away for their race, the Shamrock in the lead by a good margin, but the Reliance with the weather berth. The Shamrock got away 24 seconds, and could not avoid the smile that spread over his face as his friends clapped their hands with delight, seeing the English craft in the lead.

She seemed to be holding her own beautifully until the rain and fog shutting out all view of the big single stickers, so that no one knew what they were going for a long time and contented themselves with the fine dinner Sir Thomas had provided for them. While they were drinking his health on this occasion the rain curtain lifted, showing the Shamrock apparently still in the lead.

Sir Thomas softly patted his nearest friends on the back, confident in his boat, but misled by the angle. The meal was scarcely finished when the Reliance, tacking to port, showed that she was in the lead. The gloom was quite apparent as the American boat forged ahead and turned the mark so far in front that no one dared to guess how far she was away. Sir Thomas looked at his watch nervously several times. The Shamrock was making up lost ground when the race was declared off, and the company aboard the Erin, assured that the race was a fluke and that, showing of the Reliance far from conclusive, grew gay again and in proper mind to enjoy the luxury of their surroundings.

OPINIONS ON THE TRIAL.

Ex-Lieut. Gov. Timothy L. Woodruff declared that the day had not been a test of the racing qualities of the two boats.

Capt. Matthews of the Erin said: "We still have confidence in our boat. A shift in the wind gave the Reliance the advantage, and after that there was not enough wind to prove anything."

Commodore Penchon of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club said:

"It looks very much like the old, old story, but I do not regard 30-day as a test. We had no wind to show what the yachts could do. Capt. Wringe certainly had far the best of the start. There is encouraging as to the fact that the Reliance did not gain an inch on the Shamrock while there was any wind worth speaking of.

"The most encouraging thing is that the Shamrock is amazingly well handled notwithstanding her misfortunes, through the winds that blow where they will, and chose yesterday to seek the Reliance rather than the Shamrock. The handling of the Shamrock was superb and in very marked contrast to that of the other Shamrock two years ago. I am far from giving up hope in the Shamrock III."

Lieut. Isam Takeshita of the Imperial Japanese Navy, who was one of the favorites among the gay company, did not venture an opinion on the race, as a race, saying that he thought it could hardly be considered such. He offered the interesting observation, however, that he believed the next contestant for the cup would perhaps be built in Japan. He said: "We can build yachts in Japan, and know how to sail them, and we will challenge if Sir Thomas does not win. We may have to challenge him.

This met with the approval of Sir Thomas, who had pinned a shamrock on the uniform of the Japanese officer, declaring that he was good enough to be an Irishman.

SIR THOMAS'S GUESTS.

The guests of Sir Thomas on the Erin were as follows:

BRITONS ABROAD DISAPPOINTED.

Little Hope for Shamrock III. Expressed in London—Irish View of the Situation.

LONDON, Aug. 20.—The calling off of the race for the America's Cup has caused a decided disappointment in London. The papers published hourly editions throughout the day. The first reports regarding the weather at Sandy Hook inclined the public to believe that the Shamrock had ideal conditions, and the news that the Reliance had outfooted her in the drifting match was a complete disillusion. Several papers had arranged to announce the progress and result of the contest by fireworks and balloons. Crowds lingered in the streets in the most dismal sort of London drizzle in the hope that the wind would freshen and permit of a finish; but early in the evening it became apparent that the race could not finish within the time limit, and the crowds dispersed, leaving only a few enthusiasts around the tickers in the hotel corridors to receive the official announcement that the race had been called off.

Plenty of goodwill is evidenced here for Sir Thomas Lipton and his yacht in the series of races for the America's Cup, but, faith in the success of the Shamrock III. is notably lacking. "She has a better chance than previous challengers" marks the limit of the forecast, even by the challengers' warmest admirers. No betting on the result is discoverable here.

BELFAST, Aug. 20.—While the showing of Shamrock III. in her first race against the Reliance is a great disappointment to the challenger's supporters here, none is willing to admit that she has not still a good chance of lifting the cup.

The clubhouse of the Royal Ulster Yacht Club was crowded this afternoon and evening with members, who eagerly scanned every bulletin. Hugh Kelly, the Honorary Secretary of the club, and other members agree that the fluky breeze was alone responsible for the superior showing of the Reliance.

The excitement in Belfast and elsewhere was intense during the progress of the race and the streets were filled with eager crowds. The universal sentiment is that Shamrock III. is sure to reverse the positions when a fair and steady breeze is secured.

GLASGOW, Aug. 20.—Not since the contest between the Thistle and the Volunteer has there been such excitement over the race for the America's Cup as prevails here now. From the time of the start of the race the streets were filled with crowds that blocked vehicular traffic wherever a sight of a race bulletin was obtainable. At Dumbarton the citizens showed even more interest. They have subscribed for a colored searchlight service by which the results of the contests can be notified to the surrounding country. The announcement that to-day's race had been called off was received with bitter disappointment, but there is a general feeling of confidence that the Shamrock III. will make a better showing at Saturday's race.

CROWDS AT THE BULLETINS.

Enthusiasm Displayed by Stay-at-Homes—Yachting Lore Displayed.

Thousands of men and boys who could not get down the bay to see the race crowded about the newspaper and other bulletin boards, and seemed to get as much enjoyment out of the affair as though they were on the decks of their own private yachts, watching the event, with the knowledge of full hampers below and a sufficient number of cold bottles to go around. And as for enthusiasm, the way they yelled themselves hoarse whenever favorable Reliance bulletins went up, showed that their patriotism was of a healthy sort and that they had not become so blasé in their contact with men and affairs as to think it necessary to bottle up their feelings on such occasions.

Each crowd, too, seemed to have its full quota of "yachtsmen," who had been diligently studying a glossary of racing terms, and who took this occasion to display the knowledge so acquired. This was of special advantage near the bulletin boards, where miniature craft were strung along on wires and moved on canvas oceans so as to impress on the onlooking thousands the relative positions of the yachts at various stages of the course.

"Look at that Shamrock gettin' keel-hauled," said one bystander, as a little gust of wind, something that did not seem to exist where the real racers were drifting, caught one of the toy racers and tipped it over on its wire until it turned turtle.

"Heelin' over until the lee scuppers are all a-wash," remarked another, looking about with evident satisfaction at what he considered a superior knowledge of the sport.

"Say," remarked another, as a favorable Reliance bulletin was posted, "I told you how this thing was comin' out, an' yer jes' right. I was a-sayin' to Tommy Lipton that he didn't have a chance for his life."

Then some more bulletins went up, and the crowd let itself loose again in a cheer that sent a rumble through Broadway and drowned the ringing of the trolley car bells as the motorman sought to get a clear space through the throng. At different times during the afternoon there were from 5,000 to 10,000 persons in the crowd, until shortly before 4 o'clock, the bulletin was posted declaring the day's drift "No Race." Then in less than ten minutes the crowd had melted away and the street resumed its normal appearance.

Further up Broadway other bulletin boards were surrounded each by its crowd, and some of the hotels kept the latest information in places where it could readily be inspected. Police were on hand, but had little to do save watch the bulletins.

In Park Row there was a crowd that almost blocked street traffic, and it stuck to its post from a considerable time before the race was started until after the "No Race" bulletin went up. And there was no lack of the small but pronounced element, either, for stand and conservative business men formed the greater part of the gatherings, and vied with the youngsters in showing their enthusiasm and talking yacht to whoever happened to be within earshot. The information being given with absolute freedom and on the slightest provocation. Incidentally, the boss camaraderie of the occasion was an opportunity for city's derelicts who haunt the parks.

In the brokers' offices down town and in the cafés, restaurants and other places where the bulletins could be obtained, habitués gathered, discussed the event, and paid more attention to it than to the market or any other subject. New York certainly was yacht-mad as well as yacht-wise yesterday and the race had the call over business.

How the Swarm of Craft Swept Out to View the Race.

Excursionists' Well Wishing for Sir Thomas Ceases When a Critical Moment Arrives.

The yard-antique virgin who presides over the Upper Bay opened her eyes very wide yesterday morning as she tried to keep her torch out of the veils of low-lying raincloud. About half after 9 the main channel, Buttermilk Channel, and the Kill van Kull were swarming with assorted vessels of every size, racing madly for the Narrows, while from up the North River and from under the Brooklyn Bridge still others came, with black smoke and white, smokestacks of brass and of silver, red, pale yellow, and white, or with no stack at all, but masts on which no sails were set. There they puffed, or surged, along or slipped, eel-like, big and little, helter-skelter, under the lowering skies. The mass of tall buildings beyond the Battery Park shone white against the angry clouds. Government vessels, flying the broad-striped banner of the patrol, slender white steam yachts with bows like beaks of seabirds and long overhanging sterns, ocean-going tugs covered with bunting, queer old river steamers and gigantic steamboats well known to Long Island Sound, Starin excursion barges, coasting steamers, and small domestic pleasure boats with auxiliary power, the one sort carrying its thousands, the other a dozen determined tourists—these and half a hundred others of the latest and oldest extant, specimens of naval architecture steamed toward the Lower Bay.

As they converged at the Narrows it seemed likely a collision or two would occur, but as all were going in the same direction on the back of a swift ebb tide, and as each vessel was kept well in hand, no harm was done. Clearing the Narrows, the different hidden waterways were sought and the Sound reached for a time, some heading straight across the shoals, others turning by the easterly channel in front of Coney Island, and those of deep draught by the tortuous route of the oceangoers.

It was like the drive to Epsom on Derby Day. Every grade of craft was visible, and the occupants of a dingy fishing sloop with its "tuff tuff" almost inaudible in the crowd, were as happy as those who lay in chaises longues under the awnings of a millionaire's floating palace, nay, happier if acceptance of gesture and voice is any indication.

Meantime the weather was prevaricating as only wind, wave, and cloud can. Not merely were the skies heavy with dropping veils of rain, but to landlubbers it seemed that out there in the Atlantic a grand breeze, if not half a gale, would not need long waiting for. As the ground swell began to make the ocean steamers sway majestically and lift the fine bows of yachts till they showed their beautifully modeled under bodies, a certain pensiveness could be detected in the crowds. The appearance of sailors in sou'westers has often been found to coincide with this change in the mood of Summer tourists. The gentleman in naval rank, with his immense frame and a circle of admiring listeners, has been known on such occasions to seek his cabin for his sou'wester and only return on the homestretch up the bay.

But even Capt. Quinn was to be deceived, for after all the spitting of rainclouds and all the indications of "dirty weather" nothing happened, except the old, old procession of the American yacht leading the British over smooth seas and the old, old refusal of the weather gods to treat the crowd here of a decent bit of wind. It is monotonous indeed to watch the various shades of gray in clouds and ocean, the light, the dark, and the black gray, the gray with blue in it, or violet, the smudges on the horizon that might mean the Navesink Highlands, or the Jersey hills. One talks perforce to one's neighbor or listens to those who like an audience.

Here is the traveled Briton with us, who assures his friends and those who are within earshot that while the magnates at home search for their confounded cups, they are not exactly keen that it should be Sir Thomas Lipton who shall bring it back.

"For Heaven's sake, why?" some one asks him.

"Because he is not popular in that set, and they know that if he wins the cup the King in his great joy will want to make a peer of him, and Balfour is such an easy-going duffer that he would do it!"

Happy in its ignorance of these rancors in the old country, the flotilla continues to minister to Sir Thomas's fancy. The Americans are themselves not a little torn, but in another way. They hate to lose the cup, but one hears on every side:

"I really wish he could get it this time," or, more conservatively, "I do hope he will be very lucky in the last race."

But neither the ill-wishers in England nor the well-wishers all about him off the Jersey coast can influence one whit the result. Telepathy will not work, though Marconigraphy speed silent and invisible messages to and fro, and frightened motor pigeons whirl through the smoky motor-fume-laden air. The good ship will not slacken her speed though all the thousands present should set their thinking apparatus to thinking, their will to willing, that Shamrock III. Capt. Wringe, may be one inch to Capt. Wringe. When the yachts for the first time break the long tack, that peerage of which the British tourist spoke, will seem as great a castle in Spain as the phantasies of yonder castle in the clouds where the Navesink lies just be, over there, behind a curtain of murk.

CYNIC KNEW THE CROWD.

A cynic who listened, with his tongue in his cheek, to the kindly remarks as to Sir Thomas Lipton, taking large discount of these reiterated prayers that he gain the race, broke into a laugh when Shamrock suddenly tacked toward the Jersey shore and, as seen from the following flotilla, appeared about to cross the bows of Reliance. There was an uncomfortable strain on most faces. Did one hear certain low ejaculations not meant for ladies' ears? But almost instantly the Shamrock III. went astern? Ah, then the truth appeared! A cheer rang out from the crowds that clustered like flying bees on the decks of Grand Republic, Shinnecock, Savannah, and Richard Peck, a cheer that could not be repressed, though every one felt ashamed of it the moment after. The message of that sign of defeat was already on its way to land and thence by cable to Europe, the message that the Yankee boat was ahead. Out of truth it became a shame that, so far as present appearances could show, Sir Thomas should be more than likely to leave again with empty hands.

This extraordinary concourse of ships and pleasure craft, representing such enormous sums of money, is thrown into relief by the presence of busy scafarers to whom such things are nearly as possible a blank. As the vessels drone along, waiting for the breeze that will not come, wallowing from side to side over the broad ridges of the swell, the water is cut by thousands of purposes, working gravely and industriously onward, indifferent to the presence of men up and down, beating their chosen path where their food calls them. And down the light wind with all sails set come scores of three-masted schooners, gravely, deliberately, with their hand-worked black sails, their often beautiful lines of bowsprit, sheer and stern, their solemn look of purpose. Without a flag showing, without a waving handkerchief or a cheer they move on in a stately procession, by twos or threes, steady and unadorned, the laborers of the deep. Their appearance is a foil to the fleet of ships for pleasure only, and the greater flotilla attending on the crowded thick with the opulence at the marine pageant, it is as if in the imperial circus, when the games are on, a caravan of camels and packmules should march straight through, looking neither to the right nor left and silently vanish on the horizon.

STARTS FROM THE PIERS.

One of the first of the boats to get away was the City of Savannah, taken off her regular schedule to go to the races. She left the pier at Spring Street, North River, in charge of Capt. Daggett, loaded to her full capacity of passengers numbering about 1,500. A big crowd tried to purchase tickets at the pier, but all for to-day's races were sold Wednesday. About twenty out of the thousand persons on the pier managed to get tickets that had been reserved by persons who did not appear to take them up. The ticket seller was heavily forced into the water by the rush of people trying to purchase the pieces of pasteboard, and the police had to be called on to preserve order.

The Grand Republic and the Cepheus left the pier at West Twenty-second Street on schedule time. It is estimated that there were about 6,000 persons on board the two boats. Many of the excursionists evidently came from hotels, and were out of town people. A long line of hansoms and cabs brought them to the pier.

The Shinnecock took nine hundred passengers from Wall Street. The steamer was advertised to sail at 9:15 o'clock, and the number of tickets was limited to half of her licensed capacity. By 8:30 o'clock that number had been sold, and before sailing time full five hundred persons were turned away. Some of these late arrivals were clamorous for a chance to board the boat and one man offered as high as $20 for two tickets. After

EASY FOR THE SEA POLICE

Revenue Cutter and Yacht Patrol Keep Course Clear.

Only Four Excursion Boats Attempt to Crowd, and of Those the Plymouth Has to be Warned.

Never did the patrol fleet have an easier task at a yacht race than yesterday. With only three or four hardly noticeable exceptions, the scores of excursion vessels held to the course assigned them. As a result the patrol officers are not anticipating much trouble during the series.

The patrol fleet was larger than ever before. In addition to the ocean-going revenue cutters, of which there were seven, and the use of which first began during the first Lipton series in 1899, were private yachts, all flying the United States Revenue Service flag.

On the outward run, the first division had the port side and the second division the starboard. The revenue cutter Gresham led the first division, and was flagship of the patrol fleet. The revenue cutter Tuscarora led the second division. The fleet sailed in this order:

FIRST DIVISION.
Boat Commander or Owner.
Cutter Gresham—Capt. Thomas D. Walker; Executive Officer, G. C. Carstens.
Yacht Delaware—Commodore F. G. Bourne.
Cutter Onondaga—Capt. Worth G. Ross.
Yacht Atlantic—J. R. Wilmerding.
Yacht Alice—F. D. Underwood.
Yacht Tuscarora—E. R. Jennings.
Cutter Windom—Capt. S. C. McGuire.
Yacht Corsair—R. A. Smith.
Cutter Dexter—Capt. O. D. Myrick.

SECOND DIVISION.
Cutter Tuscarora—Capt. David Hall.
Yacht North Star—Cornelius Vanderbilt.
Cutter Seminole—Capt. Henry Rogers.
Yacht Cambria—H. P. Rogers.
Yacht Satellite—August Belmont.
Yacht Alvina—Clement A. Griscom.
Cutter Algonquin—Capt. F. G. F. Wadsworth.
Yacht Nona—W. R. Leeds.
Yacht Stella Mora—R. T. Shaw.

The revenue cutter Dallas was ordered to this port for the races, but the repair work upon her not being sufficiently advanced, she did not come.

The line of cutters formed just off Tompkinsville and went steaming down the bay at 9 o'clock. The yachts assigned to assist in the work dropped into their places when the line separated into two wings near the Hook.

Owners entitled to view the race from the decks of the cutters boarded the harbor cutters, Winnisimmett, Calumet, Mackinac, and Manhattan, which took them out to the sea-going cutters.

The excursion boats, which were lying in close proximity at the Battery, soon began to take their course either to port or starboard when the patrol line was sighted hastening down from the Narrows. Probably the greatest number went to the port side.

The patrol lines began to draw toward the excursion boats, and they in their turn began to draw away. Gradually they were crowded further and further back by the lines led by the Gresham and Tuscarora. The patrol boats kept up these tactics until they had the excursion boats in good order down the course in the direction of the yachts. Some of the big steamers looked formidable enough, but very seldom did one dispute the authority of the cutters.

Four of the excursion fleet transgressed slightly, but in the cases of the first three the customary signal—four short blasts of the whistle, sent them scurrying back across the line, over which hardly half their length had ventured. The offenders were the Du Quesne, the Tillie, the Gay Head, and the Plymouth.

The big Long Island Sound steamer Plymouth, however, as large as any in the fleet, when warned even the second time, did not obey. Capt. Walker said: "I guess she's got a screw loose somewhere," and shouted through a megaphone:

"The Plymouth must get back in there where it belongs, and its commander must be more attentive to signals in future."

The Plymouth moved back of the line and did no further harm.

The Police Department's best Patrol and the fireboat Havemeyer were in the line, but their labors were seen lighter than those of the cutters and guide yachts.

The distance between the lines marking the course and the cup yachts was sometimes as much as four and a half miles on either side. Then, again, the line of patrol craft with the excursion boats in their rear, approached sometimes within three-quarters of a mile.

At the stakeboat some of the excursion boats gathered in so close as to give the officers of interference, but long before the defender reached that point the swift patrol boats had sent them running.

Though a thick haze enveloped the yachts at one time, it made no difference with the regulation of the cutters and their assistants. The lines to port and starboard kept in their places.

Those on the patrol boats in the cutter section had a sorry time of it when the rain began to fall. Those on the steam yachts retired to the cabins where the downpour did not affect them.

The heavy roll which prevailed throughout the day brought discomfort to hundreds on the cutters. Most of those on the guide yachts were accustomed to the sea, and the heavy swell affected them little or none. But on the cutters, especially on the Algonquin, sickness was general among the guests. Of all the cutters she pitched and rolled the most. At times her antics were so startling as to draw the attention of the entire fleet, even that of those on the Erin.

"Just look at that boat," exclaimed Sir Thomas Lipton, as the Algonquin was seen digging her prow deep into the water, only to rise again high in the air, shake herself like a water spaniel, and then shoot forward again as if she liked it.

Her officers confessed rolling and pitching to be her besetting sin. They declared that she always acted the same with a high swell running, whatever part of the world she might be in.

Among those on the Algonquin were Thomas H. Carter, President of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition Commission; First Assistant Secretary of the Interior Melville W. Miller; Chief Inspector of Steamboats Euler; Capt. Stanton, U. S. A.; Mayor Williams; Mr. Mayer; Capt. Lieut. Macyi, U. S. R. C. S., retired; Chief Engineer McGee, U. S. R. C. S., retired; George Walker, William M. Gettys, Levi Woodbury, Washington, and Daniel Frazier, Washington.

On the Tuscarora Gresham were Bird S. Coler and First Deputy Secretary of State Mongin. The latter will not be able to view the races Saturday, but will see those of next week.

RELIANCE THE FAVORITE.

Wall Street Estimates That $50,000 Was Bet on the Defender at Odds.

Two to one on Reliance, with one or two notated cases of two-and-a-half to one, was the cry in the Wall Street district yesterday, and before the yachts started there were not a few takers. Both curb brokers and members of the Stock Exchange placed bets large and small, and after the result of the day's sail was announced the brokers expressed it as their opinion that the odds on Reliance would be three to one or perhaps more than that for the next race.

F. H. Brooks of 7 Wall Street said late in the afternoon that he had received $20,000 to be bet on Reliance at two to one, but he thought his clients would agree to three to one after this. He had $10,000 to place on the Shamrock side, he said, at one to two or better. Referring to the bets he placed for the first sail, he said:

"The first bet I put up was $500 to $1,000, with Allen, McGraw & Co. of the Stock Exchange, but this was the only chance I got to take the Shamrock side, although I have more than a dozen telegrams from various parts of the country asking me to place bets that way. The wagers placed on Reliance were all at two to one."

On the curb the following were among the bets placed:

A. C. Gwynne, $1,000 on Shamrock, against Allen, McGraw & Co., $2,000 on Reliance.

William C. Moore, $2,000 on Reliance, against Thomas Tucker, $1,000 on Shamrock.

E. W. Gifford, $500 even on Shamrock to win one race, against G. Mullarkey.

F. K. Sleepy, $250 on Reliance, against William J. Gallagher, $100 on Shamrock.

Weeks Brothers, $1,000 on Reliance, against Charles Mimsheimer, $500 on Shamrock.

Allen, McGraw & Co., $1,250 on Shamrock, against a pool composed of Louis Livingston, Bacheler & Aiken, and Lawrence & Buckham, $2,500 on Reliance.

A. C. Gwynne, betting on Reliance, put up $500 against $100 of Mr. Forshheimer, of Lilienburg, Thalmann & Co.; $250 against $125 of R. W. Gifford, and $500 against $250 of Washington Content.

Floyd, Crawford & Co., $2,000 on Reliance against Frank Phillips, $1,000 on Shamrock.

Annes & Newman bet $1,000 to $500 on Reliance in the series, and $500 even that Shamrock would win a single race, Edward Wynne taking the Shamrock end.

It was estimated by brokers on the curb that at least $50,000 was placed on Reliance at two to one or better during the day, and one man said he was able to get only a few thousand of Shamrock money when he offered to bet any part of $100,000 on the American boat. The curb brokers, while they were placing their wagers and attending to a mild day's work in stocks, were almost directly under a couple of toy yachts which were being operated over Broad Street on wires during the race.

SOCIETY AT DRIFTING MATCH.

Private Yachts Which Followed the Racers and Those Who Were on Board.

Society turned out bravely yesterday for the first cup race. Many came from Newport, Bar Harbor, and other ports, and the East River was crowded with yachts which were anchored off the foot of Twenty-sixth Street. The departures for the races were made early. Owing to the crowded condition of the landing, many of the yachts received the guests of the day at other piers along the North and East Rivers and at Pier 1 at the Battery. Cabs, carriages, and motors were constantly depositing well-dressed men and women on the river front in localities which are seldom the scene of fashionable gatherings.

Some enthusiasts remained on their yachts all night. The North Star was anchored off Bay Ridge and Cornelius Vanderbilt went down the bay at an early hour on the tender Mirage to board her. The yachts left their anchorages between 9 and 10 o'clock. In the evening there were many dinners at the different fashionable restaurants.

"The American boat is a wonderful vessel," he said. "I think she will beat the Shamrock. It was too bad there was not sufficient wind to finish the race to-day."

Gen. Wheeler was just as enthusiastic a partisan of the Reliance.

WORRIED OVER MR. SHAW.

Secretary's Secretary Had a Wagon-load of Yacht Excursion Provisions and Missed His Superior.

Secretary Shaw, of the Treasury Department, was among those who saw the contest. He was to have gone down the bay on the Revenue Cutter Manhattan to meet the Onondaga at Tompkinsville. The other cutters left at 7 o'clock, but the Manhattan was held to wait for the Secretary, who could not be found.

Mr. Edwards, Secretary to Mr. Shaw, arrived at 8:45 o'clock with a wagon load of provisions and several waiters to care for the Secretary and his guests. He said that he had expected Mr. Shaw from Boston, but that his train had not arrived. Mr. Edwards left word for the Secretary to take the Staten Island Ferry and to hurry or the boat would go from Tompkinsville without him.

When the Secretary to the Secretary arrived at Tompkinsville he found his superior waiting for him there. He had arrived on an earlier train and had crossed to Staten Island. The Manhattan was notified and went about her assigned work somewhat late.

WAS SIR THOMAS'S PLAYMATE.

Mrs. Murphy, Here Seeking Sons, Romped with Him When He Was a Barefooted Boy.

Mrs. Katherine Murphy of Glasgow, Scotland, who says that as a child she used to play with Sir Thomas Lipton, has come to New York in search of two sons, whom she has not heard from in years. She is on Ellis Island now awaiting the result of a search being made for the sons by the Irish Immigrant Society.

Mrs. Murphy was a cabin passenger on the Anchor liner Columbia, that got in from Glasgow Sunday. She is not detained as an immigrant on Ellis Island, the authorities having thought that it would be a wise move to hold her as a sort of guest of the Government pending the location of one or both of her sons.

Mrs. Murphy is about sixty years old, and is the mother of eleven children, six of whom are living and two of whom, Michael and Thomas, she thinks are in New York. Thomas is said to be a printer, and yesterday afternoon Typographical Union No. 6, the members of which are assisting the Irish society in the search, reported that Thomas was occasionally employed on a newspaper in this city, where on inquiry it was said that his address was not known.

Speaking of her childhood and acquaintance with Sir Thomas Lipton, Mrs. Murphy, after saying that he was the ringleader in all the mischief in the little town near Glasgow where they were raised, continued:

"My father's name was Lindsay, and his house adjoined the grocery store kept by Sir Thomas's father. I used to play with Sir Thomas when he was a barefooted boy, and many are the lively romps we had together. He was about the most popular boy in the village, but none of us ever thought he would grow up to be the great man he is now. Everybody in Glasgow thinks the world and all of Sir Thomas, and to-day everybody over there wears shamrocks in his honor, I am sure."

Mrs. Murphy said she had not heard from her son, Thomas, in nine years. She has a small store in Glasgow, and came over to find her boys, and pay them a short visit.

Aboard the Steamer Gay Head.

The steamer Gay Head, which had been chartered by the Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht Club, left Pier 30, at the foot of West Twelfth Street, with a party of about 400 on board. The club had as guests members of the Corinthian Yacht Club of Philadelphia, Eastern Yacht Club of Massachusetts, and Beverly Yacht Club of Massachusetts. Walter C. Kerr and Daniel Bacon comprised the Committee of Arrangements.

Among those on board were: John Hyslop, ex-measurer of the New York Yacht Club; Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Anthony, Morgan Delano and party, Otto Ahlmann and party, Henry W. Eaton and party, W. H. Slayton and party, Ashton Lemoine, Townsend Cox, C. W. Wetmore, A. T. Mottant, C. A. Sherman, G. H. Stoddard, J. A. Donner, and C. H. Utley of the Eastern Yacht Club.

Gov. Odell Sees the Race.

Gov. Odell saw the race from the Alleen, which carried the Second Battalion of Naval Reserves. Adjutant General of New York State, Col. C. F. Williams of Albany, was his guest. When the Governor landed from the Alleen at the Battery, the yacht saluted with eighteen guns, as she steamed away for Governor's Island.

WOMAN CAPTURES SUSPECT.

Mrs. Williamson, Who Recently Caught Two Alleged Burglars, Again Distinguishes Herself.

Mrs. Jane Williamson, the agent for the apartment house at 65 East Ninety-third Street, was lauded by Magistrate Crane in the Harlem Police Court several months ago, for having caused the capture of two alleged burglars, again was praised by Magistrate Baker in the same court yesterday for her capture, single-handed, of a man suspected of attempted robbery.

The prisoner said he was James Hammil, of 340 West Forty-second Street. Mrs. Williamson said she heard some one trying to get into an apartment on the fourth floor on Wednesday afternoon, and found two men trying to break open the door. One of the men, she said, had a hammer and a chisel and he ran away at her approach. The other, Hammil, Mrs. Williamson said, she caught by the collar and shook until he was out of breath.

"What were you trying to do?" said Mrs. Williamson, who is a woman of large stature, to the man, who is undersized and thin.

"I—I—I was t—trying to call on an actor friend," the man managed to gasp out, and Mrs. Williamson handed him over to Policeman Gilligan of the East Eighty-eighth Street Station.

Hammil gave the same explanation to Magistrate Baker.

"There are no actors in my house," said Mrs. Williamson.

"You are a very brave woman," said Magistrate Baker, "but you should have waited until the man broke into the flat. As it is I shall change the charge to disorderly conduct and fine the prisoner $10. I think he received quite a lot of punishment as it was."

Hammil kept about six feet away from Mrs. Williamson while in court, and when being taken to a cell, he was unable to pay his fine, edged away from his captor as he passed her.

ALASKA TO MAKE A FIGHT.

Will Push Vigorous Campaign for Territorial Government at Next Session of Congress.

Special to The New York Times.

TACOMA, Wash., Aug. 20.—Alaska will make another energetic effort to secure a Territorial form of government during the coming session of Congress. A call for an all-Alaskan convention to be held at Juneau, Oct. 26, has been issued by the executive committee of the Territorial Convention held in that city two years ago. All Alaskan towns will be entitled to delegates in proportion to their population. Juneau will have ten delegates, with six each for Skagway, Dawson, and Treadwell. Ketchikan, Wrangel, and Valdez can send five delegates each. Every permanent settlement is entitled to at least one delegate, but no proxies will be admitted. The object of the convention is to unite on some plan of territorial government and submit it to Congress when the session opens. Alaskans count on the support of President Roosevelt, who has announced himself, both at Washington and while here in May, as favoring the extension of self-government to Alaska. Assistance is also promised from Senators Paterson, Nelson and Dillingham, who are now concluding their trip through Alaska.

BLOW TO WOULD-BE SETTLERS.

The Sioux Indians Refuse to Agree to the Opening of the Rosebud Reservation.

Special to The New York Times.

ROSEBUD INDIAN AGENCY, S. D., Aug. 20.—The Rosebud Reservation of the Sioux Indians will not be thrown open to settlement this year and hundreds of Eastern and Central farmers who had planned to come West and acquire a homestead on this body of land will be disappointed. There are hundreds of families camped around the boundaries of the reservation, awaiting the signal to enter, but these will be compelled to spend another Winter on the prairies, sheltered only by tents.

Some of these families have already been here two Winters. The Sioux have refused the terms of the Government and have left the council, returning to their homes. The "powwow" has come to an end, and there is no prospect of a successful end to the negotiations this Winter.

Major McLaughlin, the Government agent, arrived here two weeks ago, and called a council of the chiefs of the tribe. This has been held at the agency here, and was attended by several thousand Indians. Although the talking was done with the head men of the tribe, a majority of the braves must sign the contract before it becomes binding.

After Major McLaughlin had explained the offer to the Indians, he called for signatures to the treaty, but only a very few signed. The remaining ones immediately scattered over the reservation, failing to even break up the council formally. The land under consideration consists of nearly 500,000 acres of the choice land of South Dakota and is in Gregory County.

RESCUES AT ATLANTIC CITY.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 20.—A fishing launch was upset by the big breakers near the mouth of the inlet this evening. The boat sank immediately, but the men, Al Sooy and George Carlo, managed to get hold of the grating, which floated clear of the boat as it went down.

They clung to it for an hour before the Government life-savers were able to reach them in their surfboat. The men on the frail raft could be seen bobbing in the waves from the boardwalk, and until they were landed thousands watched the sight.

There was a high sea running to-day, and the life guards rescued no fewer than thirty-five persons during the day. Of this number, eighteen were pulled out of the hole which formed yesterday near the foot of New York Avenue. Although guards were stationed around the hole, it seemed impossible to keep people out of it.

MISSOURI SENATOR GUILTY.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Aug. 20.—State Senator William F. Sullivan, accused of soliciting a bribe for three votes on the Anti-Alum bill during the session of the Legislature last Winter, was found guilty this afternoon and his punishment fixed at $100 fine.

Steam Fishing Boat Goes Ashore.

The steam fishing boat Falcon of Greenport, L. I., while bound in from sea to Sandy Hook Bay, went ashore at 9:15 o'clock to-night on the point of Sandy Hook. The Captain of the vessel expects that she will get off at the next high water.

CONEY ISLAND DOG SCARE

Eighteen Fighting Collies Plunge, Snarling, Into Midst of Crowds.

Coney Island underwent a mad dog scare yesterday afternoon. The performances of a troupe of canine stars are the feature of the programme at one of the music halls that abound at the resort. In the intervals between exhibitions they are confined in an inclosure just outside the hall.

A pack of eighteen—all collies—were resting from their labors on the stage, yesterday afternoon, when two of the group broke out into quarrelous snarls, and an instant later were rolling all around the inclosure, madly snapping at each others' throats.

The prospect of a real dog fight warmed the sporting blood of the crowds that thronged the beach, and it was not long before the surrounding streets were black with people.

The two dogs were not allowed to have the fun all to themselves. The other dogs began to take sides in the spirited controversy and in a few minutes the wildest kind of riot was taking place behind the fence. They rushed and tugged and fought so violently that the fence gave way in time and the whole pack plunged into the midst of the crowd of spectators.

A wild stampede resulted. Women shrieked, children cried, men swore as they ran, falling on each other, for their lives—the dogs among them, as much frightened as they, tearing everything that came in contact with their vicious jaws. Some of the beasts seemed to have been made mad by the excitement, and fears of hydrophobia added to the terror of the fleeing crowd.

Every one had a story to tell of injury or hairbreadth escape when it was all over. Three had to be taken to the Coney Island Hospital to have lacerated arms and legs dressed and treated. They were George Yockes of 68 South Sixth Street, Brooklyn; Francis Merritt of 366 Park Avenue, Brooklyn, and an old man who, however, in a paroxysm of excitement, ran out again before his name could be taken.

Some of the dogs are still at large, and everybody is cautioned to look out for them "because they are mad."

BIG STORM UP THE STATE.

Railroads Have to Suspend Traffic Because of Washed-Out Roadbeds—Crops Damaged.

CORNING, N. Y., Aug. 20.—A terrific storm visited this section last night and did great damage, especially in the territory to the north and west of this city. Rain in torrents was accompanied by fierce electrical disturbances. All railroads passing through here are damaged badly. The Erie had a bad washout between here and Hornellsville, interrupting traffic all night. The New York Central was obliged to suspend traffic north of here until this morning because of a bady washed-out roadbed.

The Lackawanna suffered worst of all, and up to noon to-day had to send its passenger trains over the Erie from Elmira to Erwin. The freight traffic will not be resumed until night. The damage on the Lackawanna was caused by the bursting of a dyke in the west city limits, which flooded and undermined the track. About 1 o'clock this morning an east-bound freight train ran into the damaged track, and ten cars were wrecked.

Around Lake Keuka the damage to grapes and other crops was widespread, as hail accompanied the storm there. Four houses and barns along the lake were struck by lightning and burned. The telephone service about the lake was entirely shut off. At Watkins the livery stable of John Lockington was struck and burned to the ground. Reports continue to come in from the rural district of great damage to crops, and the carrying away of bridges and destruction of roads.

OUSTING THE WESTERN UNION.

Pennsylvania Road Preparing for Change on Western Lines—Increase in Telegraph Rates.

Beyond admitting that the Pennsylvania Railroad was preparing to have the Western Union Telegraph Company supplanted by the Postal along its western lines as soon as its contracts with the former should have expired, the officials of the two telegraph companies would not say anything yesterday about their plans in regard to the matter.

At the offices of the Western Union an official explained the recent increase in prices for messages between New York and nearby points. He said it was true that both his company and the Postal had begun to charge 25 cents instead of 20 cents to send ten words from here to Philadelphia, Newark, Yonkers and other cities not far away, but that the rate still remained 20 cents between here and Brooklyn or Jersey City. The reason for the increase, he explained, was that the companies had found it unprofitable to maintain the 20 cent rate, and that sum was less than the cost of sending the messages.

It was denied that the increase by the two companies was the result of an agreement.

Superintendent Holmes, of the Western Union's tariff department, denied that his company charges an extra fee for transferring a message to the Postal. He said that if any message was accepted for a town on the Postal's line, it was taken at the Postal's rate.

Terms of Seaboard Air Line Deal.

A Wall Street news agency has announced that Seaboard Air Line Railway interests received 200,000 shares of Rock Island common at 22 in exchange for 240,000 shares of Seaboard at 23, with the understanding that the stock was to be put up immediately. The bankers and brokers familiar with the arrangements between the two interests declined yesterday to affirm or deny the statement.

Mr. Wilgus's Workshop on Wheels.

A private car has just been brought out on the New York Central Railroad for Vice President Wilgus, known as Mr. Wilgus's workshop. The United States Light and Heating Company equipped the car with its system of car lighting, installing sixty-five incandescent lights and four fans. The light in this car, when all the lights are in use, is equivalent to the candle power of the reception room of the Waldorf-Astoria. It has attracted the attention of the railway officials and engineers all over the country.

Indians Visited by Hailstorms.

PERU, Ind., Aug. 20.—Southern Miami County and northern Fulton County were visited by remarkable hailstorms last evening, and thousands of acres of growing corn were completely ruined. What corn was not blown down was cut by the hailstones, some of which measured seven inches in circumference. Hail drifts were reported at Walnut, and for the distance of half a mile the fog after the storm was so dense that nothing could be seen fifty feet away. Some livestock was killed in the vicinity of Miami.

The Missouri Launched.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 20.—The Missouri, a sister ship of the Maine, built for the International Mercantile Marine Company, was successfully launched to-day at the Maryland Steel Company docks. A great crowd, including visitors from New York, Philadelphia, Washington, and Newport News, was present. The Missouri will be ready for her trial trip in three months.

The President's Son Goes Hunting.

OYSTER BAY, Aug. 20.—The President's son, Theodore, accompanied by George Roosevelt, a son of W. Emlen Roosevelt, has gone to Deadwood, S. D., on a hunting trip, and Jack Roosevelt, also a son of W. Emlen Roosevelt, has gone to Cody on a similar expedition.

Government Silver Purchase.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The Director of the Mint to-day purchased 180,000 ounces of silver for account of Philippine coinage at an average of 58.583 cents an ounce.

SAYS HE JUMPED BRIDGE

Negro Declares He Leaped from Williamsburg Structure.

Took Drop from Brooklyn Bridge Last Year—Feat for a Wager and to Win Back Wife's Love.

After publicly boasting that he was about to attempt the feat, and with a squad of policemen on either side of the river watching closely for him to appear, Frank C. Cody, a Brooklyn negro, climbed the Manhattan tower of the new Williamsburg Bridge at 6 o'clock last night and jumped, so he asserts, into the river from the middle span of the structure, a drop of about 140 feet, escaping unhurt. Cody declares that he made the big leap to win a wager and also to prove to the satisfaction of his white wife, from whom he is separated, that he is made of heroic stuff.

The only person who saw—or thinks he saw—Cody jump was the man who fished him from the river and dragged him into a rowboat. The police were disposed to throw doubt upon the negro's assertion, but they were unable to find anybody who could disprove it.

After being picked up Cody was rowed to the Brooklyn side of the river and taken to the Eastern District Hospital, where it was found that he was suffering merely from shock. Not so much as a bruise was found on his body. He will be able to leave the hospital in a day or two and will then be arraigned in the Lee Avenue Police Court to answer to a charge of attempting suicide.

From the story which the negro tells, however, it was not death, but glory and the love of his wife, which he sought in leaping into the East River. His manner of going about the thing was bold in the extreme, and there are several apparently strong reasons for the doubt in the minds of the police that the negro really made the jump. For one thing, they can't understand how it was possible under the circumstances for him to have made his way up to the bridge span without being detected. The following notice in reference to the affair was posted at Police Headquarters:

"Dave Kopelon, watchman, Mangin, Goerck and Lewis Streets, states he saw no person make an attempt to get on the bridge from where he was stationed. At 10 P. M. John Thompson, watchman on the tower of the new East River bridge, at the foot of Delancey Street, states he was on the tower at the roadway since 5 P. M., and is positive that no person had gained entrance to the tower on his side, and it would be impossible for any person to pass his post without being noticed."

A fleet of boats manned by the police was that Cody merely jumped into the river from a pier on the Manhattan side and swam out, pretending that he had leaped from the bridge. The negro stoutly insists that he eluded the watching police and made good his boast that he would make the jump. The police, he says, are chagrined because he managed to outwit them.

Cody, who is thirty-nine years old, and lives at 666 Atlantic Avenue, Brooklyn, is well known in that borough. He styles himself the "Champion of Tennis Player and Bridge Jumper of America." On Aug. 26 of last year he jumped from the Brooklyn Bridge and was unhurt.

Several years ago he married a white girl in the Brooklyn City Hall. She was the daughter of a letter carrier. The couple separated after a time, and since then Cody has been making ineffectual efforts to get his wife to return to him. His star play in this direction is bridge jumping. His theory is that this will show his wife and family how much he loves her and what desperate chances he is willing to take to be a hero in her eyes.

Cody strolled into the office of a Brooklyn newspaper yesterday morning and coolly announced that he intended to leap from the Williamsburg Bridge some time in the afternoon. He said that he was to make the jump on a wager and expected to clear about $3,500 if he lived. If he was killed the money was to be turned over to his wife, whom he still loved.

Cody's plan to leap from the bridge was published in the newspaper in the afternoon, and the police on both sides of the river arranged to head the negro off. A dozen policemen were stationed at the approach to the bridge in Brooklyn, and also at the base of the tower there. A like number of policemen were similarly posted on the Manhattan side of the structure. A close watch was kept for Cody, but he was not seen by any of the policemen.

About 6 o'clock Bernard O'Gara, of 200 John Street, Brooklyn, who was out on the river in a rowboat, looking for driftwood, found Cody floating in the water off the foot of Stanton Street, Manhattan. According to the story told by O'Gara last night, he thought he saw an object fall from the span of the bridge near the middle of the river. He gave no attention to it, however, and continued to look for driftwood. Suddenly he saw what he took to be a log floating near him, and, rowing over to it, was astonished to find that it was an apparently unconscious negro.

Cody recovered consciousness in a little while and told of making the jump.

"I climbed the bridge tower by means of the ladders and, reaching the roadway, concealed myself until the workmen quit work at 5 o'clock," he said. "Then I made my way out on the middle span of the structure and waited for a favorable opportunity to jump. I wanted some boats to be near to pick me up. About 6 o'clock a Sound steamer and two rowboats came along, and I aimed to jump between them. As they were passing under the bridge I jumped. I can remember turning over several times in the air in the descent, but my senses left me when I struck the water. I'm the first man to have jumped from the two East River bridges."

Cody declined to say who the men were who had wagered the money on the jump.

MONONGAHELA IN DANGER.

Close to a Reef in a Calm, the Training Ship Was Saved by Good Work of Apprentices.

NEWPORT, Aug. 20.—Confirmation was received to-night of the reported narrow escape from serious damage of the United States training ship Monongahela, as she was leaving this port yesterday. The Monongahela was under full spread of canvas when the wind suddenly shifted and fell calm. The vessel was close to Kettlebottom, in dangerous proximity to the reef off Castlehill. In the emergency Commander Wentz took personal command, and ordered boats taken aboard one of the ship's cutters and anchored to windward.

With part of her crew working on the kedge while the remainder worked the ship, the vessel was hauled away from her dangerous position. Three-fourths of the Monongahela's crew are naval apprentices, and therefore the feat is regarded here as quite remarkable.

ESCAPED IN NIGHT ROBES.

QUEBEC, Aug. 20.—Word was received here to-night that the steamer Carolina, which left here yesterday for Saguenay, went ashore at midnight in the Saguenay River, six miles from Tadousac. The steamer is half her length on rocks and at an angle of forty-five degrees. It is expected she will float with calm weather.

There were 317 passengers on board, principally Americans, and although some were landed on the rocks in the steamer's boats, the majority walked ashore in their night garb and suffered considerably from the cold and wind.

This morning a tug took the passengers to Tadousac. Many of them were wrapped in rugs and blankets, being unable to secure their clothing. Among the passengers is a party of seventy-five from the Pennsylvania Railroad.

HOTEL PROPRIETOR HURT.

C. A. Sheidy of the Hygeia at Atlantic City Found Unconscious Outside Hostelry.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 20.—Charles A. Sheidy, proprietor of the New Hygeia Hotel, at New York and Pacific Avennes, was found bleeding and unconscious on the sidewalk in front of his hotel at daylight this morning. His right hip is fractured, as are two ribs, and he is injured internally, besides being terribly bruised.

After being carried into his hotel Sheidy recovered consciousness, but was unable to tell how he came by his injuries. It is supposed that he fell from a second story window of the hotel, but there seems to be no explanation of the circumstances surrounding the accident. His condition this afternoon had become so serious that he was taken to the hospital.

SURF BATHER LACERATED.

Swept Under Coney Island Pier and Against Barbed Wire.

Stephen Reynolds of 130 Meserole Street, Brooklyn, was swept off his feet by a heavy surf, while bathing at the foot of West Eighteenth Street, Coney Island, yesterday, and, carried under the dock of Ravenhall's pavilion, found himself impaled by his left arm on a barbed-wire fence, set up there to protect bathers.

Because of the fierceness of the howling sea he was unable to release himself, and he was held a prisoner there, his arm being freshly jagged by the force of every sea swell for an hour.

A life guard finally heard his cries for help and took him off the hooks.

At the hospital Ambulance Surgeon Hall found that his arm had been badly lacerated.

The New Ready-to-Wear Felt Hats

They are nearly all in French felt and camel's-hair—soft, round, upturning sailors, chiefly; though toques, turbans and flares are numerous, too. Many are in the latest crush-back sailor style, becoming to most women. Great panne velvet sailors, severely trimmed, are very striking.

Quills, breasts, long wings, "Mercury" wings and pompons appear as trimming, combined in brand-new ways with fetching scarfs of silk.

The best models, we think, are those originated in our own workroom.

Altogether, in color and grace of style, the most admirable ready-to-wear hats that ever came with the Autumn.

People buy gloves with absolute confidence at WANAMAKER'S because they knew that when a glove goes wrong we make it good, promptly and cheerfully.

Today we place on sale all the gloves that have accumulated from this cause during the last few months. Some are ripped, some torn; but a few stitches will make them wearable, and except to sharp eyes, almost as good as new, perhaps.

The gloves are mostly black kidskin and lambskin, though there are white gloves, and a fair sprinkling of colored gloves.

All are marked at the one little price and that means rare picking. But we cannot take them back again, of course. Tenth street.

25 Cents a Pair

SALISBURY NEAR HIS END

Ex-Premier's Death May Be Expected at Any Moment.

He Is Suffering from Bright's Disease and Nervous Prostration—Accident Happened to Him Last Week.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—A bulletin issued at 10 o'clock last night said the Marquis of Salisbury's condition was critical, and there was little hope of his recovery.

Lord Salisbury is suffering from Bright's disease of the kidneys.

The end may be expected at any moment. Once in the course of last evening it was thought that the ex-Premier had already breathed his last, but he made a surprising rally, and at midnight it was announced that his condition had not changed since the issuance of the 10 o'clock bulletin.

Telegrams have been dispatched to the King, the Queen, and the Prince of Wales, acquainting them with the critical condition of Lord Salisbury.

It is not proposed to issue any further bulletin until this morning.

Viscount Cranborne, eldest son of Lord Salisbury, says his father was improving in health until last week, when a slight accident led to a recurrence of the complications from which he had been suffering, including marked weakness of the heart and circulation. The most serious element of his illness, however, is nervous prostration, which on several occasions has been acute.

The accident to which Lord Cranborne referred occurred under these circumstances: Lord Salisbury was asleep in a chair, when the arm on which he was leaning gave way and he fell heavily to the ground, receiving a severe shock.

EX-SULTAN OF SOKOTO SLAIN.

He and 700 Natives Killed in a Desperate Battle With a British Force.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—Dispatches received at the Colonial Office yesterday from Zungeru, Northern Nigeria, dated Aug. 17, give details of the destruction of the town of Burmi by a British force of 30 whites and 500 native rank and file.

The enemy's loss was 700 killed, including the ex-Sultan of Sokoto and a majority of the chiefs. The British loss was 11 men killed, including one officer, and 62 men wounded.

The enemy made a desperate house-to-house resistance.

The ancestors of the Sultan of Sokoto were among the great potentates of the world. They were the heads of the immense Fulah Empire, which, owing to the recent successful campaign under Sir Frederick Lugard, will in future be under British control. The City of Sokoto was occupied by the British last March 15 after a fierce skirmish. This, following the fall of Kano, placed 500,000 square miles of territory under the rule of the British. The population of this territory is estimated at no less than 20,000,000.

The Fulah Empire was founded by Othman Dan Fodio 100 years ago. He preached a religious war on the borders of Lake Chad, and, after subduing and converting the existing kingdoms, firmly established his sway at Sokoto. He bequeathed two empires to his sons. To the elder he left Sokoto itself, and to the younger Gando and its dependent States, which afterwards recognised the supremacy of the Great Fulah. Six years ago Sir George Goldie dealt a crushing blow to the Fulah by the defeat of the Emir of Nupe, the strongest and most warlike of the kingdoms tributary to Gando. The position of the Great Fulah was at that time compared to that of the Great Mogul during the decay of the Mohammedan Empire in India.

The Sultan of Sokoto followed the example of the Emir of Nupe and avoided a direct clash with the British, but he endeavored to incite the Fulah indirectly through native emissaries. A few months ago some Fulah chiefs formed an alliance with Great Britain, rejecting the advances of the French, which had begun to intrigue against the British, and the expedition under Sir Frederick Lugard followed.

Ralli, the premier and Foreign Minister, has communicated to the representatives of the Powers here the gist of reports made by Greek Consuls in Macedonia, in which it is stated that the Greek church and schools and 322 houses belonging to Greeks at Kilicherp have been blown up by dynamite and burned, and that a number of Greek subjects have been killed.

M. Ralli appeals to the Powers to terminate the anarchy in Macedonia, from which, he says, the Greeks are greater sufferers than the Bulgarians and Turks.

LONDON, Aug. 20.—As a result of communications exchanged between Ambassador Choate and the Foreign Office here, it is expected that when Foreign Secretary Lansdowne returns to London in the Autumn a treaty will be signed referring to arbitration the question of the ownership of the group of islands off the coast of Borneo claimed by both Great Britain and the United States.

The islands are not considered valuable, and there is no danger of friction on the subject of their ownership.

NAPLES, Aug. 20.—The eruption of Vesuvius has slightly decreased and the stream of lava which stretches in the direction of Pompeii has become hard at the edges. SENECA COUNTY POLITICS.

Delayed Reorganization of Republican County Committee to Take Place Saturday.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Aug. 20.—Deputy Secretary of State J. E. H. Mosgit has just returned from a visit to his home, County Seneca, where he went to pave the way for the meeting of the Republican County Committee on Saturday, when it will be reorganized. The reorganization should have taken place in December, but because of an internal strife several months have been allowed to lapse. At the meeting on Saturday Mr. Mosgit expects to be reelected Chairman of the County Committee. The Committee will call the County Convention then for the first week in September. Assemblyman Daniel W. Moran of Seneca Falls, who served in the Legislatures of 1902 and 1903, will, it is said, retire of his own volition, and John Crosby of the same place, it is said, will receive the nomination.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES Special Cablegram.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—A Belgrade telegram to the Neues Wiener Tagblatt, quoted by the Vienna correspondent of The Times, announces that King Peter has held a council of superior military officers and also a Cabinet council to consider Servia's attitude toward the Macedonian rising.

A NEW RUSSIAN SUGGESTION.

Semi-Official Port Arthur Paper Wants a Rapprochement With Great Britain.

BERLIN, Aug. 20.—A news agency dispatch from Port Arthur quotes an article in the semi-official Novkkrai, which says:

"The moment has come when, in view of the antagonism of German and British interests, an Anglo-Russian rapprochement is desirable, as a counterpoise to the movement in Germany and America, which is crossing the interests of Russia and Great Britain, and to the activity of Japan, who wishes to make the Straits of Korea a Yellow Bosphorus. At present Russian and British interests nowhere clash. An Anglo-Russian alliance is possible, and it is also necessary in order to protect Europe against the 'Yellow Danger.'"

The Novkkrai proceeds strongly to attack the Russian papers which urge Russia to wind up her affairs in Manchuria and which describe her policy in the Far East as a costly blunder.

A dispatch to the Cologne Gazette from St. Petersburg, dated yesterday, says:

"The situation in the Far East is becoming more acute. Even in Manchuria the Chinese are assuming an insolent attitude toward the Russians, particularly toward the troops. At one place stones were thrown at the commander of the troops. While all Russians are the objects of insult, a spirit of opposition to the Chinese Government is also manifested."

The Sultan declared that his insane son, since disinherited, was alone responsible for the outrage.

The Sultan of Bacaiod is reported as refortifying his various camps and demanding a substantial indemnity from the United States on account of war losses before he will tender his submission.

MINISTER BOWEN TALKS.

Says He Cannot Understand German Attacks on Baron von Sternberg.

BERLIN, Aug. 20.—The Loyal Anzeiger to-day published an interview with Herbert W. Bowen, the United States Minister to Venezuela, in the course of which Mr. Bowen is reported to have said that he did not regard it as peculiar that he should represent two countries before The Hague Tribunal.

"Neither does my Government," he said. "I go where I am sent, be it to the north pole. I take the part only of the weak against the strong. I cannot understand the attacks of the German press on Baron von Sternberg. I learned to know him as a clever diplomatist and an excellent upholder of German interests.

"It almost seems," Mr. Bowen is reported to have continued, "that the friendship that America feels for Baron von Sternberg is regarded in Germany as a sin."

James Speyer's Advice to Germans.

BERLIN, Aug. 20.—James Speyer, the New York banker, at the conclusion of a two-column interview on American financial conditions published in the Frankfort Zeitung to-day, is quoted as saying: "Germany has nothing to fear from American competition so long as the United States is prosperous. SAYS BRIDE SPANKED HIM

Grocer Seebed Ends Stormy Honeymoon by Appeal to the Police Court for Protection.

Because he was repeatedly spanked by his bride of five weeks, Samuel Seebed, a grocer thirty-five years old, of 92 Debevoise Street, Williamsburg, had her haled to the Ewen Street Police Court yesterday on a summons for assaulting him. Her name is Bessie and she is but twenty-one years old.

"Although," said Seebed as tears filled his eyes, "we have been married only a little over a month, my wife has taken great delight in beating me."

When the case was called it transpired that at the time of the couple's marriage Mrs. Seebed gave her husband $700 to start a grocery business, and according to her story all this money is gone. Mrs. Seebed admitted to Magistrate O'Reilly that she had chastised the man, and she said that the reason she did it was to get even with him because she had been unable to get back her money.

Seebed's face was scratched and contused and the Magistrate, after warning Mrs. Seebed against a continuation of her conduct, dismissed the summons.

THE HUNGARIANS' DEMANDS

Little Hope of a Speedy Solution of the Crisis.

Indications That No Military Concessions Will Be Made—Some of the Reforms Asked.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES Special Cablegram.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—Reports from Hungary, says the Vienna correspondent of The Times, are tinged with pessimism. It is freely asserted that Emperor Francis Joseph may have to return to Vienna to receive King Edward before much progress has been made toward a settlement of the crisis.

There are some indications, adds the correspondent, that no military concessions will be made to the Hungarians. If so the crisis may be prolonged for want of a statesman ready to take office.

It is stated that the concessions to national sentiment in military affairs which the Hungarian leaders are likely to demand include the following:

The Austro-Hungarian military authorities will be obliged to introduce or solemnly to promise the introduction of a series of changes calculated still further to differentiate the Hungarian from the Austrian army. Greater prominence will have to be given to the study of the Hungarian language in military academies. Hungarian will sooner or later have to be recognised as the military language beyond the Leitha, except, perhaps, in the very highest spheres, and the banners and other military emblems will require to be modified until they resemble the Austro-Hungarian banknotes, of which one side is printed in Hungarian alone, while the other side bears eight languages in addition to German.

It is believed that if Emperor Francis Joseph can see his way to grant these demands, and can find a statesman worthy of the royal confidence and at the same time acceptable to the Hungarian Parliament for a Cabinet, a truce or peace will rapidly be restored and will last until new national demands can be formulated.

Two names are prominently suggested for the vacant Premiership, those of the ex-Premier, Dr. Wekerle, and of the President of the Chamber, Count Albert Apponyi. Either could form a Cabinet, but a combination of the two would cover the situation, as the one would counterbalance the drawbacks associated with the other. Dr. Wekerle, as author of the politico-ecclesiastical laws, is unwelcome to the Clericals, while Count Apponyi's Clericism causes the sturdier Liberals to regard the possibility of his advent with misgiving. Both are sound Nationalists—Dr. Wekerle having spoken frankly to the Crown on the subject of national concessions during the last crisis, and Count Apponyi having taken a great part in the creation of the present deadlock.

The principal object of the Emperor's visit to Hungary is to form a Cabinet.

CABMEN IN MURDEROUS FIGHT.

Negro "Night Hawk" Slashes White Rival Fourteen Times in the Abdomen.

Michael Lynch, thirty years old, of 418 West Thirty-first Street, is lying at the New York Hospital with fourteen knife gashes in his abdomen, and John Brown, a twenty-four-year-old colored man, of 210 West Twenty-seventh Street, is under $1,000 bail to answer a charge of having inflicted the wounds.

The men are rival "nighthawk" cabmen, who keep an eye open particularly for the patronage of the habitués of the Haymarket, at Sixth Avenue and Thirtieth Street.

When a man and young woman stepped to the sidewalk early yesterday morning, Lynch and Brown both "scented" a fare and made a rush for them. Lynch, first at hand, was ordered to drive his cab up.

When he returned at 2 o'clock Brown was in an ugly humor. There were words, and in a few minutes a "mix-up" that delighted the half-drunken crowd that poured from the dance halls all about.

Finally, Brown, still fighting with one hand, opened his jackknife with the aid of his teeth and began slashing right and left at his rival's front.

Lynch fell limp to the sidewalk when the knife had been plunged into his abdomen fourteen times, and the surrounding crowd, numbering 200, it is said, made a rush for the colored man, with yells of "Lynch the nigger!" He was saved from violence by the opportune arrival of the police and hustled to the police station.

Hospital Physician Thorne has little hope of Lynch's recovery.

REFUSED TO PAY CABMAN.

Wealthy Mrs. Harris of Brooklyn Also Damaged Vehicle and Was Haled to Court.

When Mrs. Jennie Harris of 242 Covert Street, Williamsburg, who is reputed to be very wealthy, was arraigned yesterday in the Ewen Street Police Court on a charge of malicious mischief, a strange story was disclosed.

Edward G. Maher of 416 East Seventy-seventh Street, Manhattan, had caused the arrest of the woman. He was in front of the Morton House Wednesday when Mrs. Harris got into his cab and told him to take her home. She was to pay him $3.50 and also pay the ferriage. He asserted that on reaching her house she refused to give him more than $2, and after leaving her he discovered that the interior of the cab had been badly damaged, draperies having been pulled down and wantonly destroyed.

Unable to obtain redress from her he caused her arrest. Before the case was called in court yesterday Mrs. Harris's husband settled with Maher and the latter went away. This angered Magistrate O'Reilly to such an extent that he refused to dismiss the case, and in adjourning it until Monday he issued a summons for the cabman.

Were from Cook Exploring Party.

A letter from Dr. F. A. Cook, the explorer, who is on his way with a party to attempt the ascent of Mount McKinley, Alaska, has been received by H. L. Bridgman of Brooklyn. The letter is dated at Keechtna River, July 15. Dr. Cook writes that the members of the party have made good progress, and have traveled about one-third of the way to the mountain from Tyonek, at the head of Cook Inlet. The worst part of the country has been crossed, and Dr. Cook sees no reason why the summit of Mount McKinley should not be reached.

Ocean Excursion on the Plymouth.

The steamer Plymouth of the Fall River line, now engaged in yacht race service, will on next Sunday make a trip out on the Atlantic Ocean leaving Pier 18, N. R., at 11 a. M. and returning to the city at about 5 o'clock in the evening.

BIG SWINDLE CHARGED.

Twenty-two New York Agents of Rochester Concern Combine to Prosecute.

Twenty-two victims of an alleged new swindling game convened yesterday in the office of J. O. Wright, at 394 Broadway, and decided to prosecute, both criminally and civilly, if possible, the officers of the Colonial Silverware Company for obtaining from them money under false pretenses.

The Colonial Silverware Company belongs in Rochester, N. Y., and its officers are: Alonzon Galloway, President; William C. White, Vice President, and H. S. Braman, Secretary and Treasurer. The manner in which they conducted their operations is as follows: Advertisements were inserted in periodicals saying that they desired a number of "sole" representatives in the different towns and cities of the country, and that they would pay them a salary of $1,040 yearly. To obtain this the applicant must come to the Rochester office and pay a fee of $50, for which he received that amount of so-called silverware—which, it is claimed by the complainants, is really only worth $5—and also his credentials. Then he was expected to go forth and sell the goods and receive the salary for so doing.

The scheme worked very well in this city, and so far about twenty-two men have been victimized, and, it is said, several women. Several "sole" representatives got together in Mr. Wright's office, elected him Chairman of the proceedings, and decided to prosecute.

In Rochester last Tuesday, William H. Doty, who called himself a "special agent" for the Colonial Silverware Company, was arrested on complaint of William H. Hayes of Schenectady, who had been victimized and had paid his $50 to Doty, who, he claims, had received the greater part of the money. There are six Directors of the company, and these include the chief officers.

Abraham Oberstein of 500 Broadway has been retained to prosecute them, and will confer with the District Attorney to see what means may be taken to recover the money paid them. It is said in Rochester that they have all left the town, and the police have been unable to find them.

PUBLIC SCHOOL ATHLETES.

Exhibition Drill Preliminary to Big Competition for Prizes.

Several of the vacation playground classes, under the supervision of the Board of Education, gave an exhibition drill in Public School No. 165, on One Hundred and Fifth Street, near Second Avenue, yesterday afternoon. The participants were boys and girls under sixteen years of age, presenting themselves in classes from Schools Nos. 27, 78, 108, 168, 99, and 159.

The exhibition included a fancy march, wand drill and dance, dumbbell drill, extension drill, free-hand drill, exhibitions on parallel and horizontal bars, jumping contest, and other gymnastic feats.

The exhibition of yesterday was merely a competition among the scholars of the up-town schools for the right to compete in a more public exhibition which is to take place on Thursday next in the playground at Second Avenue and Sixty-sixth Street. Great prizes for gymnastic prowess, from the children's point of view, are to be awarded at that time.

Besides the exhibition at School No. 165, there was a similar one at Public School No. 109, at Second Avenue and Ninety-ninth Street, where also a number of classes exhibited their skill and their claim to be admitted to the public drill on Thursday next.

Although yesterday's affair was of this preliminary character merely, the schools in which the drills were had were crowded to the utmost capacity of the drillroom. Particularly was this true of School No. 165, where the friends and playmates of the participating children yelled themselves hoarse in approval of the various members. Both the boys and girls appeared in neat and comfortable gymnasium suits, the girls in white, their school being designated only in the color of the ribbons which they wore.

The vacation playground work for the Board of Education is under the supervision of Miss E. B. Whitney. She, as well as Supervisor J. T. Gwathmey, was present to see the drill.

MRS. GALLATIN SEEKS DIVORCE.

Referee Appointed in Suit Following Romantic Marriage.

Justice McCall of the Supreme Court yesterday appointed Thomas F. Donnelly as referee to take testimony in the suit for absolute divorce of Mrs. James Nicholson Gallatin against her husband, James Nicholson Gallatin.

The Gallatins eloped, were married in this city on June 19, 1902, and were apparently a happy couple until they went to Europe in July of the same year. While in the Highlands of Scotland, what was described as a "trivial quarrel" led to a separation, and the wife returned to the home of her mother, Mrs. David Monroe Cory, at the Park Avenue Hotel. Her husband called at the hotel several times, but his wife refused to receive him.

James Nicholson Gallatin is a grandson of Albert Gallatin, once Secretary of the Treasury, and the founder of the Gallatin National Bank. His wife was Miss Pauline M. Cory, a member of the Mendowbrook set, and rich in her own right.

Troops Didn't Get Bad Meat.

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 20.—A special military commission of the National Guard of New Jersey has been investigating the origin of a story circulated during the occupation of the camp at Sea Girt this Summer, that bad meat was furnished the troops. It is said that the story has been traced to a Lieutenant of the Guard in Jersey City, and there is a rumor that he has a prospect of receiving a dishonorable discharge.

EX-NAVAL LIEUTENANT OWEN UNDER ARREST

Charged With Forging Name of S. B. Elkins, Jr., to Checks.

Cashiered Officer Procured Money at Fifth Avenue Hotel—Believed to Have Impersonated Mr. Elkins in Chicago.

Alfred Crosby Owen, ex-Lieutenant of the United States Navy, who was dismissed from the service last December for various offenses unbecoming an officer, was locked up in Police Headquarters yesterday afternoon, formally charged with forging the name of Stephen B. Elkins, Jr., to checks at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, and also accused by the police of being the man who recently impersonated young Elkins in Chicago. As far as the New York Detective Bureau is aware, this is the first arrest of the ex-Lieutenant, who claims descent from a good family and was at one time well known in society circles of Washington, D. C., and other cities.

So many stories were told to the police last night about the movements of their prisoner within the last week that it was impossible to extract from the mass of contradictory facts exactly what he has done, or, to quote a detective, "whom he has done." It is known, however, that he appeared in the Waldorf-Astoria last Saturday, which was the day after dispatches from Chicago told how a suave stranger had got hold of a lot of money by playing the part of the son of Senator Stephen B. Elkins of West Virginia. Another fact that is established is that he was arrested in the same hotel yesterday by Detective Sergeants Flannery and Cain, together with Detective Mulholland of the Fifth Avenue Hotel and Detective Joseph Smith of the Waldorf. In the interval he had swindled the Fifth Avenue, so the management of that hotel charged, out of $5, which he collected with a check signed "S. B. Elkins, Jr.," and drawn on the Elkins National Bank of Elkins, West Va.

According to Capt. Langan of the Detective Bureau ex-Lieut. Owen, when he registered at the Waldorf-Astoria on Saturday, engaged a handsome suite of rooms and got a clerk to cash a check for $50 on the Elkins Bank. He registered as "T. D. Elkins," and signed that name to the check, said the Captain, but the rooms remained unoccupied, and the hotel people saw nothing of him for several days.

The next positive information as to his movements comes from Cashier Lloyd of the Fifth Avenue Hotel. Night before last a well dressed man entered that hotel and registered as Stephen B. Elkins, Jr. The clerk at the desk, not knowing young Elkins, suspected nothing. He noticed that the newcomer was stylishly dressed, measured about six feet in height, had brown hair, a rather handsome face, and exhibited the best of manners. The only thing peculiar about him was a scar on his forehead.

After having been assigned to a room the new guest sent a message to Dr. Finch, the hotel physician, who lives at 9 West Twenty-fourth Street. The doctor said last night that he received word that "Lieut. Owen" wanted to see him, and as he once knew a naval officer of that name he hastened to the hotel—only to discover that it was not the Lieutenant he had known years ago. He gave a prescription and left. When he heard how Owen had registered as Elkins he could not explain why the man sent him the former name. The messenger was not to be found at the hotel last night.

Early yesterday morning Cashier Lloyd, having returned to his desk in the interval, Owen approached him and asked for a blank check. Just a moment before Mr. Lloyd had been reading about the Chicago impersonator of young Elkins, and had wondered, upon looking over the register, if this guest was a fraud. When he saw the stranger sign the name "S. B. Elkins, Jr.," his suspicions grew.

"I'm afraid I can't cash that, Mr. Elkins," he said.

"Why not?" responded the other indignantly. "I am a son of Senator Elkins, and my check is good anywhere."

"Well," said the cashier, "I know Senator Elkins well, and I don't know you."

After the man had walked away in apparent rage Mr. Lloyd discovered that a check for $3 had been passed on a clerk the night before. Calling Detective Mulholland he asked him to take the first check up to the Waldorf and make inquiries.

"I was at the Waldorf for six years myself," explained the cashier last night, "and I know the Elkinses always stayed there."

Mulholland found Detective Smith of the Waldorf and Manager Little, and soon they had traced up a few doings of Mr. Owen. Smith, who knew the man by sight, then accompanied Mulholland back to the Fifth Avenue, where they found their man seemingly not much exercised over his predicament, and willing to return with them to the Waldorf. Mulholland said last night that Owen had been drinking heavily.

The two Central Office detectives were reached by telephone, and the ex-Lieutenant was arrested quietly in the Waldorf office, where, according to his captors, he confessed to passing worthless checks, but denied having played the Elkins game out in Chicago. He told them he was a great friend of the Elkins family and that it was all a mistake. Then they took him to the Jefferson Market Court, whence he was remanded to Headquarters for twenty-four hours.

Capt. Langan said last night that after reaching Headquarters the prisoner denied all the charges against him and declared a great mistake had been made, although admitting that he was dismissed from the navy last December for failure to pay his debts and for absence without leave. A dispatch from Annapolis supplemented this information with the statement that Alfred Crosby Owen, having entered the Naval Academy in 1893, was graduated in 1897. The dispatch said, further, that the young man, whose age was now twenty-eight, had served as Ensign on the battleship Iowa, and later on the New York, Castine, and Massachusetts, reaching the grade of Lieutenant before his dismissal.

Owen told the police that he was a native of Brazil. His family moved to the United States many years ago, he said, and since his boyhood he had lived in Washington, D. C.

"What is your occupation?" was asked.

"Gentleman," he replied.

At the Waldorf Manager Little said last night that it was a mistake to say Owen had got any cash on checks, but that he had tried to do so.

"Two or three nights ago," said Mr. Little, "he wanted me to give him fifty dollars on a check signed 'T. D. Elkins,' but I refused to do so. Around here he first impressed us as being a man of parts, but our suspicions finally were aroused by his drinking, and by the haste with which he demanded this $50. Nobody here ever saw him before until last week, and I have not heard of any previous swindling by him in New York."

ADDICKS SUED FOR FRAUD.

Senator Allee of Delaware Also Defendant in Suit Brought by Bay State Gas Receiver.

WILMINGTON, Del., Aug. 20.—In the United States Circuit Court to-day George Wharton Pepper, of Philadelphia, receiver of the Bay State Gas Company, of Delaware, filed a bill of complaint against J. Edward Addicks, United States Senator J. Frank Allee and others, directors of the company, alleging fraud in connection with a transaction involving the stock of the company, said to be valued at $75,000,000.

The bill charges the defendant directors with entering into an unlawful combination to issue to Addicks 1,500,000 shares of stock of the Bay State Gas Company without consideration.

The bill further asks that Addicks be ordered to deliver to the receiver for cancellation certificates for the 1,500,000 shares of stock, that an accounting be made of the damages and loss sustained by the Bay State Gas Company in consequence of the alleged fraudulent and unlawful issue of stock and that the defendants be ordered to pay an amount equivalent to the alleged damage and loss. The defendants are required to appear and make answer on the first Monday of November.

The stock is alleged to have been transferred on July 8, 1902. The bill alleges that the stock was not issued direct to Addicks but to another man presumably on the order of Addicks. The allegation is made that the stock was issued to Edwin M. Post, a New York broker, who is alleged to have been in the employ of Addicks to sell the stock. It is further set forth that of the 375,000,000 of stock Addicks is believed to still control a large portion.

RECEIVER FOR TEXAS BANK.

Examiner Logan to Act for Citizens' National of Beaumont, Closed Wednesday.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The examination of the Citizens' National Bank of Beaumont, Texas, which was closed yesterday, by National Bank Examiner J. M. Logan and a committee of the Clearing House Association, showed estimated losses amounting to $220,000, and doubtful items $40,000. Examiner Logan has been appointed receiver.

The failure of the bank, it is stated, due to the large loans made to the President, R. Oliver, and enterprises in which he is interested.

The resources and liabilities of the bank on June 9, 1903, as shown by the report of condition made to the Controller of the Currency on that date, were as follows:

Resources—Loans and discounts $385,811; United States bonds to secure circulation $25,000; stocks, securities, claims, etc., $12,740; real estate owned $15,594; due from banks and bankers $140,530; cash and cash items $19,780; total $599,757.

Liabilities—Capital stock $100,000; surplus fund and undivided profit $36,241; circulation $25,000; due to banks and bankers $436,511; individual deposits $402,006; total $599,757.

BEAUMONT, Tex., Aug. 20.—All banks except the Citizens' opened for business as usual to-day. There was no run on them and it is not believed that any other institution will be affected. Local merchants as a rule had no account with the Citizens'. The capital of the bank is absorbed in the failure, and about $150,000 in assets is involved, part of which represents the savings of poor people.

EXODUS OF CHICAGO FIRMS.

It Is Being Threatened on Account of Constant Labor Troubles.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—An exodus of manufacturers and other business men is threatened from Chicago on account of labor troubles. Already a number of concerns that furnished employment to hundreds of hands have left.

The cause is not altogether because of the strikes, but owing to the fact that in some cases unions have placed the employers in a position where they cannot compete with surrounding towns on account of the higher wage scales demanded here.

This is the case with Rand, McNally & Co., which may be forced to seek another location. Negotiations are now pending with parties in Waukegan for the purchase of a site, and if relief is not secured the plant will be moved. This one change will deprive 1,000 workingmen of this city of a means of livelihood and take away from Chicago one of the largest publishing houses in the world.

Secretary T. C. Haynes of the company was averse to discussing the causes that led to the new plan. "It is true," he said, "we have been considering moving to Waukegan. It is not altogether on account of labor troubles, but they have had bearing on the case. Business interests have suffered a great deal from the constant labor agitation, and Chicago seems to be strike ridden."

FINED FOR KILLING A CAT.

Defendant Had Employed Shooting, Stabbing, Drowning, and General Assault.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., Aug. 20.—Frank O'Neill of Netcong was to-day fined five dollars and costs by Justice Stillwell for killing a cat. The complaint was made by the Morris County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. The witnesses against O'Neill were Mrs. Austin King and her brother Howard Kryser. The cat was killed on May 1, but the case only came to trial to-day.

According to the story told in court O'Neill had a hard job to get rid of the cat. He first thought shooting was the quickest way to rid the neighborhood of the animal, so he shot it. The cat was wounded and ran in under a porch. O'Neill got it out and jabbed the tines of a pitchfork through it, but that did not effect the purpose, so he carried the animal on the tines to a brook and immersed it.

After holding it down so long he thought it must be dead he drew it out and pulled the body from the tines, but there was still signs of life, so he tied the animal by the tail and, swinging it about, dashed its brains out against the ground. The $5 fine and the costs made it cost O'Neill $12.14.

LIEUT. COL. KELLEY MISSING.

Officer of Missouri National Guard Disappears—Accounts Straight.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 20.—Schuyler C. Kelley, Lieutenant Colonel of the Third Regiment, Missouri National Guard, has been mysteriously missing from his home in this city since Wednesday morning. His wife joined a party to-day in a search along the river bottoms for the missing man, but found no trace of him.

Kelley is known to have carried a large sum of money. He was clerk of the Police Court and handled $25,000 of the city's money in the course of a year. An investigation of his books shows his accounts to be straight and it is known that he owes the city nothing.

HITCHCOCK IN DENIAL. TALKS OF "RASCALITY"

Says No Complaint Has Been Sent to the President.

But an Interior Department Official Says They Have Been Sent and a Copy Is Now on File in Department.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The statement that charges made by the Mayor of Lawton, Oklahoma, and bearing the official seal of that city, against Secretary Hitchcock in connection with the deposit of town moneys in certain banks, had been sent to the President, was denounced by Secretary Hitchcock to-day as an absolute falsehood.

"I do not know of any charges by the Mayor of Lawton or any other city, or any other person anywhere, that correspond to the charges described in THE TIMES to-day," said the Secretary to-day. "There are no such charges in existence to my knowledge, and any statement that there are such charges is absolutely false. Every dollar received from the sale of lots in the towns of Lawton, Anadarko, and Hobart was deposited in the United States Sub-Treasury in St. Louis, and not in banks.

"The fact of the matter is that Congress authorized the expenditure for public improvements—for bridges, county buildings, jails, and water works—of moneys derived from town lots. After the opening of the lands to settlement, County Commissioners were appointed provisionally by Gov. Jennings, who were to administer the affairs of the three new counties up to January, 1903, or until it could be determined who the legal voters of the counties were and the basis for the election of new Commissioners effected. The provisional Commissioners proposed, without any drawn plans, a scheme of water works that was wholly unsatisfactory, because there was not a sufficient supply of water, and I refused to spend the money as the Commissioners asked to have it done.

"We have found all sorts of wholesale rascality down there. Bills for public works have been sent on here, and we sent Inspectors to look over the work represented to be performed, and found that it had not been done satisfactorily. In one case a contractor sent in a bill and employed a man to get his bill paid by me, and we found that the work in question had not been done at all, and we had the United States District Attorney proceed against the contractor for attempted bribery, and he is to-day a fugitive from justice.

"There are over 100 bridges in those counties, and we found that rotten piles had been used and that mud had been thrown in behind the stonework, and we would not pay a dollar on those bridges. There has been so much rascality there that we have had to protect the Government from all sorts of fraud. The hydrographers of the Geological Survey have been at work for the past four months making a thorough report on the possibilities of good and sufficient water supply for Lawton, and when their report is made we shall know what can be done.

"The proposition sent on by the Commissioners would have cost $250,000, and called for conducting the supply a distance of seventeen miles. The water would have cost what it required for mere protection, but was not suitable for the people to drink. I do not know what source of supply will be found sufficient or appropriate.

"The Geological Survey will determine that, and when they do the contract will be secured by proper advertisement, and it will be let to the lowest bidder. In the case where the contractor fled, the contract had been let to the highest bidder. There has been either gross negligence or fraud on the part of the County Commissioners."

As to the main point of Secretary Hitchcock's statement, his denial of the existence of the charges referred to, it seems said that the charges are in existence as described; that they were sent to the President several weeks ago, and were sent to the Secretary of the Interior, and were placed on file in the department. This is known on the authority of a prominent official of the department, who has read the charges.

This official states that the Mayor of Lawton charged that the town-lot moneys are deposited in banks owned by friends of the Secretary, but the names of the banks are not given. It is plain from Mr. Hitchcock's statement to-day that he has not seen the charges.

Secretary Hitchcock received a letter recently from Gov. Ferguson, the present Executive of Oklahoma, explaining the state of feeling in the new counties, and saying that the newspaper attacks were made for political purposes. The Governor urged that the new towns were sorely in need of water works, both from a sanitary standpoint and also for protection from fire. It in part explains the bitterness shown by the citizens of the towns when it is known they claim that the town-lot money belongs to the towns, and that when the County Commissioners want work done a bill the Secretary should pay it, and has no discretion in regard to it.

The Secretary in his annual report has stated the amount of moneys that have come into his hands from the sale of town lots in the towns in question, and that he has deposited them in the United States Sub-Treasury in St. Louis to the credit of the Secretary of the Interior as Trustee of the town sites in question.

IT'S THE MINNESOTA IDEA.

Republican Says That State Will Go Further Than Iowa in Demand for Tariff Revision.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—In the contest for the Republican nomination for Congress in the First Minnesota District last year Mr. Tawney was opposed by State Senator T. v. Knatvold, a pronounced advocate of revision of the tariff. Mr. Tawney is a member of the Ways and Means Committee and in the last Congress favored the proposition of Mr. Babcock, also a member of that committee, for tariff revision. Mr. Tawney defeated Mr. Knatvold for the nomination and was elected to the Fifty-eighth Congress. Mr. Knatvold, who is visiting Washington, said in conversation this evening that he could see no encouragement for tariff revision by the Fifty-eighth Congress, nor could he see anything encouraging in the outlook for securing reciprocity. "I believe," said he, "that the people of the West who favor tariff modification must make the fight in the next National Republican Convention. I am certain that Minnesota will declare for tariff revision on lumber, steel and other commodities. We will probably go further and be more specific than the Iowa Idea. The great fight will be for leadership in the Committee on Resolutions of the National Convention.

"We fully understand the attitude of our Eastern Republican brethren who are classed as 'Stand Patters.' But we shall make a fight for tariff reform and it will be in line in every county organization in the North Star State next year. We take the position that no party can stand still, and we take no stock in the 'let well enough alone' policy. The Democratic Party has suffered defeat after defeat through its obstinate perverseness. There is a demand among the business interests and among the farmers for changes in the tariff. We are for the protective policy where it is needed to build up an industry, but we will not stand for a protection that is not needed and is only maintained at the behests of concentrated and consolidated capital."

Change for Army Appointments.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Before leaving Washington Secretary Root issued an order directing that the highest honor men from the six leading colleges where army officers are detailed as military instructors shall be eligible to appointment as Second Lieutenants in the army.

Big Clambake at Rye Beach.

PORT CHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 20.—One of the largest clambakes ever held at Rye Beach was that of the James S. Merritt Association of this place, which occurred to-day. Besides the local men, every politician in the county attended. Although Mr. Merritt is the Republican nominee for Sheriff of the county, the Democrats turned out in large numbers, and among 300 men from New York were Noah Rich, Timothy D. Sullivan, Thomas Garvey, Thomas Maher, and Thomas Jordan. Each of the towns in the county was represented by delegations ranging from 100 or more down to a dozen. In all about 1,200 took part. State Senator Walsh of Connecticut was one of the guests.

LITTAUER OPPOSES SNELL.

Wants Gov. Odell to Recall His Appointment as Warden of Napanoch Reformatory.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Aug. 20.—It is now said that the conference between ex-Congressman John M. Stewart of Amsterdam and ex-Senator Hobart Krum of Schoharie with Mr. Platt in New York on Sunday had great bearing on the appointment of Jacob Snell, the Republican boss of Montgomery, as agent and Warden of the Eastern New York Reformatory at Napanoch. The friends of Mr. Snell openly assert that the announcement of the appointment, which it is believed was made before Gov. Odell's Western trip, is being held up, and they lay the blame at the door of Congressman Lucius N. Littauer of Gloversville. A close friend of Congressman Littauer declared yesterday that the designation of Mr. Snell as agent and Warden would be revoked by Gov. Odell in retaliation for the action of Mr. Platt against Mr. Littauer relative to the investigation of the glove contracts and for interfering in the Twenty-fifth Congressional District in the interest of Mr. Stewart for Congress. Mr. Littauer in such his in his denunciation of Mr. Snell and the Platt Republicans of his district in particular, and is doing everything in his power to sidetrack Snell. Should Snell retire as the Republican leader, the Platt men feel that it would give Littauer more power in Montgomery County. This they want to avoid.

STOLEN BONDS FOUND.

Hotel Proprietor at Glace Bay Has Preachers' Aid Society Securities Taken by Treasurer Allen.

BOSTON, Aug. 20.—The police of this city have confirmed a report received here last night that certain bonds supposed to have been stolen by Willard S. Allen, the defaulting treasurer of the Methodist Preachers' Aid Society, had been discovered in a valise in the possession of Michael Nolan, a hotel proprietor at Glace Bay, C. B.

The report was not believed by the police at first, but a telegram was sent to Halifax and at noon a reply was received at headquarters saying that Landlord Nolan had a valise containing bonds thought to be those of the Preachers' Aid Society, which he was holding until some one could reach Glace Bay to identify them.

A member of the police force will start from here at once bearing the numbers of the missing securities.

THE ACCUSED TOMBS GUARD.

Sheriff Ends Inquiry Into a Bail Incident with $100 in It for Some One.

Sheriff William J. O'Brien yesterday concluded his investigation into the charges made against Deputy Sheriff Ferdinand C. Von Deesten by Ernest Mont of 320 Broadway.

Mont and William Gerken were prisoners in the Tombs in April last, while Von Deesten was a guard there, and Mont accused the guard of having taken $100 from him to obtain the release of himself and Gerken on bail.

Gerken was bailed by John Bunz, his uncle, and Bunz testified that he received Mont's check for $50 for doing so. Gerken took the check to him, and the two divided the proceeds between them. Von Deesten admitted, in his statement, that it was through his effort that Bunz went surety for his nephew.

"I would have bailed him without the money," Bunz explained, "but my nephew told me Mont would pay $50, and I thought I might as well have the money."

Von Deesten then interested himself in realising Mont, who was still in jail. He went, he said yesterday, to Jacob Hawk, a Leonard Street butcher, and persuaded him to act as bondsman for a $50 bonus. But Mont, after his release, sent him, according to Von Deesten, only $25. Von Deesten admitted that he carried the $25 to Hawk.

Sheriff O'Brien will announce his conclusions hereafter.

BOARD OF CONCILIATION

Decides to Hold Its Next Session in New York—Deadlocked on All Questions But One.

POTTSVILLE, Penn., Aug. 20.—The Board of Conciliation at the conclusion of its meeting here to-night decided to hold its next session in New York, on Aug. 25, 26, and 27. Umpire Carroll D. Wright has signified his intention to be present at those meetings.

The board was deadlocked to-day on every important question except the complaint of the engineers of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company that they were not receiving the bonus as awarded by the commission. This complaint was not sustained.

NEGROES ATTEMPT HOLD-UP.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 20.—Raymond Phillips, driver of a milk wagon for Benjamin Satterthwaite, a Lawrence Township farmer, had a thrilling experience early this morning with two negro highwaymen, who attacked him at a secluded point on the Brunswick Pike where that thoroughfare passes through the woods near the Shabbakong Creek.

The negroes, who were masks, sprang suddenly out from behind the bushes, one of them grabbing the horse by the bridle. The other made for Phillips with a big knife. Phillips quickly drew a revolver and opened fire, shooting one of the highwaymen in the leg. With the flight of the negroes he proceeded to Trenton and served his milk route.

Orange Democrats Make Peace.

Special to The New York Times.

ORANGE, N. J., Aug. 20.—The biggest political factional fight in the history of Orange has been settled, and the two Democratic factions that have been at war for several years past, or since the late Laurence T. Fell retired from politics at the expiration of his term as Mayor, have made peace. A harmony meeting was held last night at which the breach was closed. The indications now are that there will not be much excitement in the contest in the Democratic ranks for membership in the County Committee in Orange, but because of the Lentz-Gibson fight the Republicans look for plenty of excitement.

Big Chemical Works Burned.

CAMDEN, N. J., Aug. 20.—Fire to-night destroyed the works of the General Chemical Company in this city. The loss is estimated at over $300,000. The amount of the insurance cannot be learned, as that is cared for at the general office in New York City. The flames for a time threatened to communicate with the big tanks of the Standard Oil Company close by, and as the fire threatened to spread in other directions help was asked for from Philadelphia, and several engines and other apparatus were hurried across the river. With this aid the fire was kept in the Chemical Company's works.

Runaway Trotter Drove Dead.

Alarmed by a passing trolley car, Bessie C., Charles Ozz's record trotter, kicked the runabout she was drawing into fragments at Neptune and Coney Island Avenues, Coney Island, last night, but had scarcely freed herself from the traces before she dropped dead in the roadway. Mr. Ozz was found to have escaped with slight injuries when taken to his home on the Ocean Boulevard.

Chicago Lawyer Missing.

FRUITBELT, Mich., Aug. 20.—Albert W. Barnum, a Chicago lawyer, who has a Summer house at Castle Air Point, on Walloon Lake, is missing and it is believed he has been drowned. Barnum was last seen alive by a guide, who assisted him to a boat in order that he might row across the lake. It is thought strange that some trace of Barnum can not be found and the guide is positive that the man has been lost in the lake.

FUSIONISTS OUT FOR LOW

M. Linn Bruce Unqualifiedly Favors Mayor's Renomination.

Worse Than Foolish to do Otherwise, He Says—John H. Kelly of Sheehan Democracy Promises Support of that Faction.

Two important Fusion declarations for the renomination of Seth Low for Mayor were made yesterday. M. Linn Bruce, the President of the Republican County Committee, came out unqualifiedly for the renomination of the present Mayor and at the same time declared that neither John C. Sheehan, Jacob A. Cantor, nor any other man could carry the Greater New York Democracy back into the Tammany Hall organization even if they were so disposed, and he was equally emphatic in saying that he did not believe they were so disposed. He said that he firmly believed all of the elements that went to make up the Fusion support of Mayor Low in 1901 would be found at his back in the coming campaign.

"To refuse to renominate Mayor Low would be to repudiate the present administration," declared Mr. Bruce. "Gov. Odell and I had a talk yesterday, and we both agreed that the outlook for Fusion is exceedingly bright, and the Governor is not disposed to be a rainbow chaser. All this talk of breaks in the Fusion ranks is nonsense, and the renomination of Mr. Low will not be opposed by our anti-Tammany allies.

"Mr. Low is the logical candidate for the office and I think that he will be placed in nomination after the Democrats have had their say, for we must make the fight on the record of his administration, and if he will accept a renomination it would be nothing more than right to give it to him. In fact it would be worse than foolish to do otherwise.

"Both the Greater New York Democracy and the German-American Reform Union will back him in the fight, I believe. The Greater New York Democracy cannot be led away by any one man or any group of men, and after looking over the field I have come to the conclusion that the Fusion ticket will have their unqualified backing.

"There always is some wrangling among the independent elements, but it is not a bad indication by any means, and it shows that all parties concerned are most interested in the success of the ticket. The coming fight, however, will be a hard one, a very hard one, and nobody counts on a walkover. Tammany has been on the 'outs' for a year and a half, and is hungry, and they too, the 'outs' always put up a hard fight to regain power.

"It will not do to underrate the strength of Tammany Hall, but I am confident that by working hard from now until November we can elect the Fusion ticket with Seth Low at its head."

During the day one of the Fusion conference committeemen, representing the Greater New York Democracy, also declared for Low for Mayor. He was John H. Kelly, who said that "while he would like to see an Independent Democrat nominated, he did not believe that the Conference Committee would do anything to take Mayor Low out of the race.

"And when Mayor Low is renominated," said Mr. Kelly, "he will receive the hearty indorsement and the unqualified support of all the members of the Greater New York Democracy, from John C. Sheehan and Jacob A. Cantor down."

Charles F. Murphy, the leader of Tammany Hall, had a few facetious remarks to make yesterday concerning the operation of Herman Ridder of the German-American Reform Union to the candidacy of George B. McClellan for Mayor, and also of Mr. Ridder's kinder remarks towards the candidacy of Louis F. Haffen, Borough President of the Bronx.

"Mr. Ridder would not say anything against Haffen because he could not say anything against a German, did he," said Mr. Murphy with a smile. "He says he will be opposed to a German—McClellan! He was born in Germany, was he not?"

This was a poser for a few minutes until the wise ones cooked the matter up and found that Congressman McClellan was born in Dresden, Saxony, while his father and mother were spending a considerable time in Germany. The Tammany Chieftain had as much fun over the joke as anybody.

GOV. ODELL TO SEE PRESIDENT.

Goes to Oyster Bay to Discuss the General Republican Situation.

Gov. Odell, who was in town again last night with Lieut. Commander Fitz, will leave this morning for Oyster Bay on the Alleen, the State Naval Militia training ship, on which he witnessed the yacht races yesterday in company with Secretary Reuben L. Fox of the Republican State Committee; James G. Graham, the Secretary to the Governor; Adjt. Gen. Nelson H. Henry, Justice W. W. Goodrich of the Supreme Court, and Capt. Fanshaw of the Second Battalion, Naval Militia.

The Governor is to meet President Roosevelt to-day and will go over the general situation in the others at Oyster Bay in the State in particular during the Conference. Both the Governor and the President are desirous of ascertaining the views of one another on current political matters, not the least of which is the situation in New York city and the chances of bringing about an election for Fusion with a Republican at the head of the ticket, thus strengthening the party in the National election to come.

During his entire trip through the West Gov. Odell scrupulously refrained from giving any hint of his choice for the Presidential nomination next year, and now on his return the Governor is desirous of ascertaining what foundation there is to the circulated report that the President is desirous of having Elihu Root's name put at the head of the ticket for Governor here next year. This matter is of the greatest importance to Gov. Odell, who has been planning to succeed himself at the next State election.

The naval militia boat will remain at Oyster Bay during the conference between President and Governor, and then will bring the Governor back to town. On Saturday the Executive again will see the yacht races off the Alleen, accompanied by practically the same party as was on board the boat yesterday.

TRYING TO OUST SEXTON.

Democrats who are fighting the leadership of John B. Sexton in the Tammany organization of the Nineteenth Assembly District held a big meeting last night under the auspices of the Mahopac Club at Tenth Avenue and Sixty-second Street. The meeting was held on the corner in front of the clubhouse and a big banner for Philip A. Morrison for leader in the district was raised.

The speakers of the evening included Mr. Morrison, Bimsell, Thomas H. Monagan, George J. Nicholson, John Simpson, and Percy D. Elliott. Sexton was denounced in unmeasured terms for what was styled his maladministration of the district leadership. The fight in this district, which is a three-cornered one, is getting very warm. Morrison is fighting not only Sexton, but also James J. Hagan, ex-Warden of the Tombs, who until recently was a Sexton lieutenant, but who now is seeking the leadership.

Last year there was a Democratic enrollment in the district amounting to 4,165, but less than half of the enrolled Democrats took part in the primaries, in which 1,924 votes were cast for Sexton and 784 for Joseph V. Kehoe, who was fighting him. This year the enrollment is 4,800, and, with a three-cornered fight, it is likely that more than 2,000 votes will be cast at the Sept. 15 primaries.

Republican State Committee Meeting.

Col. George W. Dunn, the Chairman of the Republican State Committee, last night issued the call for the meeting of the Republican State Committee at the Fifth Avenue Hotel on Sept. 8 to nominate a candidate for Judge of the Court of Appeals, which is the only office to be filled at the coming State election. At this meeting the committee will nominate Judge Denis O'Brien, a Democrat, from Watertown, and is now completing the term for which he was elected fourteen years ago. Prior to the meeting of the Republican committee the Democratic State Committee will meet and will select Judge O'Brien in the field against Judge Haight and then the Republican leaders will believe, it having been practically agreed that both parties will unite on his candidacy.

G. A. R. ELECTS BLACK

Ex-Pension Commissioner Made Commander-in-Chief.

Next Encampment to be in Boston—Prohibition of Baseball on Memorial Day Suggested.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20.—The Grand Army of the Republic to-day elected the following officers:

Commander in Chief—Gen. JOHN C. BLACK of Illinois.

Senior Vice Commander—Col. C. MASON KEENE of California.

Surgeon in Chief—GEORGE A. HARMON of Ohio.

Chaplain in Chief—WINFIELD SCOTT of Arizona.

Gen. Black was nominated by Past Department Commander Lawler of Illinois. Under suspension of the rules, Gen. Black was elected by acclamation.

Boston was selected as the place at which the encampment of 1904 will be held.

Comrade Kimball of the City of Washington, presented a report on the subject of claims of veterans for preference in public service, and a resolution was adopted asking the President to issue an executive order granting this preference to veterans and for making of an order by giving preference to veterans on the labor roll of the executive departments.

The encampment opened this morning at the Grand Opera House. Commander in Chief Thomas J. Stewart and the other officers read their annual reports. The Quartermaster, Charles Burrows, said in his report:

"I am able to show an increase in the grand total cash balance of $2,347.36, while the inventory of supplies on hand is only $377.70 less than at the last report, being a net increase of your treasury of $1,969.66 for eleven months, with an estimated amount due for per capita tax of $500. In response to the appeal in General Order No. 3 for aid in such of our comrades as suffered from the floods in the district of Kansas I received from 200 posts and individuals the sum of $5,020, which I have forwarded to the Department Commander, A. W. Smith."

The Chaplain in Chief, D. B. Shuey, said in his report:

"There is a growing danger that some will use Memorial Day as a holiday in the sense of pleasure, and thus lose sight of its sacred significance. Baseball games and all kinds of amusements ought to be prohibited on that day, and every effort should be made by municipal authorities and others to prevent its desecration."

The report of Inspector General F. A. Walsh contained the following figures:

Number of posts, 6,711, a loss of 5; members in good standing, 336,106, a loss of 9,102; aggregate of post relief funds, $360,380, an increase of $7,183; aggregate expenditure by posts for relief, $136,066, a decrease of $06,618. The post Quartermasters and trustees have on hand $104,878. The value of the property owned by the posts is $1,816,100.

In the course of the session Gen. Miles was called to the stand to make a speech. The General said, in part:

"This is one of the most enjoyable events of my life. There is no company more dear to me than that of the brave men who saved this Nation. It is an inspiration to the people of this country to see their heroes moving from every quarter of this country to this grand reunion, and it has been an inspiration, a revelation, and a consolation to you to realize that this is our country, saved by your valor, fortitude, and sacrifices.

"Never was a war so desperately fought, never was there a war with such sacrifices, never a war ended so gloriously. When men who had fought out for the principles that they believed to be right, the hands of brave men were clasped, and they were brought home again, and henceforth and forever they will be one nation from ocean to ocean, and from the lakes to the gulf."

Gen. Miles will be called to meet an engagement in New Hampshire, Aug. 26.

John Charles Black, lawyer, and the first Democratic Commissioner of Pensions, was born in Lexington, Miss., on Jan. 21, 1839. He was educated in the common schools of Danville, Ill., and at Wabash College. He served in the civil war, rising from private to Brigadier General. He was Commissioner of Pensions from 1885 to 1889, under President Cleveland, and Congressman at large from Illinois from 1893 to 1895. From 1897 to 1899 he was United States Attorney for the Northern District of Illinois.

KILLED AT A CROSSING.

Two of Five Painters in a Wagon That Is Struck by a Train Lose Their Lives.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Aug. 20.—A wagon in which five painters were riding was struck by a train at the Erie Railroad crossing near the Chestnut Hill Station to-day, and two of the occupants of the vehicle, Joseph Jay and Harry Stienaker, his cousin, both of Montclair, were killed. Their companions jumped from the wagon, but two of them were injured by their fall.

The train had been up the road clearing up a wreck of last night and was returning to Jersey City at an enormous rate of speed. The engineer applied the emergency brake, but could not bring the train to a stop short of Bloomfield, a mile away.

The railroad tracks run through a deep cut at Chestnut Hill, and the road leading to the station and across the tracks winds down a steep hill and makes a sharp turn immediately upon the tracks. It could not be learned whether the occupants of the wagon failed to hear the approaching train or whether the horse was unable to hold the wagon in its descent.

Mr. Jay's father was murdered by robbers in his home at Cedar Grove recently.

CAVE-IN AT DURYEA, PENN.

Occurred at Night and Residents Thought It an Earthquake.

Special to The New York Times.

WILKESBARRE, Penn., Aug. 20.—A cave-in, which swept down in the mines thousands of tons of culm, occurred at the mining town of Duryea, near here, early this morning, and so shook the town that the residents thought it was an earthquake. The houses were shaken and people ran into the night with little clothing on. So severe was the shock that few returned to their homes until daylight showed them the extent of the damage.

The cave-in was over the old workings of the Hallsteed mine, which has not been operated since the strikes. And there is a hole to be so last there is fear of further cave-ins, and guards have been posted for the night.

PHILADELPHIA WOMAN KILLED.

Fatal Runaway Accident at Ludlow Village, New York.

ITHACA, Aug. 20.—Mrs. Lodeman Stoughton of Philadelphia was instantly killed and her sister, Miss Mix, seriously injured while driving to the Lehigh Valley Railroad station at Ludlow Village to-day. Mrs. Mortimer Hillery, a daughter of Mrs. Stoughton, was driving the horse when it became unmanageable, and threw the three occupants out of the buggy. Mrs. Hillery escaped injury. Mrs. Stoughton and Miss Mix were returning to their home in Philadelphia.

No Second Trials for Policemen.

Corporation Counsel Rives sent an opinion to Commissioner Greene yesterday relative to the case of Patrolman James Langan, who, having been discharged after trial before Deputy Commissioner Davis on a charge of intoxication, asked to have the trial reopened. The Corporation Counsel said that it would "not be wise to sit again after an official and judicial act of a previous date." Commissioner Greene announced that this decision will be followed hereafter, and no case will be reopened or second trial given.

NEGROES WHO SUCCEEDED

National Business League Holds an Experience Meeting.

Colored Men Who Have Prospered in Trade Tell Nashville Gathering of Their Beginnings—Fine Exhibit of Work and Art.

Special to The New York Times.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 20.—A large audience listened to-day to addresses made before the National Negro Business League by Fred A. Moore of Brooklyn, N. Y., whose subject was "The Advantage of Building and Loan Associations"; James R. Hamm and Thomas W. Patrick of Boston, William Emmanuel of Chicago, E. L. Harris of St. Louis, Dr. Samuel A. Elbert of Wilmington, Del.; J. H. Smythe of Hanover, Va., and others. After the morning session had ended the delegates were given a barbecue at Greenwood Park, situated four miles from the city, and following the night session the visiting doctors, dentists, and pharmacists were the guests of the Negro Medical Congress of Tennessee.

The medical congress was formed here to-day with a good membership and during the meeting appropriate remarks were made by physicians from other States. Dr. J. A. Lester of Nashville was elected President. The chief officers of the congress are all natives of Tennessee—born, reared and educated within the confines of the State. President Lester, who was educated at Fisk University, took his medical course at Meharry College and has served as Secretary of the negro branch of the Y. M. C. A. in St. Louis, and assistant professor of agriculture in Alcorn Agricultural and Mechanical College for Negroes in Mississippi. He has for several years been a member of the Meharry College Faculty.

Some striking instances of how various lines of business were built up were brought out by several of the delegates who spoke before the league to-day.

F. T. Evans, the mattress manufacturer, of New Orleans, said: "I started in business with $60, working by hand, afterward with horse power. Business prospered, and during the last year $25,000 passed through the bank. We employ twenty-five hands."

Edward Berry of Athens, Ala., discussed the hotel business. He said that he was running a hotel for the people, not white or black, but for all the people. "Our race," said he, "are the best white people who come to the City of Athens."

Whitney, the negro produce dealer, of Nashville, stated that during the past six months he had shipped $100,000 worth of produce. He was asked many questions, and said that he was "the first man in Nashville to ship produce to Havana, Cuba."

Eugene H. Boone, who it noted as the third negro merchant in Mississippi, told how he began with a little grocery store with five. In addition to a successful business he now owns a building worth $15,000.

R. R. Standard of Selma, Ala., Principal of the colored public schools and a large coal and wood dealer, is one of the prominent men of the league. He began business ago as a very small capital and to-day has one of the largest and best-kept businesses among the colored men in his State. He reports the friendliest relations existing between the races in his city. "Conduct a business on a fair and legitimate basis," said he, "and you will receive your share of trade from the whites as well as from those of your own color."

Under the auspices of the league a fine exhibit of work and art, the most of which was done by local people, is being made. The exhibit covers a wide range and demonstrates what has been done by the negroes in professions and workmanship. They are divided into departments, each having a person in charge of it. In the business department are shown the following: Undertaking, shirt and dress goods, millinery, carriage and wagon manufacturing, harnessmaking, patent medicines, photography, sheetmaking, organs, pianos, church furniture, and creamery works. An elaborate display of the publishing business is shown, and is one of great merit. Not only do they print periodicals, but do book work and in first-class style.

In every way the exhibit is a credit to the negro race, and one that speaks well for them and their capabilities.

TURFMAN H. I. SCOGGAN DEAD.

He Was Racing Partner of "Sam" Bryant and Owned Proctor Knott.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 20.—Hiram J. Scoggan, the well-known turfman, died this morning at the residence of his nephew, Mr. Lee Jones. Death was due to stomach trouble. The funeral will take place to-morrow.

Hiram Scoggan was the surviving brother of the once famous Kentucky racing firm, the Scoggan brothers, who for about ten years were prominent as breeders and turfmen. The brothers first attracted attention in the East in 1880 as the racing partners of the late Samuel Bryant, who trained the horses of the stable, including the great gelding Proctor Knott, winner of the first Futurity Stakes at the Sheepshead Bay track in 1881, after a sensational finish with Galen and Spendthrift. The Scoggans were the wealthy horse and mule dealers in Louisville, that year bought a half-interest in Proctor Knott, and later secured full possession, and in 1880 had one of the strongest stables in the West.

They also conducted a breeding farm near Louisville, but were only moderately successful as breeders. The firm continued to race as the Scoggan brothers until the death of John Scoggan, half a dozen years ago. Since that time Hiram Scoggan has raced alone on a modest scale. Aside from Proctor Knott, the best-known horses that the Scoggans owned were the blind race mare Irene and the two successful stakes horses, a Kentucky Derby winner, Alarm, and Dr. Rice, winner of the Brooklyn Handicap.

Cycling Champions to Meet.

At Manhattan Beach to-morrow three more big cycling championships are to be decided, besides an amateur and professional handicap, and there is every reason to expect the contests to develop into stirring finishes. One of the events—the two-thirds of a mile National circuit championship—will have for starters all the prominent stars, including Lawson, Kramer, McFarland, and Penn qualify in their heats, all will start in the final, which then should result in one of the best races ever witnessed. Lawson now leads Kramer by one point in the championship race. The successful race will give the winner ten points, and though it will by no means decide the championship, it will give the rider a good lead. The one-half-mile and five-mile National amateur championships are also to be decided.

Prizes for Brooklyn A. C. Games.

The prizes offered by the Brooklyn Athletic Club for the games to be held at Montevideo's Grand Street Park, Grand Street, Maspeth, L. I., on Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 7, are worth striving for. A gold monogram watch will be given to the winner of each event, a silver die medal to the second man, and a bronze medal for third prize. In addition to these, there will be a silver cup to the club scoring the largest number of points. The entries close on Monday, Aug. 31, with John A. Schofield, 374 Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn, and Thomas A. Chase, 25 John Street, Manhattan.

ENGLISH GOLFER'S RECORD

J. A. T. Bramston Surpassed Best Scores on Chicago Links.

Noted Player of Oxford-Cambridge Team Won Two Cups in Homewood Club's Tourney.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—J. A. T. Bramston, premier gutta percha ball golfer of the Oxford-Cambridge golf team, celebrated the last day of the Englishmen's Western trip at the Homewood Country Club's links by winning two silver cups and breaking all competition and practice records of the course. He captured the trophies in the first medal score event the Britons have played in since their arrival, making a total of 75 strokes, two strokes lower than the second cup-winning score of his Oxonian team mate, H. W. Beveridge, who made 77.

Several Chicago golfers who played in the competition made good scores, but had little chance with the best of the Britons. None of the latter ever saw the Homewood Course until to-day, and they had to be coached to keep them from overplaying some holes.

Bramston's record was the more remarkable because it was made with the hard ball. All the other players used the rubber-cored ball. A. J. Christie, the local professional, held the record—78, and Louis N. James and G. F. Clingman tied this season with 77 for the amateur record. Bramston's card, 1 under bogey, follows:

Out 4-4-4-4-4-4-4-3-37
In .....4-4-4-4-4-4-4-3-38—75

After a topped drive for his start, Beveridge made the first hole in bogey 4, went out in 37, and ruined his chances for the main cup by a 7 on the sixteenth hole by an unfortunate brassey shot from a bad lie, totaling two strokes more than Bramston. Blistering sunrays and a fresh breeze bothered some of the visitors. Capt. Low had 39-44-83; P. W. Leathart, after making 39 for the first time, took 41 to come in, and H. G. B. Ellis, playing with R. F. Mundy, turned in a 78. Ranson, Alison, and Day were troubled by the sun and made 87, 84, and 88 respectively. Jerome Hunter played steadily, but was unable to run down many long putts, and got 38 for the first nine and 40 coming home. This total of 78 gave him third honors. Mansfield Hunter turned the course in two 40's. Mundy, who twice played against the Englishmen at match play, made a 40 and a 39—79, which was the best of the American's scores. G. F. Clingman totaled 81. Bramston's home club at Winchester, England, will have the custody of the $300 main cup for one year, when it is returned for annual competition at Homewood. The other cup is the Briton's personal property. It is not likely that any golfer will attempt to equal Bramston's record with a gutta-percha ball, and the mark will stand indefinitely. A large crowd was out, but many of the invited American golfers did not appear, and the day's sport took on the nature of an informal event. Capt. Low and all of his team left early in the evening for their Eastern itinerary.

ITALIAN LABORER MURDERED.

Special to The New York Times.

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., Aug. 20.—The murder of an Italian laborer was committed by two of his fellow-countrymen at the Englewood Golf Club grounds Wednesday evening.

It appears that Giuseppe Marino and Salvatore Calabrieco had a grudge against Tony Dominico because of his prominence over them, which caused their discharge. Marino and Calabrieco, one armed with a shotgun and the other with a revolver, came to Englewood from Newark Wednesday in search of Dominico. The shotgun was discharged within two feet of Dominico, tearing his head to pieces. The assassins attempted to escape by way of Hackensack, but were captured and are now lodged in jail. There were a number of Italian witnesses, but all of them have forgotten what little English they ever knew and the Italian they talk is untranslatable.

JERSEY CITY ELECTIONS.

New Legal Definition of "District" Will Cause Candidates Trouble.

City Clerk Michael J. O'Donnell of Jersey City yesterday gave the politicians a surprise by deciding that the word "district" in the new election law must be held to mean "polling district" and not "ward," its meaning as accepted by the public. The law says that all candidates for nomination to be voted for at the primaries must file petitions signed by ten voters of each district.

The decision will not seriously affect ward candidates, but candidates for Mayor and other city offices will be put to considerable trouble, for the reason that there are 168 polling districts in the city and they will therefore have to secure 1,680 signatures. Had the word ward been used in the law they would only need 120 signatures, there being but 12 wards in the city.

EXPLOSION IN A FLAT.

Some One Lighted a Match in Gas-Filled Apartment.

Just as the tenants of the six-story apartment house at 238 East Fifty-eighth Street were going to sleep last night a loud report, followed by the fall of glass and the house shaking, brought them in a panic to the landings in their nightgowns under the impression that the house was falling. After a mad rush to the front hall, they gathered and rubbed their sleepy eyes and waited for further developments.

None came, but Policeman Sheehan of the East Fifty-first Street Station arrived on a run, having heard the report.

Investigating, he found that every gas jet in a vacant flat on the fifth floor had been blown out, and there was a smell of gas in the flat.

In the kitchen of the flat, he found that there was a leak in the pipe attached to the gas range. The policeman said someone entered the flat with a lighted match. The flat being filled with gas, an explosion ensued.

Schrieber was appointed postmaster during President Buchanan's administration in 1859, and served continuously for forty-four years.

New York and Pittsburg Divided Honors in a Double Header.

Brooklyn Was Winner from Chicago After a Close Contest—Standing in Two League Races.

New York and Pittsburg divided the honors in yesterday's double header at the Polo Grounds, as each won and lost a game. The teams will play two games at the same place this afternoon. Brooklyn won a close game from Chicago at Washington Park, the score being 2 to 1.

After a long interval, owing to the fatal accident on their own grounds two weeks ago, the Philadelphia Nationals reappeared on the diamond. They played against the St. Louis team on the Philadelphia American League Club's grounds, and were defeated by the score of 8 to 5.

The Greater New York team lost some ground in the American League pennant race, as they only broke even with the St. Louis players in a double header, while the Detroit nine won two games from the Athletics of Philadelphia. The Detroit and Greater New York teams are now tied for fourth position, Cleveland won easily from Washington, and Chicago beat Boston 9 to 5.

Following are the scores of the games in the National and American Leagues, respectively:

New York, 12; Pittsburg, 2.
Pittsburg, 6; New York, 1 (2d game.)
Brooklyn, 2; Chicago, 1.
St. Louis, 5; Philadelphia, 8.

New York, 0; St. Louis, 1.
St. Louis, 4; New York, 6. (2d game.)
Detroit, 8; Philadelphia, 4.
Detroit, 1; Phila., 4. (2d game.)
Cleveland, 7; Washington, 1.
Chicago, 9; Boston, 5.

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

New York and Pittsburg Broke Even in Double Header at Polo Grounds.

Wretched fielding by the Pittsburg champions in the opening inning of the first game of yesterday's double header at the Polo Grounds gave New York such a decided advantage that the local men had no difficulty in winning the final score being 12 to 2. There was a marked difference in the work of the visitors in the second contest, as they gave Philippi excellent support, with one exception. Had it not been for Leach's wild throw in the third inning, Philippi would have shut out McGraw's men. This error, however, gave Bowerman an opportunity to reach third base, from which he scored New York's single tally on a fly to the outfield.

Matheweson could not locate the plate at the opening of the earlier game. Beaumont getting a base on balls, but the next three men, Clarke, Leach, and Wagner, were retired in quick order on flies to the outfield. Browne, the first man up in New York's half, struck out. Bresnahan singled to left and stole second. McGraw's fly was misjudged by Bohring, and a single by Mertes scored both runners. Babb hit to Wagner, but Bitchey dropped the throw and both men were safe. Branefield dropped Doheny's throw of Lauder's bunt, filling the bases, and Dunn forced Mertes at the plate.

Branefield fumbled Bowerman's grounder and Babb scored. Leach's wild throw of Matheweson's hit let Lauder and Dunn in with two more runs, Bowerman going to third. Browne hit to Leach and the fielder made another error, on which Bowerman got home. Matheweson scored on a wild pitch, but Browne was caught trying to steal to third, and this retired the side.

Pittsburg scored three times in the fourth inning, a base on balls to Ritchey being the starter. Bohring filed to Lauder, but Phelps was safe on Matheweson's fumble, and Ritchey scored on Doheny's single. Beaumont scored Phelps with a safe hit, but Wagner forced Doheny. Leach singled, scoring Beaumont, and Wagner filed to Bowerman. New York got two more runs in the latter half of this inning and added another in the fifth, following up with three in the sixth. Meanwhile the visitors tallied twice in the fifth, and the last two runs made in the game by Pittsburg in the eighth inning, the final score being 12 to 2 in New York's favor.

The second game was begun after a brief interval, with Philippi opposing Taylor. No runs were made in the first two innings, but each side tallied once in the third. In this inning Philippi was first up and struck out. Beaumont beat out a bunt and Clarke got a base on balls. Leach singled over second, scoring Beaumont. Bresnahan caught Wagner's long drive and Leach went to second on the throw in, but was then dismissed the side by a nice catch off Branefield. Bowerman hit to Leach, but the latter threw the ball high over Branefield's head and Bowerman went on to third on the error. Taylor hit a high fly to Bohring, which the latter caught, and Bowerman tried to score on a safe hit to left field. Browne was caught stealing, Smith to Wagner, and Bresnahan got a base on balls, but McGann filed to Branefield.

In the fifth Pittsburg won the game, scoring three runs, the last tallies of the contest. Bresnahan caught Beaumont's fly and then Clarke drove the ball over the right field ropes for a home run. Leach filed to Bresnahan, but Wagner beat out a bunt and scored on Branefield's two-bagger to left centre. Lauder fumbled Ritchey's hard drive and Bohring single, passing the same fielder, scoring Branefield. Mertes made a fine running catch of Philippi's fly alone in the left foul line. The scores:

BROOKLYN, 2; CHICAGO, 1.

In a pitchers' battle marked by fast and accurate fielding the Brooklyn baseball team defeated the Chicago nine by the close score of 2 to 1 at Washington Park yesterday. Reidy and Menefee were the rival pitchers, and there was little to choose between them. Reidy was the steadier, and gave but one base on balls, while Menefee passed three men on first base. The home pitcher struck out two men and Menefee only one. Both were hit frequently, but the local men bunched their hits off the visiting pitcher in two innings, the first and seventh, scoring a run in each, while the Chicago batsmen tallied just once in the sixth inning on three singles and a sacrifice.

The fielding was too sharp for run getting, and some remarkably good plays were made, the most prominent being a fine running catch by Dobbs off Kling in the sixth inning and Kling's good catch of McCreery's foul fly close to the grand stand in the same inning. Chance objected to a decision made by the umpire in the eighth inning, and Moran put him out of the game, Raub taking his place at first base.

In the first inning singles by Strang, Dobbs, and Dahlen gave Brooklyn a run, and the second and winning tally was scored in the seventh inning on Jordan's two-bagger to right, Reidy's out at first, and Sheckard's single. The visitors made their only run in the sixth inning. Slagle singled to left and Casey beat out an infield hit. Chance sacrificed, advancing both men a base each, and after Jones had been dismissed by Doyle, unassisted, Slagle scored on Tinker's safe hit to left field. The score:

TENNIS CHAMPIONS MEET

National Tournament at Newport Carried into Fifth Round.

English Players Took Posts of Honor in Contest of Experts on Casino Courts.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 20.—With the great double matches out of the way the tennis players to-day gave their undivided attention to the singles. This event of the National championship tournament was carried into the fifth round. Two of the Englishmen were given the post of honor on the champion court before the grand stand in the morning session. The inevitable result followed, Harry L. Doherty defeating Richard Stevens in straight sets by the score of 6—4, 6—2, 6—2. Harold Mahony won against H. G. Dering, of the British Embassy, at 7—5, 6—1, 6—2.

On the other courts the New Yorker, J. P. Paret won the right to meet Reginald F. Doherty in the next round by defeating Gardiner Beals. This match was prolonged and only the remarkable staying qualities of the New York man carried him through to the victory at 8—6, 8—6, 6—3, 10—8.

Another feature of the day was the beginning of play in the interscholastic championship, with representatives from Harvard, Columbia and Princeton. After a stirring and prolonged three set match in which two of the sets went to deuce, Bahr, the Princeton boy, overcame Niles, of Harvard, by the score of 7—5, 6—3, 8—6.

The Doherty-Stevens match brought out a large gallery despite the threatening weather. In the early morning it was thought that play would be impossible, but it cleared and the men began their work. Added interest was attached to Stevens's performance because it was his grandfather, James Stevens, who won the America's Cup, for which the Reliance and Shamrock III. raced to-day, for this country. He is known to be the most formidable of the Americans at the base line game, and it was a question as to whether or not tactics of this description would not give H. L. Doherty a hard contest because of the heat and humidity. In the opening games Stevens had Doherty on the move all the time, and had the English champion striving for passes as the English champion endeavored to gain the net. Then Doherty coaxed Stevens to lob, and, as the majority of his lobs fell short, Doherty was able to get in close enough to kill the ball. In this stroke the Britton was far ahead of the American, but his shots were true to the mark, and he did not lose any of the points. He won four straight games in this manner, and in the following sets he was at all times in the lead by a fair margin.

Mahony was very greatly in his contest with Dering. He lost many points by his forehand driving into the net, and had he not steadied himself at the close of the first set the tide of victory might have turned against him. Throughout this match the rallies yielded rare exhibitions of skillful racquet work, for both men played at a fast pace and were strongly aggressive. Dering was better overhead than off the ground, and when he got the ball high enough he was always sure of taking the point on either a pretty pass or a placed shot. In nearly all of the games of the first and second sets the points touched deuce, and then the superior play of Mahony helped him to win.

In other competitions of more than usual interest was that in which H. H. Whitman, the younger brother of Malcolm D. Whitman, met defeat at the hands of the Harvard expert, R. H. Carleton, the latter being steady and sure in the placing of his strokes and taking the match by a one-sided score in three sets. Princeton's champion, Edwin P. Larned, the brother of the famous National champion, worked his way up to the fourth round by winning over Harry D. Averry, the veteran of the West Side Tennis Club. The younger Larned came up to the net at every opportunity and volleyed so forcefully that he had Averry at a disadvantage all through the contest and earned his advancement in the three sets. The great match in the morning will bring together Holcombe Ward, the Harvard veteran, and William J. Clothier. The summary:

Men's Championship Singles—Third Round—R. C. Seaver defeated Louis N. Wallace, by default; Harry L. Doherty defeated Richard Stevens, 6—4, 6—2, 6—2; Harold S. Mahony defeated H. G. Dering, 7—5, 6—1, 6—2; J. P. Paret defeated Gardiner Beals, 8—6, 8—6, 6—3, 10—8; Kenneth Hector Gillespie defeated Lawrence Neal, 6—4, 6—2, 6—4; Edwin P. Larned defeated Harry D. Averry, 6—2, 6—2, 6—4; Edgar S. Leonard defeated C. M. Hall, 6—1, 6—4, 6—2; Alfred Codman defeated A. C. Bingham, 6—1, 6—4, 6—4; Thomas Hidgway, 6—4, 6—1, 6—1; Harry P. Allen defeated Thomas Hidgway, 6—3, 6—4, 6—2; Holcombe Ward defeated J. G. White, 6—1, 6—4, 6—4; Fourth Round—R. C. Seaver defeated G. A. L. Dixon, 6—1, 6—3, 6—4; R. H. Carleton defeated H. H. Whitman, 6—3, 1—6, 6—4.

BRIGHTON TROTS POSTPONED.

Mud Prevented Races, and So a Double Programme Will Be Decided To-day.

A crowd equal to about the largest attendance of the meeting gathered at the Brighton Beach Track yesterday afternoon for the fourth days' racing of the New York Trotting Association's grand circuit meeting, and for nearly an hour waited patiently for the sport to begin, there having been no intimation that the races would be postponed. The announcement that the races were postponed because of the muddy track was not made until 5 o'clock, because of indecision on the part of the officials, the explanation being offered later that the management had delayed action toward postponing in the hope that the track would dry out.

After the heavy rain of the early morning the course did not improve perceptibly in the forty-five minutes between the scheduled time for the start of the first heat of the opening race and the hour when the postponement was decided on. The mud was as stiff and sticky then as it had been when the visitors began to assemble, and there was doubt among the horsemen as to the track being in really good condition to-day, even should there be no more rain. The horse owners generally accepted the decision to put off the races as perfectly satisfactory, but to the New York racegoers in the crowd the postponement was a surprise, and the cause of much dissatisfaction, especially as the managers of the meeting had made no provision for the return of money paid for admission.

The programmes of the races that were sold were useless, but the chief protest was concerning the failure of the management to return admission fees. The gate keepers declared that they had no authority to return money, and could not do so until they had received instructions from William Engeman, owner of the track and one of the Directors of the New York Trotting Association, who was absent. Finally the officers of the meeting partly satisfied the demands for the return of admission fees by stating that badges bought yesterday would be accepted for admission to-day.

The postponement delayed decision of the most valuable and most promising race of the week, the $20,000 Bonner Memorial Stakes, for 2:12 trotters, which was scheduled for yesterday, but the action of the club met with the approval of the horse owners, as none of them was anxious to send his horse out to trot for such a great in the deep and holding mud. The Bonner Memorial, accordingly, goes over until to-day, when the association will endeavor to dispose of the programmes arranged for both Thursday and Friday, giving a double card of eight races, including two of the richest stakes of the meeting, in the hope that the double programme may be completed the racing today will begin at noon, and the events will be hurried through as rapidly as possible. The condition of the track is such, however, that the association probably will be compelled to give up all hope of the special races against time by noted horses, which it originally was intended should be features of the seaside meeting.

SHAMROCK AND RELIANCE.

The indications afforded by yesterday's unconcluded and inconclusive contest are themselves not at all inconclusive. Contrariwise, they seem to be final. What is shown is that in a breeze in which the race could not be finished under the terms, by from half an hour to an hour, the defender is distinctly the better boat to windward. It follows that in a breeze in which the race could just be finished within the time limit she would show an equal superiority on the crucial point of sailing. And a boat which can win under those conditions is just what experience induces all designers of challengers and all designers of defenders to try and build.

We take yesterday's failure and the comparative showing of Shamrock and Reliance, especially to windward, as quite conclusive on this point. A light breeze is always a fickle breeze, and in such a breeze the element of luck is apt to enter much more largely than into a contest sailed in a wind which is stronger, and on that account apt to be steadier. It may be that the balance of "slants" yesterday was in favor of Reliance, although that would be very difficult to establish. But it is quite out of the question that she owed her lead at the outer mark to any such cause. When the boats were on absolutely even terms her gain was so steady and so considerable as to put it beyond dispute that she was the better boat in the prevailing conditions, and so much the better that the handicap need not be taken into account at all. And the prevailing conditions, conditions of light wind and smooth water, are the prevailing conditions of cup races, the conditions which cup racers are built to meet.

It is entirely possible that in a much stronger breeze, with much rougher water, this showing might be materially modified. It might even be reversed, although that seems highly unlikely. Still the comparatively moderate sail plan of Shamrock would conceivably enable her to carry all plain sail when her oversparred or more oversparred antagonist might be forced to reef. All yachtsmen knew what an advantage that is to the undercanvased boat. But one such race, according to the experience of international yacht racing, is all that is likely or reasonably possible to occur during the series. And even one is improbable.

It seems scarcely premature to say that the keeping of the cup on this side, after fifty-two years of "adverse possession" and the efforts of twelve successive British yachts or racing machines to get it back, is once more assured. It seems odd that a series of races should be virtually decided before it is even begun. But that singular and sad fate seems to be that of the sportsmanlike challenger. Everybody here will sympathise with his third disappointment and be glad to do what can be done to console him by helping him to any American thing that may take his fancy, excepting only the America's Cup. That is getting to be too much of an "heirloom" to go out of the family. Meanwhile the only British subject we can think of, excepting the egregious DUNRAVEN and Sir THOMAS's personal enemies, if he have any, who is entitled to derive any satisfaction from the demonstration of yesterday's failure to make a race is that eminent naval architect, Mr. WATSON. He did at least come much nearer to what was then Mr. HERRESHOFF's best with Shamrock II. than Mr. FIFE has come, or seems likely to come, to Mr. HERRESHOFF's present best with Shamrock III.

SLAVERY IN THE CONGO FREE STATE.

It is not at all surprising to learn that Sir EDMUND CONSTANTINE PHIPPS, the British Minister to Belgium, has presented to the Belgian Foreign Minister a copy of a note of protest addressed by Great Britain to the signatories to the Berlin act defining the limits, objects, and authority of the State that was erected and placed under the rule of LEOPOLD II. of Belgium. Conditions in the Congo Free State, according to some very reputable authorities, have been so bad for years that if half that is told be true the wonder is not that Great Britain and France have not before protested, but that protest has not gone up from the whole civilized world.

The trouble seems to be that the Congo Free State, established to protect the twenty millions of negroes found there when the State was erected, with an invitation to the whole world to come in and trade with the inhabitants, has become the field of operation of an aggregation of powerful trusts, organized and maintained with the approval and to the profit of the sovereign. Indeed, the State is a shareholder in every trust, and its share of gains is secured only by consenting to the complete subjugation of the people by a cruel and ignorant native soldiery, employed to force the inhabitants to meet impossible demands upon them for rubber and ivory as their tribute to the maintenance of the Government whose only programme, to use the words of King LEOPOLD, "is the work of moral and material regeneration."

The wretched history of government in the Congo Free State by an aggregation of greedy and inhuman trusts is given by Mr. EDMUND D. MOREL in a recent pamphlet on "The Congo Slave State." According to this history the troubles for the Congo Free State began when the decree was issued declaring all "vacant lands" the property of the State. This was after it had been announced that within the Congo State there should be absolute freedom of trade. The things traded in by the inhabitants were wholly obtained from what the Government, after the decree, regarded as "vacant lands." Although there were native agreements as to the control and ownership of many of these so-called "vacant lands," no respect was paid to them. The taskmaster, backed by soldiers wearing the uniform of the King, has exacted tribute of so much rubber and ivory that many natives found it impossible to produce the quantity demanded. Then the native troops were released with instructions to press them. Out of this reckless and sordid policy came needless bloodshed. In proof of their faithful discharge of the orders given to them the soldiers would return from a foray with baskets of hands and ears cut from victims of their ferocity, the severed members furnishing the post commandant with the proof that the cartridges missing from the belts had been usefully expended.

The seven large and some smaller trusts organized to exploit the territory taken over in the name of King LEOPOLD as "vacant lands" have been reducing the population to slavery and misery while they have been making enormous profits. On the borders of the Congo Free State, adjoining French and British colonies, the population in LEOPOLD's State has been reduced considerably by migration into the other colonies. For the native finds himself getting deeper and deeper into slavery as the exactions of the traders increase. They may not sell to French or British buyers, for what they have to sell is the property of the State, and must be sold to the State trusts, or surrendered as so much value for taxes. Herr RASNER, an Austrian trading under British auspices, secured a concession to do business in the area included in the Katanga Trust, in the southeastern corner of the Congo Free State, where it is bordered by British and German territory. He took his rubber out through British territory, and was arrested and tried for violating the rubber law of the State. The sentence exceeded in severity the limits of the Berlin act, and RASNER started for Boma, a thousand miles away, to appeal, dying, it was reported, and doubted, from natural causes on the way. Mr. EDGAR CANISIUS, an American citizen, who served three years under the Congo administration, has supported with much detail the report that the natives are reduced to a state not better than slavery, men and women working under perpetual threats from the soldiery, savage even to cannibalism, with no other object than to enable the trusts, with offices at Brussels and the King as a shareholder, to continue to enjoy rich profits from sales of Congo productions.

Making allowances for the tendency to exaggerate where trade rivalry exists, as it does in this case, there is enough in Mr. MOREL's pamphlet to justify an investigation by the Powers signatory to the Berlin act. If the whole Congo Free State is in slavery, as appears to be the case if Mr. MOREL's account is true, a new agreement by the Powers is desirable, and one that shall not only abate the cruel practices of the trader taskmasters, but restore to the interested Powers that freedom of trade in the Congo Free State that the Berlin act led the world to expect. When LEOPOLD authorised the decree appropriating all the land not occupied by the natives he took away their opportunity to prosper materially. They were enslaved from that moment, and the trusts that have been authorized to enforce the decree of the Government have been inspired not by a determination to promote the "moral and material regeneration of the people," but by a determination to get out of the country, at whatever cost and by whatever means necessary, great profits for those who composed the Domaine de la Couronne and other trusts in the Congo Free State.

LO! THE POOR INDIAN.

If the Indians were not so far away or more of us were in the habit of making frequent visits to Indian Territory to hear the gossip of the legislators and speculators of that country, there would have been an earlier outbreak of the storm that seems to have occurred in the Southwest. The whole story of wrongs perpetrated upon the Indian by the intruding speculator, who discovered that it was an easy thing to acquire a right to share the Indian's rights of property, is a long one. Many a time since the Dawes Commission was formed has it been asserted that that commission was not only slow, but that it lacked keenness of vision and alertness to protect the Indians. But the Indian is not always slow as he is found in the Indian Territory, and the sort of Indian who has become the partner of the intruding white man does not need to be told that he ought not to give away his property and the heritage that should be the portion of his children.

While it is earnestly to be hoped that no employe of the Government who has been robbing the Indians, or conniving at their robbery by others, will be allowed to escape the punishment he deserves, we do not imagine that the investigations that are to be prosecuted will find that any Secretary of the Interior consented to criminal misuse or unjust retention from the Indians of funds to which they were entitled, or that there will be any discovery of dishonest treatment of the Indians by Secretary HOKE SMITH, or Mr. NOBLE, or Gov. FRANCIS, who have occupied the office. The Secretary of the Interior does not commonly hold office long enough to master all the details of a department full of the most perplexing details. But it may be found that while the Secretary has been occupied with other matters the doings of the Indian Commission, or their misdeeds, have escaped that notice and admonition that there seems to have been need to apply to them.

The Indian has some friends, and a few of them know all about the wrongs of which he has had a right to complain. Distance does not lead to forgetfulness in the case of these advocates of fair treatment, and when the Indian suffers keenly from a sense of injury by the Government these volunteer defenders hear of his distress and fly to his defense. Then there is a class of well-informed persons intimately associated with the Indians who acquire fortunes by lobbying all sorts of claims through Congress and the courts for their Indian clients for liberal contingent fees. The first class may have brought the frauds now complained of to notice through their agent, but the men of the other class will be witnesses of some importance if they can be prevailed upon to tell to what extent the Indians are responsible for the making of ruinous land leases.

THE BRITISH SOLDIER.

Our English friends are ingenious in finding matters to worry over. The latest source of anxiety is suggested in the recently published report of the Director General of the Army Medical Service, which has set the statisticians speculating as to whether the present population of Great Britain furnishes the material from which a military establishment proportionate to the requirements of the empire can be maintained. The returns of recruits examined may be tabulated as follows:

Occupation of Recruits.	Number Examined.	Number Accepted.	Number Rejected.	Per Cent Rejected.
1. Laborers, servants, husbandmen, &c.	33,022	15,625	238.82	616
2. Manufacturing artisans, (cloth workers, weavers, lace-makers, &c.)	11,071	8,478	230.54	143
3. Mechanics employed in occupations favorable to physical development (smiths, carpenters, masons, &c.)	11,201	2,932	261.86	122
4. Shopmen and clerks	8,520	1,520	206.69	70
5. Professional occupations, students, &c.	857	220	256.03	10
6. Boys under 17 years of age	2,431	273	112.30	20
Total	84,402	28,745	261.32	1,000

Taking a period of ten years ended with 1902, of the total number of possible recruits examined 34.6 per cent were rejected for physical defects so pronounced as to unfit them for military service. Of 444,798 passed and enlisted, 5,840 broke down in three months and 14,259 were discharged as invalided within two years of entering the service. These figures do not include the large numbers of men willing to serve who are rejected by the recruiting officers because obviously unfit and wholly unsuitable to bring before the medical examiners. Sir FREDERICK MAURICE, who has made a careful study of military statistics, has lately published papers on the subject of the physical deterioration of the British nation in support of the disquieting thesis that out of every five men who wish to enlist only two are found in the army in effective service at the end of two years. Sir WILLIAM TAYLOR, Medical Director General, says of the figures at hand:

Inquiry is wanted, and it is vital for us to know the truth. Whether part of the physical deterioration is the result of unskilled labor flocking to the towns, and there failing to find means for properly rearing a family, or whether it be on account of causes which are attackable, such as early marriages and the ignorance of mothers, the result is that the rising generation of all below the artisan class includes a vast number of men of a very low standard of health and physique.

From the military point of view the importance of this subject is quite as great as Gen. TAYLOR indicates. The increasing stringency of the industrial conditions in Great Britain cannot fail to exert an influence which will be felt quickly in the records of the recruiting service. Hard work, deficient nutrition, the increase of the drink habit and of other vices, might very well induce marked deterioration in the classes from which the army recruits are largely drawn.

PHILADELPHIAN CRICKET.

It has long been a problem for the psychologist, or the sociologist, or the psychologico-sociologist, or the sociologo-psychologist, though we do not know that any of him has ever tackled it, why Philadelphians play cricket and why they are the only Americans who do play it. Some of the curiosities in Dr. HARMON's museum at Chicago might as well be wasting the time on that question as on some of the questions on which they do waste it. The common theory that that beautiful and secularly elaborated pastime requires abundant leisure, and that leisure abounds in Philadelphia, does not look like a scientific explanation, but it may be accepted until a better is offered.

Meanwhile it will not be disputed to be desirable that if Philadelphians play cricket at all they should play it well. They play it so well that they can get nobody on this side of the Atlantic to play with. This season is not the first nor, we believe, the second when Philadelphia has sent a cricket team across the sea to board the Briton in his lair. But the present team shows an immense improvement upon its predecessors. Its nearest predecessor, while the merits of some of its individual players were freely acknowledged in England, hardly came up to the standard of "first-class county cricket." Mr. LEARNED's team, which has just returned flushed with a highly respectable proportion of victories, undoubtedly does come up to that standard. The batting of Mr. LEARNED, Mr. KING, Mr. GRAVES, and Mr. BOHLER and others was greatly admired, while in Mr. KING the team had, according to The London Times, "one of the finest amateur bowlers in the world," and according to another authority the best bowler of the English cricket season. All this ought to be gratifying to us. The matches the Philadelphians played were all against first-class teams. There were sixteen of them, and of these they won seven, lost six, and drew three. So well did they play the game that one of their enthusiastic hosts, after saying that several members of the team would be eligible were they Englishmen, to the "Players vs. Gentlemen," and even to the All England Eleven, ventured to look forward to the day when Philadelphia should challenge all England, even as all Australia has done, and with an equal success. This is probably a fond imagination, seeing that there are several English counties more populous than Philadelphia. But it does show that devotion to the game has been rewarded. The showing ought to gratify all of us since, after all, a Philadelphian is an American.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

—One of the peculiarities of life in a democracy, which is a joy to some and a cross to others, is that socially it is next to impossible to tell from one day to the next just where you are, or for the matter of that, just where anybody else is. Last year the society of Newport, which is justly famed for the height of the fence it has raised about itself, startled the world by reaching over the fence to pick up the Simian Hankey Pankey—at least that was his name later at WEBER & FIELDS's, which is the only place we regretfully admit, that we were privileged to meet him—and to set said Hankey Pankey down at the dinner table, amid the smiles of the hostess and the champagne of the host. This year the guest of notoriety, if not of honor, at Newport is an eminently respectable negro who has led his present hosts on many a successful midnight coon hunt in the South. The Darwinian scientist will no doubt recognize an evolution in the standards of our social capital. Certainly there would seem to be a marked broadening in the spirit of our democracy, and in the one quarter where it appeared least to be expected. On the heels of this, however, comes the blow of such proportions that it would be good any day for a yacht race down the harbor. "JIM" JEFFRIES has flatly refused under any circumstances to meet a negro challenger. "BAM" MCVEY, on the field of manly strife, "When there are no white men left to fight," says "JIM," "I will quit the business. I never will fight a negro!" Is there a difference in standard as to those one fights with and those one dines? Are there reasons why you may freely let a man tap your wine cellar and draw your champagne, whereas you would not let him even have the chance to tap your nose and draw your claret? Or is the social ring of the prizefighter contracting even as the social circle of Newport expands? Won't anybody tell us where we're at?

—Jockeying at the start of a yacht race, which is to say manoeuvring for advantages of position, is vehemently attacked in the current Harper's Weekly by Mr. WILLIAM EVERETT HICKS as fertile in producing bad blood and otherwise contrary to the best interests of the sport. The idea seems to be that an attempt to put an opponent in the lurch is unsportsmanlike, and that, anyway, an advantage gained before the start is unfair. Mr. HICKS advocates the assignment of places by lot, as in other sports. Before the article was printed it was submitted to Sir THOMAS LIPTON, who gave his views on the subject in a brief and pointed manner. The manoeuvring at the start, Sir THOMAS asserts, if fairly conducted, is one of the most spirited tests of good seamanship, and he adds that in yacht racing good seamanship is quite as much to be desired and sought for as a fast craft. To decide the positions at the start by lot would, in his opinion, be detrimental to good sport. The trouble with Mr. HICKS, though Sir THOMAS does not say this, seems to be that, as so often happens in the case of those who become heated over breezy subjects, he has allowed his mental processes to be confused by a confusion of language. There are jockeys and jockeys, and there is jockeying and jockeying. There is no reason why jockeying in a yacht race should be objectionable, or even more objectionable, at one than at another point in the race. At the start it is, of course, more keenly skillful and exciting; but if a yacht race is not made to test skill and to produce excitement, what is it good for?

—Prof. LANGLEY's statement to the press of his reasons for excluding reporters from his flying-machine experiments, are not only reasonable, but incline one to considerable sympathy with his tribulations. After all he is a scientist rather than a purveyor of popular sensation; and it is not to be wondered at that he prefers to figure solely in his scientific capacity. The sad fact is, however, that he is handicapped from the start. The pathologist, when he is studying the manifestations of a speck in his microscope which he has reason to hope may prove the germ of cancer, can talk as little as he chooses as to what that speck is doing; and any explanation he may give of its motions stands. The astronomer whose acuteness or peculiarity of vision enables him to lay out canals in Mars with a facility that is phenomenal to those engaged in laying them out on this earth, can hold his right in those canals as long as he wants, and when he divulges his discovery nothing can be added or subtracted from the lines he chalks down on a sheet of paper. But it is easier to hide the searchlight of to-day under the wicker bushel of long ago than for Prof. LANGLEY to hold the due scientific reserve with regard to the progress of his experiments with the aerodrome. Worse than this, whatever the the experiment or its success, the account an untrained observer gives of it is sure to be false or inadequate. With publicity unlimited, he would find himself in a very short time converted, in the eyes of the people, from a serious and laborious searcher in the field of knowledge into a modification of the balloon jumper of the county fair, and in consequence it is possible that those who provide money, which is the wings of invention, would become discouraged with him. Thus the public at large, and the reporter in particular, should evince a lively curiosity as to the success or failure of each successive experiment is as natural as that Prof. LANGLEY should wish to conceal them; but in the battle between scientific reserve and public curiosity the scientist is entitled to win if he can.

—For the police force this seems to be the silly season with such a vengeance as to put to shame the comic policeman of melodrama. Last Tuesday JOSEPH SKELLY of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station was detailed to conduct to Bellevue Hospital a man whose sanity was to be put under observation. Owing to a clerical error SKELLY's name was written in the blank space instead of the name of the man of questionable sanity. The doctor insisted in examining SKELLY's tongue, and otherwise searching for bats in his belfry, while the real subject looked on with pardonable gratification. On Wednesday Detective MAGENNIS of Chicago, having captured one ECKLUND, charged with grand larceny, handcuffed him and chained him to a seat in a smoking compartment, and thereupon fell into the sleep of the triumphant just. ECKLUND stayed awake, so very much awake that he was able to rifle the sleeping detective's pockets of all valuables, including the handcuff key. Unlocking the shackles from his own wrists, he snapped them on the wrists of the still slumbering MAGENNIS and made his escape. When the detective was awakened at Cheyenne the case against him was even more damaging than that against SKELLY. As Mr. THEODORE KREMER, the Clyde Fitch of melodrama, has just arrived from abroad, we may expect to see these incidents graphically portrayed in the early Autumn in both Third Avenue and Eighth.

THE NICARAGUAN CANAL.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Referring to your editorial under the above caption in to-day's issue of your paper, permit me to state that I believe you thoroughly represent the feeling of the vast majority of our people who have given any attention or thought to the Isthmian Canal route in the following remarks, viz.: "By exercising at once the authority conferred by the Spooner act to open negotiations with Costa Rica and Nicaragua, the President will meet the views and wishes of a very great majority of the American people."

Mr. Roosevelt is not a man who needs to be reminded what his duty is, nor one who will hesitate to perform it when he realizes what the wishes of the American people are, but I am sure he will be gratified through the medium of the press to be advised what his countrymen are thinking about this matter.

Well, a good many of us are thinking and have been thinking for a great many years past that the opposition to any canal across the Isthmus is at the bottom of all our disappointments. These same forces are in all human probability at work now, and the "unanimity" of the vote in the Colombian Senate shows clearly, to my mind, that the forces referred to have lost none of their "energy or potency."

That "you can fool all the people some of the time, and some of the people all the time, but that you cannot fool all the people all the time," has become axiomatic. The delay in cutting the canal is costing our people on the Pacific Coast alone every year more than its estimated cost, and they will assuredly demonstrate their feeling by their votes, if in no other way, should the President fail to exercise his prerogative to order the work to proceed, preferably via Nicaragua, which, for reasons named by you, and for others which you do not name, is much the better route.

EX-CALIFORNIAN.

THE CUNARD AGREEMENT.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In writing this my intention is to gain an idea of the feeling of your readers regarding the recent "combine" of the English Government and the Cunard Steamship Company. The details of the "agreement" between the English Government and the Cunard Company are too well known to need republishing, save that underlying all the technicality of wording the fact is evident that "no American need apply," and while England has openly boasted of her love for Americans and makes an effort "diplomatically" to show her sincerity, she proves very plainly by her alliance with this "combine" that her love is all on the surface, and should we ever be so unfortunate as to suffer disaster, whether in prosperity, trade, or war, little sympathy can be expected from her. This has been my opinion for some years, gained through personal observation here and abroad.

Since the "agreement" has been verified I have met several Americans who originally intended to cross next month on the Cunard line steamers, but have since changed their plans and engaged passage on other lines. As the transatlantic steamers depend largely on their passengers and freight from this side, does it not seem possible that this "agreement" will act as a "boomerang" on the Cunard Company?

HERBERT SPENCER EXPLAINS.

A cable dispatch yesterday was received from Herbert Spencer in reference to the "History of the Carnegie Steel Company," by James Howard Bridge, which was referred to in THE NEW YORK TIMES on Aug. 9. Mr Bridge in his work says that he was at one time Secretary to Mr. Spencer, and uses this fact as a guarantee of some of the statements set forth in the book. The dispatch reads:

To the Editor of The New York Times:

To obviate misapprehension which recently published statement may cause, please say that Mr. James Bridge ceased to be my Secretary nearly twenty years ago.

MUNICIPAL REFORM IN TYPICAL AMERICAN CITIES

IV.—GOOD GOVERNMENT MOVEMENT IN BOSTON.

BOSTON, Aug. 19.—There are big and little grafters in Boston. Practically all of them who are identified with the City Hall are petty grafters. It is a matter of municipal history that not so many years ago members of the Common Council were purchased at $25 a head, the object of their buyers being to procure the passage of a loan bill for which the Mayor of Boston was responsible officially. By no other way could those thrifty public servants be induced to do their duty.

The number of really large, prominent, and influential grafters in municipal affairs is very small. Boston wastes much money, but comparatively little is stolen out and out. It costs usually, if not invariably, from 50 to 100 per cent. more to have work done for or by the city than the same work would cost if it were done by or for a private individual or outside corporation. As to stealing on a large scale, there is little of it.

It is more than probable that the city pays for gravel which it does not receive, bricks which are never delivered, and implements which are never seen. It is known that scores of men who are walking the streets without visible means of support are drawing salaries and wages from the City Treasury and are carefully reserving their energies until the caucuses, which are not far away.

There is petty graft of all kinds; there is an increasing disposition to look upon the municipal corporation as a philanthropic and charitable institution, and now and then a partisan newspaper raises its voice in angry protest concerning the grafting of political opponents.

"Grafting," as a word, has been in usage in Boston for only a few years, but the inquiry which it represents is not new in this city. There was grafting in Boston in the days when "the better element," so called, had a larger representation in the City Council than it now has, but comparatively little was heard of it. To this very day grafting in municipal affairs is on a comparatively small scale, with now and then an exceptional instance.

For the bulk of the grafting in Boston the big public service corporations are responsible, directly and indirectly. They get what they want at the City Hall, just as usually they get it at the State House, and in both places they pay for what they get. Moreover, there is very little protest of an effective nature against their methods and their achievements. Sometimes they pay in cash; more often they pay in patronage. They contribute liberally to the campaign funds of Aldermanic candidates, and if the contest is to be a close one, candidates on both sides are looked out for. Here, as in other cities, the corporations are non-partisan.

The Massachusetts Legislature passed this year a stringent law forbidding officials and employes of city and State to seek places for anybody in the employment of public service corporations, and the law is just as stringent against granting of such requests by corporations; but no more attention is paid to that law than is paid to other laws intended to reform men and things politically. It is a habit in this city to rush to the Legislature and ask for statutes that will take the place of hard and conscientious work among the people, and thus far the results have not justified the means.

"Closely connected with the public service corporations in this city are men who ought to be the leaders of any movement in behalf of good government, but they do not dare to step beyond certain limits, because friendship and business connections may be broken if they do. They will head any movement which on general principles is committed to good government, but the moment a move is made to grapple with corruption where it is worst and most dangerous, they lose their courage, beg to be counted out, and step to one side. There is some hypocrisy in Boston, and nowhere is there a more shameful exhibition thereof than in connection with efforts to improve political conditions and obtain better men at the City Hall.

COWARDICE AND CONSERVATISM.

As a municipal corporation Boston has suffered for many years from a commingling of cowardice and conservatism on the part of those men of affairs who should be forces for good in the community. At the present time a good government association is in process of incubation. What it will do remains to be seen. What it could do is a great deal, but the outlook is not altogether hopeful.

Political conditions in this city are not worse now than at any time in the past twenty years, and the good government movement is due more of all to the fact that similar leagues have been formed elsewhere. Boston reformers are imitative to a degree, but it is to be feared that not yet has there been developed among them one who can lead courageously, intelligently, and without thought of what may happen if somebody's corns are trodden upon.

The new movement was unfortunate at the very outset, because, without due consideration of the effect upon the average citizen, a majority of the committee selected to plan operations was made up of non-residents—men, who have business interests in Boston, to be sure, but who live in Brookline, the Newtons, and other suburban towns, and who cannot vote either for or against good government in Boston. The President of the association, William H. Lincoln, is a citizen of Brookline, and although those who stand by the new movement insist that he has as much concern in the regeneration of Boston as any voter in the city, nevertheless the cry of home rule has been raised with considerable effect by the politicians and their friends, and at the very outset the movement for reform is unnecessarily handicapped. There are business men of high repute who are also voters in Boston, and it is generally admitted that a mistake was made in neglecting to ask their co-operation in the beginning.

The new association has no intention of taking part this year in the election of a Mayor, although under the city charter the Mayor has about all of the powers that formerly belonged to the City Council. He has absolute control over the heads of departments; many of them are appointed without confirmatory action by the Board of Aldermen, and neither branch of the City Council may interfere with the various departments. Requests for improvements may be made to the heads of the departments, but they must be made through the Mayor, and he may ignore those requests or send them along to the department head, to be ignored or complied with as the Mayor and head of the department may deem best.

The City Council, it is true, has its former power in the matter of appropriations and loan bills, but inasmuch as a veto of appropriations and loans by the Mayor necessitates a two-thirds overriding vote of the whole membership in each branch, it is very seldom that a loan bill is passed which is not favored by the Mayor.

However, to begin with, the Good Government Association of Boston intends to confine itself to an attempt to elect better Aldermen, and to that end promoters of the association succeeded this year in securing legislative action by which all of the Aldermen, thirteen in number, will be elected at large, while only eight can be nominated by either party.

Four years ago, after an unsatisfactory trial which did not result in better men or better work, the system of electing at large was abandoned. When it was on trial each party was allowed to nominate thirteen, but the voter could give his support to only seven. Nobody was satisfied with that method, and a return was made to the district system. The good government leaders say that it will be easier to defeat undesirable candidates, if the voters of the entire city have a voice in the decision, than it is to oppose them in certain districts where honesty counts for less than good fellowship.

The leaders in this reform work, which they are to begin in such a modest way, are encouraged because of the good which they have succeeded in accomplishing in the School Department. For years it had been the habit of the leaders in both parties to pay political debts by nominating candidates for the School Committee who were absolutely without qualification for those places. As a result the schools deteriorated, "pull" made itself felt everywhere, and contracts became more important than education.

A Public School Association was formed, a campaign of information was begun, and gradually the reform work triumphed. The politicians began to realize that there was a more essential qualification for a School Committee candidate than the fact that he was favored by the Chairman of an important ward committee. To-day the Public School Association is in absolute control of the Boston Public Schools, and although it has made not a few mistakes it has begun at least a work that cannot fail to be far-reaching. The same influences for good that have been behind the Public School Association will be felt in the larger work, if no serious mistakes are made at the outset and if the association does not dodge its plain duty.

A reform organization for participation in municipal contests is not new. Some years ago the Municipal League and the Citizens' Association were both active, and they did a certain amount of good. Unfortunately, those who were active at the outset very soon lost their seat, the control of the organization passed into the hands of a few men, and at the last they were giving indorsements to some men notoriously corrupt or incompetent. The Citizens' Association claims to this very day to be an active organization, although it is impossible to obtain satisfactory answers to requests for information concerning actual membership, meetings, and fees.

AN INDIFFERENT PRESS.

The press of Boston is peculiar in the matter of municipal affairs. There is not one daily paper here which will not, on occasion, and some of them almost daily, preach sermons upon the corruption of Philadelphia or St. Louis and express opinions concerning Tammany methods in New York. There is hardly a daily newspaper, however, which has ventured to take an active, helpful part in municipal reform work, except in isolated cases, inspired by partisan motives; and it is not a matter of surprise to close observers in this city to see some of the most honest and normally intelligent newspapers giving editorial indorsement to scores of elective municipal officials whose records are hopelessly ragged.

There is nothing dishonest in this on the part of the press, although it may betray culpable carelessness. It is the policy of the leading newspapers of Boston to offend as few people as possible. Friendship counts a great deal in politics, more so during campaign time. A candidate seeks an editorial indorsement from an independent newspaper. He may not be particularly well known in the editorial department, but he has a friend who is acquainted with an editorial writer. The indorsement is printed, and those who read the paper in question are inclined to accept it as a guide to action—unless they know the man's record. Politicians who are acquainted with the inside of things merely sneer or laugh, insist that every newspaper has its price, which is not true, and the assertion loses its influence just where it should be strong. Few of the professional grafters in Boston fear the independent and influential press of this city. That is why there are certain forms of grafting carried on more openly and with less interference or complaint than would be possible in cities of wider reputation for corruption.

Boston this year will spend more than $18,000,000 for current expenses. Of that amount more than $12,000,000 will be devoted to wages and salaries. The present administration was elected on a solemn pledge to reduce the payrolls of the city by a considerable amount, and to carry no men as employes of the city who did not work.

That was made an issue because, four years ago, Thomas N. Hart, a former Mayor of the city, had been elected over and over Gen. Collins, largely because of a faction fight in the Democratic Party and still more largely because the citizens as a whole had reason to believe that hundreds of thousands of dollars were being wasted and stolen every year at the City Hall.

Hart went into the City Hall pledged to reduce the current expenses of the city. "The padded payrolls must go," was the war cry of his followers. Undoubtedly he was honest, and he was a good Mayor, he was Mayor in 1899 and 1900, and before he stepped out in 1901 the people received ample evidence that the grafters at City Hall were as numerous and rapacious as under Quincy. Hart was beaten by Gen. Collins two years ago by a record-breaking majority of over 15,000, and Gen. Collins was elected on practically the same platform that had carried Hart to victory in 1899.

Mayor Collins is honest. There is no doubt of that. The world knows that he is able, and his wish is to give the city a splendid administration. Unfortunately, however, he has not been able to keep the expenses of the city down, and the payrolls are larger to-day than they have been padded for years. It is not done with his approval; but in spite of him. It is true that he has all the power, but he was without experience in an administrative office up to the time of his inauguration as Mayor in 1902, and it is an open secret that he likes to avoid detail work and direct responsibility for unpleasant duties. Under the city charter a Mayor cannot do this and trust to results. Mayor Collins is doing it, to a certain extent, with the inevitable waste and diversion of public funds. It should be stated, however, that for the payrolls of the Police and School Departments he is not responsible. The Police Department may spend all that it wishes to; the School Department may spend what it gets practically as it sees fit. The School Department costs the city a million a month in wages and salaries, which come out of the annual tax levy for current expenses. This is entirely apart from additional enormous expenditures for salaries and wages on account of improvements paid for out of loans and amounting to thousands of dollars every year.

As Boston has not quite 600,000 population at the present time, it will be seen that her expenditure for labor out of the annual tax levy amounts to $30 for every man, woman, and child.

SAMPLE OF BOSTON'S "WAY."

At the present time there is on view an excellent illustration of the prevailing Boston habit of gazing long and earnestly at little things and of ignoring those of vastly more importance.

In 1897 the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, which had induced the city earlier than that to co-operate in a union station scheme of large expense to the city and of great benefit to the railroad company, desired to abolish a grade crossing and at the same time to rearrange its yard, to trackage in connection with the new station. It went to the Legislature and procured the passage of a special act by which the city and the railroad company were authorized to do certain things. One of the provisions of the statute was that the city should agree with the railroad company on an amount which the city should pay as its share of the improvements, and the other was that such an amount being agreed upon, bonds for the part of the city should be issued by the city—half in 1898, and half in the following year.

That act having been passed, a contract was drawn up by the representatives of the railroad company and accepted by the Board of Aldermen, the Law Department, and the Street Commissioners, by which the city bound itself to pay all of the expense of an elaborate scheme above a certain amount. The total cost, of course, could not be ascertained until the work was completed. Therefore no amount was agreed upon, and no debt was incurred, as provided specifically by the statutes. It is estimated that the final cost to the city of this project will be not less than a million dollars. Moreover, the city has bound itself to lay out as a boulevard in abandoned railroad tracks in locality where no boulevard was required or had been asked for.

Experts have estimated that the cost to the city, had that particular grade crossing been abolished under the general law providing for such work, would not have exceeded $100,000. The railroad tracks could have been carried over the former crossing without material damage to any property. The railroad company, intent upon further improvements to its property, obtained them, and secured the city's pledge to assume over two-thirds of the whole burden.

Men who were instrumental in forcing through that scheme have lately tried to procure an attack in the public press upon the Board of Aldermen of Boston for spending a total of $14,000 for carriage hire, in addition to their salaries of $1,000 a year. It is a significant fact that this attempt was made after one of the Aldermen whose carriage bills are highest had called attention to the difference between the contract with the railroad company and the law, and had taken the first steps to have the validity of the contract tested in the courts.

What the motive of that particular Alderman may be, nobody will ever know. It is a fact, however, that since he took the matter up the Mayor of Boston, who previously had stated in an official communication that the contract could not be challenged and must be accepted, has stated that the bills will not be paid until the contract is tested in the courts.

With one exception, not a Boston newspaper of any prominence has chided any body connected officially with the city for making or indorsing such a remarkable contract, has ventured to suggest that possibly the city's rights had not been conserved, or has even seen the humor contained in the reform work of an Alderman who is known to all men as one of the most "practical" politicians in Boston.

"PARSIFAL," $10 A SEAT

Mr. Conried Tells His Plans for the Coming Season.

Singers He Has Engaged Include Enrico Caruso—The De Reszkes Not to Appear at the Metropolitan.

Heinrich Conried yesterday made known his plans for the coming season, and told the details of the controversy between himself and Frau Wagner over the propriety of his producing "Parsifal" in America. The composer's widow entered protestant, both Germans and Americans, on her side, but it was of no avail. Bayreuth could not hold "Parsifal."

In a letter to a German newspaper, Frau Wagner stated that "as a matter of course the artists who sang at Bayreuth could not take part in the New York performances." Mr. Conried answered by publishing the cast he had already engaged, which included nearly all of those who took part in the original production.

He also announced the engagement of Herr Lautenschlager, who built the machinery for the Bayreuth production of "Parsifal," and of Herr Fuchs, who staged the original production. As a climax, he made it known that his conductor was to be none other than Felix Mottl.

The one of his engagements that Mr. Conried is most proud of, apparently, is that of Enrico Caruso, who has never been in this country, but whose fame has come before him. So enthusiastic over Caruso is the new head of the Metropolitan Opera Company that he bought two gramophone records of the famous tenor's songs and got an instrument immediately upon his arrival here in order to hear his favorite's voice.

In the title role of "Parsifal" will be Alois Burgstaller. Amfortas will be taken by Anton Van Rooy. Klingsor by Otto Gerte, Gurnemanz by Robert Blass, and Kundry by Milka Ternina. Among the flower girls will be Fantchon Thompson, Marcia Van Dresser, Bella Alten, Hedwig Reicher, and Hertz. The boy choir will be recruited from one of the New York church choirs.

It is Mr. Conried's object, he says, to introduce new operas and new singers into America. The "novelties" which the manager hopes to produce during the season here are "Parsifal" in German; L'Elisir d'Amore and "La Gioconda," in Italian; "Les Dragons de Villars" and "La Dame Blanche" in French, and "Die Verkaufte Braut" with an English libretto, specially prepared by Charles Henry Meltzer.

The grand opera season will open Nov. 23 and will extend for fifteen weeks, to be followed by an out-of-town season in Boston, Chicago, Cincinnati, and Pittsburg.

Among the singers engaged by Mr. Conried while he was in Europe are many already known here and others who will be heard in New York for the first time. The soprano will include Calve, Tegina, Sembrich, Ackte, Gadski, Marie Wed, Bernard, Fanchon Thompson, Pepa von Cronier, and Kronold. Mme. Calve will be heard in "Carmen," "Cavalleria Rusticana," and "Les Dragons de Villars." For the first time in this country Mme. Gadski will sing the part of Brunnhilde. Mlesen Wolff and Kronold are both Americans. Miss Edith Walton, also an American, will be an alto. Others will be Mme. Olive Fremstad, Mme. S. Homer, and Marcia Van Dresser, who is lately of the Boston Opera.

The first production of "Parsifal" will be made Dec. 24, and thereafter it will be given on each succeeding Thursday. As at Bayreuth, the curtain will rise at 5 o'clock in the afternoon and fall at 11 o'clock at night, with an intermission from 7 to 8:30 o'clock.

The "Parsifal" performances will not be included in the regular subscription list, but those who have subscribed to all sixty subscription performances, may retain their seats for the first performance of "Parsifal" and the Monday, Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday Matinee subscribers will have the same privilege for the second, third, fourth and fifth performances. The price for an orchestra seat at "Parsifal" will be $10, although the ordinary seats will be in proportion. Mr. Conried says that if the house is packed at every performance the gross receipts will not cover the cost of the production.

The money expended for the New York production will be almost twice as much as that for the Bayreuth. All the scenes and costumes were carefully selected by Mr. Conried himself and have already been finished by Vienna artists.

The ballet is to be a special feature in the opera season here. An efficient corps of dancers will be imported from Europe and partly drawn from the Metropolitan School of Ballet, will interpret the incidental divertissements together with at least one ballet.

The orchestra will be much larger and stronger than last year, according to Mr. Conried. At ordinary Wagner performances it will include ninety-one musicians, while for the Ring music-dramas and "Parsifal" it will be still larger. The chorus has been completely reorganized. It will consist of 120 singers, most of them engaged in Vienna and Milan.

Felix Mottl, Alfred Hertz, and Nahan Franko have been engaged as conductors. Mr. Conried is trying to get Signor Vigna, at present under contract to direct the orchestras at La Scala and the Monte Carlo Opera House.

It is probable that at the performances of "Parsifal" Herr Hertz will occupy the conductor's chair. The contract with Mottl binds him to oversee and rehearse the "Parsifal" company but believes it open to him to decide whether he will personally conduct the orchestra at the public performances.

Mr. Conried has not engaged either of the two de Reszkes for this season. He said that the negotiations were perfectly amicable, but that the famous singers could not come to an agreement. He thinks, however, that some of the singers new to America are going to be received with as much enthusiasm as were Jean and Edouard de Reszke.

BOSTONIANS' SILVER JUBILEE.

Opera Company to Begin Twenty-fifth Season at Academy of Music.

Replacing "The Christian" at the Academy of Music, the Bostonians will appear Monday evening in "Robin Hood." As for years past, Barnabee and MacDonald are still at the head of the opera company; with them is their old associate, George Frothingham. Sam Brudley will be the musical director for the coming season.

Agnes Cain Brown will alternate with Gertrude Zimmer as prima donna soprano, and Kate Condon will be the leading contralto. Other less important members of the cast are Henry E. Morrison, Laura Sylvia, Antoinette Martin, Campbell Donald, Harry Dale, Joseph Ratcliffe and J. H. Miller. This is the silver jubilee year of the Bostonians, and the anniversary will be appropriately celebrated during the New York run of "Robin Hood."

NOTES OF THE THEATRE.

In consequence of delays caused by strikes, Daniel Frohman has decided to postpone the opening of the new Lyceum Theatre until Monday, Nov. 2. In order to allow H. H. Bothern to appear on time in "The Proud Prince," Charles Frohman has arranged to place at his disposal the Herald Square Theatre immediately after John Drew leaves it. Mr. Bothern will appear at the Herald Square Sept. 12, and stay there three weeks, when he will move to the New Lyceum. His engagement at the latter place will be limited, though, on account of the early engagement of William Gillette in "The Admirable Crichton."

***

"Arrah Na Pogue" is to be presented at the Fortieth Street Theatre Labor Day, Sept. 7. Andrew Mack will take the part of Shaun, the poet.

***

The programme to-night at the Madison Square Garden will include two selections from "Parsifal." The entire programme is made up of Wagner music.

***

Elizabeth Berry, introduced on Broadway by Evans and Hopper at the Princess Theatre last Spring, will appear in "The Earl of Pawtucket" Wednesday, Aug. 26.

***

The Orpheum Music Hall in Harlem will open Sept. 5. A stock company will supply vaudeville entertainment.

Dramatic Students to Entertain.

The Dramatic Society Entracte and the New York College of Dramatic Arts will give an entertainment at the Manhattan Lyceum, 66 East Fourth Street, on next Saturday evening.

"The Messiah" Sung at Ocean Grove.

Special to The New York Times.

OCEAN GROVE, N. J., Aug. 20.—Handel's oratorio of "The Messiah" was rendered in the Auditorium this evening before an audience numbering eight thousand. The chorus of seven hundred voices was recruited from Ocean Grove and New York, the singers from the metropolis coming to Ocean Grove by special train. The soloists were Anita Rio, soprano, Marie Stillwell, contralto; Mortimer Howard, tenor, and William Harper, bass. The orchestra numbered sixty-five musicians and was directed by Tali Esen Morgan.

BIG ELECTRIC LOCOMOTIVES

Baltimore and Ohio to Have the Largest Ever Built Operating in Baltimore Tunnel.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 20.—Within a week the largest electric locomotive ever built will be pulling heavy passenger trains through the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tunnels under this city, thus doing away entirely with the smoke nuisance. For some years the Baltimore and Ohio has been experimenting along these lines. The first motors used were not sufficiently powerful. Now they have a 150-ton locomotive ready for operation and another of the same weight is being constructed. These with three 90-ton engines now in use, will enable the passage of the heaviest trains through the tunnels.

The new locomotives are designed to draw a loaded train weighing 1,500 tons over the grade from Camden Station through the tunnel to the summit, a distance of 1.46 miles, at approximately a maximum speed of ten miles an hour on the eight per cent. grade, and nine miles an hour on the one and one-half per cent. grade when operating at 625 volts. Under practical operation conditions the motors have sufficient capacity to maintain this service hourly, running loaded up the grade and returning light. The controlling apparatus, consisting of master controller, engineers valves, etc., is in duplicate, a complete set being located in diagonally opposite corners of each cab, so that the engineer can stand in front of the locomotive when running in either direction.

ERIE CANAL TONNAGE.

Supt. Boyd's Report Shows That There Has Been a Considerable Increase.

ALBANY, Aug. 20.—The tonnage of the New York State canals for the first two weeks in August, as given out by Superintendent of Public Works Boyd, shows a considerable increase over the corresponding periods of last year, though the increase is not so large as that shown since the opening of navigation up to Aug. 1.

The total tonnage for the first week in August was 111,910 tons, as against 81,357 tons for the corresponding period last year, an increase of 30,553 tons, while the figures for the second week in August show a total of 98,323 tons carried, as against 64,969 tons carried for the corresponding period last year, an increase of 33,354 tons, or an increase thus far in August of 63,707 tons. The August increase is made up very largely of Western shipments, there being an increase of almost 50,000 tons.

OFFICIALS GOING WEST.

Messrs. Armstrong, Fish, and Stranahan to Have a Private Car.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Armstrong and Assistant United States Treasurer Fish and Collector Stranahan of New York have been invited by President Fish of the Illinois Central to make use of his private car for an extended fishing and hunting trip in the West. The party will leave here Aug. 30 for Chicago, and will follow an itinerary which will extend as far as the Pacific Coast, and will include a week's stay in the Yellowstone Park. It is expected that the party will return to Washington Sept. 21.

President Fish is a brother of Assistant Treasurer Fish. His private car is regarded as one of the best equipped in the country, and no pains have been spared to provide for the comfort of his guests.

IN THE SHOPS.

Any number of well-shaped, well-made stocks may be bought at almost any of the shops at 25 cents each. To be sure, they are not linen, but the cotton materials used are fine, the stitching is well done, and the embroidery is neat. Some of these stocks have imitation Mexican drawnwork inserted next the stitched bands forming the edges, and such stocks are especially desirable, as the threads of the work are stiff and hold the stock in place quite as well as the feather bone used on the lace stocks. Linen stocks with feather or other fancy stitching in black may also be found at the same low price. The chief merit of these stocks is that they launder well and require no starch. No one can wear a stock more than once—that is, if they are dainty, and it seems almost wicked to have a fine lace stock cleaned or washed after a single wearing, while these heavier, cheaper bits of neckwear escape uninjured by water and hot irons, and are therefore satisfactory.

***

The washable kid gloves are truly washable, and a great improvement for summer wear over the regular kid. They cost from $1.50 up, and one is advised to purchase them a size larger than one ordinarily wears. The white and pearl-covered ones do not soil as easily as the other kid, although they have the same appearance. The black, washable kid gloves are perhaps the most desirable of all, not that one ever cares to wash them, but because neither perspiration nor rain injures them. Any one who has had their ordinary kid gloves ruined by either of these will be glad if they invest in the new-fangled handcoverings. The black of these gloves is midway in lustre between the glace finish and the suede, and is perhaps prettier than either; at any rate, it harmonizes better with most black dress materials.

Pale blue broadcloth forms an evening gown recently imported and now being exhibited in a well-known shop. The bodice is formed of a piece of the cloth drawn across the back in folds and turned under at the lower edges as a finish, there being no belt. The ends are brought around to the front and down to the side in surplice fashion, with the longer end terminating under a very long buckle. Two overlapping circular collars of the cloth, each four or five inches wide and with cut edges, form a bertha for the low neck, the collars or capes of the bertha extending out over the shoulders. A band of white cloth is inserted to come between the blue cloth and the neck. The sleeves have the appearance of straight coats gathered a little below the elbows into short puffs, the ends falling below the elbows. The skirt is drawn tightly, yet with folds around the hips, flaring as it falls, as it is a circular skirt. At each side and toward the back on a line with the knees there is a cluster of shirrings to hold the superfluous fullness in place, and from the front of each cluster hangs a mass of white passementerie ornaments.

Great variety in Japanese fans is seen in a certain shop. There is variety in price as well as in size and design. They range from 25 cents up, as to the first; from six inches to twelve, as to the second, and in the third from single hand-painted fans to small and large groups of figures. These are black, red, yellow, and white sticks, gilded, silvered, or plain. Some of the fans have long lines of Japs promenading at their tops; other have groups of two or three scattered here or there, and nearly all are pretty.

One of the latest novelties in powder puffs comes in a small nickel box. Unscrew the box top, and there is the little wool puff filled with powder, which slips through the loosely woven back of the puff down the wool fibres. They are excellent for traveling, as they are small, economical of space and powder, and are so made that the powder can be removed, and also have a compartment at the bottom of the box for a supply of powder. They cost less than half a dollar.

CATHOLIC PRIESTS TO BE BURIED IN CATACOMBS

Plans Drawn to Carry Out Archbishop Farley's Idea.

Mortuary Chapel in Calvary Cemetery to Have Two Acres of Cavern Space Underneath—Crypts Lined with Stone.

Architect Raymond F. Almirall has completed the plans for a mortuary chapel in Calvary Cemetery with an underground cavern for the burial of priests, resembling the catacombs of Rome.

The idea is one which Archbishop Farley conceived while traveling through Rome about two years ago. It occurred to him at that time that the Archdiocese of New York, with its large number of priests, should have some such place for their burial, and he discussed the matter with his fellow-clergymen when he returned to New York. The plan found favor, and has grown steadily since then, more particularly since Father Farley became Archbishop. The chapel with the cavern for the dead underneath is to be built on the site of the present frame chapel in Calvary.

The project will entail an expenditure of about $200,000, it is estimated. It is said on good authority that the Archbishop has promised to contribute liberally toward the fulfillment of the plan. Already prominent Catholic laymen have offered to donate large amounts, but these offers have thus far been rejected on the ground that only priests ought to donate.

When the idea was first broached, plans were drawn crudely outlining the scheme, and these are now to be seen in the recreation room of the Diocesan Seminary at Dunwoodie. This plan pictures an underground burying place more elaborate than the historic catacombs of Rome, although fundamentally based on the same idea.

Outwardly there will be little to indicate the site of the catacombs, it being intended that the chapel shall stand over them. The caverns, it is intended, however, shall occupy a space of about two acres.

The new plans contemplate that a shaft shall be sunk about fifty feet. When that depth is reached a gallery shaped in the form of a cross is to be dug. This will be walled with rock hewn from the Vermont mountains.

The underground cavern is to be divided into compartments having a capacity for fruit twelve bodies each. Each body is to be separated from the other by cemented walls.

The chapel above the catacombs is to be 60x130 feet in size. It is to be constructed in the shape of a Greek cross, a round tower is to surmount the chapel and it is to be ninety feet in height. It is to be tipped with the figure of the "Risen Christ."

Between the two stairways of the sanctuary in the chapel is to be the main entrance to the underground cemetery. A steel door will reveal the entrance to the catacombs. At the extreme end of the cavern a chapel is to be arranged where the last services over the dead priests are to be held.

The work, it is said, both on the chapel as well as the underground cavern, is to be started in a few weeks.

If the plans as now contemplated are carried out, the mortuary chapel with its cavern underneath for the dead will be the first imitation of the ancient catacombs in this country. The nearest approach to anything of the kind exists at the monastery of the Passionist Monks in West Hoboken. Under that institution there is a huge underground vault, some seventy feet beneath the chapel. Those clothed in the rugged habit of that austere order—the most austere in the Catholic Church—lie, resting on bricks, the remains of the founders of the order. The custom of so disposing of the bodies was discontinued about two years ago because of technical legal barriers. Archbishop Farley's plans, however, are such as to comply with all sanitary objections.

Herbert Ward, the proposed innovation for the burying of dead priests, has not been approved by the American hierarchy, but as the conditions in New York are different than those of any other city, they are believed to be permissible here.

MEET OF MONMOUTH HOUNDS.

One Rider Thrown in Hunt Near Newport—A Chase After Real Foxes Planned.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, Aug. 20.—The meet of the Monmouth County hounds this afternoon was at Easton's Beach, and attracted a goodly number of spectators, including Mr. and Mrs. William E. Glyn, Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, Miss Greta Pomeroy, Dr. and Mrs. Anderson, Senator Wetmore, W. S. K. Wetmore, Roger Wetmore, Miss Pauline French, Baron von Echt, Mr. and Mrs. T. Shaw Safe, Mrs. E. C. Potter, Miss Margaret Busk, Mrs. Spotswood, D. Scheack, Col. and Mrs. Reginald Norman, Dr. and Mrs. William T. Bull, Melville Bull, Major and Mrs. H. R. O. Mr. Collier, master of hounds, had a small field of riders to follow, including Miss Anita Sands, Miss Rosalie Street, Percival Evans, and Jack McDonald. Miss Sands and Miss Street made their first appearance in a hunt in Newport, and rode fairly well. They, however, continued but a short distance. Mr. McDonald was thrown twice, and the second time he narrowly escaped serious injury. In the fall his horse rolled over him. He was assisted to his feet by the other huntsmen, and remounted and rode to the finish, coming well up with the hounds. The run was long and severe, covering eleven miles and occupying sixty-two minutes.

Mr. Collier and Alfred G. Vanderbilt are arranging a series of hunts for live foxes in September. They propose to take the Monmouth County hounds three times a week to the neighborhood of Dartmouth, in the southeastern part of Massachusetts, where foxes are said to be running wild, and hunt them, if they can be started. The hounds will be kept at the Middletown Farm and taken early on the days of the runs across the river to the country where the foxes are supposed to be located. The hunts mean an all-day excursion to those who participate, the riders going early in the morning and returning before night each day.

BOSTON, Aug. 20.—At noon, to-day at the home of the bride's parents in Longwood Miss Grace Esther, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Drew, was married to George William Alger of New York City. The bride, who is known to the reading public as "Margery Daw," has been engaged in literary work for a long time. The bridegroom, who is a lawyer of New York City, is the son of the late Charles Alger, who was prominent in the legal and educational affairs of Burlington, Vt.

The bride was attired in white Brussels net, over taffeta, made in the fashion of 1820, with a veil fastened with a knot of gardenias. She was attended by Miss M. Louise Fryse, Mrs. Ellios M. Alger, and Mrs. Benjamin H. Currier. The bridegroom was attended by Dr. E. M. Alger, his brother. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Edward D. Towle, minister of the Second Unitarian Church of Brooklyn. The ushers were Benjamin H. Currier, George C. Currier, Jr., Robert M. Currier, and Charles R. Currier, all brothers.

Following the ceremony there was a reception, Mr. and Mrs. Alger being assisted in receiving by the parents of the bride and Mrs. Harriot M. Alger, mother of the bridegroom. The floral decorations of the house consisted of white asters and carnations, palms, and marsh. The guests present included a number from New York, Philadelphia, Newport, this city, and other places. Palmer—Brown.

LONDON, Aug. 20.—Honore Palmer of Chicago, son of Mrs. Potter Palmer, and Miss Grace Greenway Brown of Baltimore, were married at St. George's Church, Hanover Square, this afternoon. As both families were in mourning, the wedding was a quiet affair, only about a score of persons being present. The Rev. David Anderson, rector of St. George's, officiated.

The bride, whose dress was of white chiffon trimmed with point d'esprit lace, with a semi-court train of old lace, presented by Mrs. Potter Palmer, was given away by her brother, H. Carroll Brown of Baltimore. She carried a white vellum Prayer Book. Contrary to custom two married women, Mesdames H. Carroll Brown of Baltimore and Stanley Field of Chicago acted as matrons of honor. They were mauve costumes and carried bouquets of white orchids. Potter Palmer was best man. The church was decorated with palms and white lilies.

Ambassador and Mrs. Choate, Princess Cantacuzene (formerly Miss Julia Grant,) Mesdames Potter Palmer, George Brown Franklin, and H. H. Kohlsaat, Miss Pauline Kohlsaat, and Second Secretary and Mrs. Carter of the United States Embassy were among those present.

After the wedding a reception was held at the residence in Cork Street, taken by Mr. and Mrs. Brown for the season. The honeymoon will be spent on the Continent.

MASS FOR POPE LEO XIII.

Mgr. Falconio Assists in Service at Church of St. Anthony.

Italian Church Societies Hold Reception in Honor of Pius X. and His Apostolic Delegate to America.

Archbishop Diomede Falconio, Apostolic Delegate at Washington, took part in the celebration of a solemn pontifical mass of requiem in memory of Pope Leo XIII. yesterday at the Church of St. Anthony of Padua, on Sullivan Street. The services, which were attended by a throng of Italian Catholics, were similar in many respects to those held three weeks ago at St. Patrick's Cathedral, on Fifth Avenue.

At the head of the main aisle was a raised catafalque covered with a black pall with elaborate trimmings in gold. Mgr. Falconio during the mass occupied the throne on the left side of the altar, and in the sanctuary with him were Bishop-elect Colton of Buffalo, Vicar General Mooney, and about fifty priests. The mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father Bernardino Pollitt, pastor of the Church of the Most Precious Blood, on Baxter Street, and the sermon, a eulogy of the late Pontiff, was preached in Italian by the Rev. Father Lambert Marcucci.

Before the mass about a thousand Italians, members of the Holy Rosary, San Giuseppi, and other church societies, assembled in Mulberry Bend Park, and with bands and crepe-draped flags and banners marched to the church. After the procession had entered the church there was some confusion because the other worshippers were for a time kept outdoors by the police.

Capt. Brennan of the Mulberry Street station said that he had orders to keep off feet from the people connected with the church. This was said by the clergymen to have been a mistake, although some of the people in their effort to attend the mass were jerked about roughly by the police.

At the close of the mass Archbishop Falconio, who was clad in robes of gray, gave the Papal benediction.

In the evening the different Italian Church and civic societies, to the number of about twenty, formed in parade at Washington Square, and marched to Webster Hall, under the leadership of Rocco M. Marasco. A short time after their arrival Mgr. Falconio, still clad in his gray robes and wearing the emerald ring, drove up and was met by the Reception Committee.

The ceremonies of the meeting consisted of addresses delivered by John J. Freschi in behalf of the laity of New York; by Dr. Ferranti, Italian Secretary to Archbishop Farley, in behalf of the Archbishop, and an interesting address by Mgr. Falconio. The Apostolic Delegate said:

"Right Reverend and Very Reverend Fathers and beloved brothers of the laity: I know you feel as I do myself that the election of Pope Pius X. has given us a true father as well as a true brother. One great benefit I see that has accrued to you in your emigration to this country is the educational facilities it offers you. I am also glad to see that this grand and impressive ceremony with its echoes that which my countrymen have needed for so long a time, a hospital, in which they may be cared for by people of their own sympathies and nationality.

"As a wholesale emigration of you, my countrymen, from this country is a great surprise to me, and it gives me pleasure to see that so many of you are making your permanent homes here. This shows that it is your intention to become true American citizens.

"In memory of Pope Leo I can only say that he was the glorious father of the poor, meek, and humble, and was beloved by all who knew him, and that I count the happiest day of my life to be the one I spent with him shortly before his death."

Cardinal Rampolla sent a cablegram from the Italian Catholics at the meeting, which read:

"Cardinal Rampolla, Papal Secretary: Greetings to our Holy Father Pope Pius X. from the Italian Catholics of New York City now engaged in celebrating his election to the throne of St. Peter before his Delegate Mgr. Falconio."

A feature of the meeting was the great number of women present, about the hall. There were at least twenty in the dress-walk outside and thirty in the hall. The crowd was, however, very orderly, and there was no confusion whatever.

MAY BUILD A TOWN HALL.

Mr. Bruce Has Bought Some Land and Greenwich Thinks He has Benevolent Intentions.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., Aug. 20.—Robert M. Bruce, a retired broker, has purchased a plot of 3 acres of ground in the centre of the village, opposite the Havemeyer Memorial Public School, and the whole town is curious to find out what he intends to do with it. The latest report is that he intends to erect a town building and give it to the town as a memorial.

A few years ago Mr. Bruce complained that the Tax Assessors were not assessing his property high enough and that he and other wealthy men were thus robbing the town. He had his assessment raised then. It is now thought he has concluded that the town is not rich enough to erect anything to replace the dilapidated building in which the officers are located, and will put up a building to be an ornament to the town with the money that he should have paid in for taxes during the years that the Assessors were lax in their valuations. Mr. Bruce built a town as isolation plant of four buildings in the West year, and is credited with saying that he intended to do more for the town.

MONUMENT TO ARTHUR.

FAIRFIELD, Vt., Aug. 20.—A granite monument marking the site of the birthplace of President Chester A. Arthur was dedicated here this afternoon. A drizzling rain and the remoteness of the site from railroad facilities combined to limit the attendance mainly to persons who could drive from nearby points. No attempt had been made to introduce elaborate features in the programme. Ex-Congressman H. Henry Powers of Morrisville presided. Ex-Gov. William W. Stickney, of Ludlow, who was in charge of the erection of the memorial, presented it to the State and Gov. John G. McCullough accepted it.

The principal speaker was ex-Senator William E. Chandler of New Hampshire, who was Secretary of the Navy in Arthur's Cabinet. Extempore remarks were also made by Robert T. Lincoln, of Chicago, Secretary of War in Arthur's Cabinet; Senator Redfield Proctor and Representatives D. J. Foster and Kittredge Haskins.

The memorial is a square block of rough granite suitably inscribed.

Sermons by Dr. Swanson.

"Girding Though Unknown," will be the subject of the sermon by the Rev. W. H. Swanson D. D., of Glasgow, Scotland, this morning in the Collegiate Church, Eight Avenue and Forty-eight Street. Dr. Swanson will also preach at the evening service, taking for his topic "The Power of an Endless Life."

COL. C. E. TAYLOR DEAD.

Denver Man Came East to Ask George Gould to Aid Ranchman Who Saved Mr. Gould's Life.

Col. C. E. Taylor, formerly President of the Colorado Mining Exchange and a member of the brokerage firm of Taylor & Kittredge of Denver, who came to New York on business and to ask George Gould if he would not aid the old Colorado ranchman, who, several years ago, saved Mr. Gould's life when he was lost in the mountains, died yesterday at the Hudson Street Hospital of hemorrhage of the stomach.

Last Wednesday night Col. Taylor was found unconscious in his room at Smith & McNeil's Hotel, where he had been staying for the past ten days, and was removed to the hospital. Among other things the police found a letter addressed to George F. Nash of 136 Pearl Street, and Mr. Nash when notified proved to have been an old friend of Col. Taylor.

Col. Taylor was once a member of the firm of Squires, Taylor & Co., who dealt extensively in tobacco in this city. In 1882 he became interested in mining and went to Denver, but lost all his fortune in the silver panic. Before the panic he was President of the Colorado Mining Exchange of Denver, and it was he who secured the funds for and built the building. He and his partner also built the Kittredge Building in Denver, where they had their offices.

Mr. Nash said that Col. Taylor intended to interview George Gould yesterday in behalf of the old ranchman who saved the life of Mr. Gould. "The ranchman, he said, found Mr. Gould wandering at night in the mountains, lost, and many miles from shelter. He threw Mr. Gould on his shoulders, and carried him to his ranch through snows and cold of snowdrift, and saved Mr. Gould. As the result of the exposure the ranchman in time lost the use of his limbs and was helpless. He said he had appealed to Mr. Gould, but had received no answer. Col. Taylor told Mr. Nash that he was sure that Mr. Gould had not received the letter.

Col. Taylor was fifty-four years old, and leaves a wife, who was Mrs. Carrie Wood of Denver, and three daughters and three sons, who have been notified of his death.

VETERAN TEACHER DEAD.

John S. Ketcham Had Been in the Public Schools 28 Years.

John Scudder Ketcham, who died on Wednesday, was one of the oldest teachers in the New York public schools. He was eighty years old, and the immediate cause of his death was typhoid fever. He came from an old Long Island family of English descent and was born at Northport.

He began teaching school at Huntington. From there he came to the New York public schools and acted as Principal of No. 28, in West Fortieth Street. Later he was assigned to the department for the enforcement of the compulsory education law, and, with the exception of a short time spent as Superintendent of the Reformatory in Cincinnati, he remained in public school work for twenty-six years. He had just finished his duties for this school year when he became ill.

He is survived by his widow, a daughter, Mrs. C. Miller of 572 East Seventy-eighth Street, and four sons—John E., George E., Lester, and W. H. Ketcham—all residents of this city.

The funeral services will take place from the home, 572 East Seventy-eighth Street, to-day at 3 o'clock. The Rev. Henry W. Brown, of whose church, the Mount Hope Congregationalist, Mr. Ketcham was a Deacon, will conduct the ceremony. The interment will be in Woodlawn Cemetery.

THE FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Irregular.

Money easy, 1@2.

Yesterday's Stock Exchange business was a mere traders' market. That is to say, there was no general or decided trend to prices, but fluctuations occurred fitfully at the whim of those who tried to make a turn by buying or selling anything without much reference to conditions outside of the room. London sent over fractional changes of an irregular sort, but mostly advances. From time to time, when there was a little fleeting strength here, London tried to sell whatever the market would take, but there was no pressure to sell, nor any reluctance to buy at approved concessions, nor anything very different from what was occurring here. Our own opening was irregular, with some advances and no accentuated reactionary tendency such as developed on Wednesday. Buyers at a lower range are willing to realize here as well as in London, but no more here than there was there any pressure to sell for either account. For the moment "stand pat" is as fashionable in financial as in political circles. There are no pressing worries nor any very positive hopes, and the factors which will make values are hidden in the laps of the gods. The price changes accordingly were not very large, and, whether they were advances or declines, they would alter quickly to accord with developments of facts. Amalgamated Copper was the most active property. As its fluctuations are thought by some to be indicative of the market position of a very important interest, it may be noted that it closed at the day's best, with a fractional advance, after having been three points lower. Atchison, Erie, and National of Mexico were among the stronger properties, and Consolidated Gas among the weaker. The shrinkage in volume of business was equally marked in the bond market, the weakness of St. Louis Southwestern Consolidated fours being chiefly notable.

The produce markets were weak upon good weather, and cotton was dull. The leading iron trade organ put the best face possible upon the reduction in the price of Southern pig, but Pittsburg prices followed the Southern quotation, and the biggest consumer—the trust—is not yet ready to buy. The feature of the foreign weekly bank reports is that all are improving their position. It is true that the Bank of England reports a decreased percentage of reserve, but this is due to advances to the Government of £3,000,000. The Exchequer is not troubled with a surplus like our own Treasury, but will disburse more than it receives until into 1904. The bank's total reserve increased £817,000, including an increase of £465,283 bullion, with notification of £193,000 en route. The Bank of France reported a gain of 3,925,000 francs gold, and the Bank of Germany reported 23,840,000 marks more in cash and 25,420,000 marks less in notes outstanding. Thus these important institutions are gaining together and not attracting resources from each other. There is nothing in this bearing upon the price of any American security nor having special significance regarding the market of to-day or to-morrow. But there is basis for an inference that when this market needs relief in the harvest season, and looks abroad, leading institutions are in improving position to help from their abundance. At the same time continuance of receipts here of gold from Alaska and Australia are giving and promising resources which, there is increasing prospect, may enable us to look out for own needs.

MONEY MARKET PROSPECTS.

Money rates are growing firmer in tone for time accommodation, as is natural with the approach of the harvest season, the rise of price of gold in London, and the drifting of exchange away from the gold import point as it rises upon the demand to remit in payment for securities sold on foreign account. None of these considerations is disquieting. It merely makes the question of relief a question of price, and no money market is better able to make its bid heard than New York. This is a great improvement over recent conditions, when accommodation was not a question of price, but of credit, and nominally lower rates for money, gold, and sterling were really less encouraging because of the certainty that business could be done on those terms only by a favored few. Now, according to representative international banking houses in this city, confidence at foreign financial centres, including Berlin, regarding the monetary and stock market situation in New York is reasserting itself, and business can be done as in normal times. These considerations are enforced by London's liberal receipt of gold from the Transvaal and ours from the Klondike, while Australia sends to both New York and London. With increasing supplies of gold and improving credit any monetary flurry is deemed to be brief and moderate.

COTTON CORNER OUTLOOK.

The crisis in the cotton market will become acute with new crop deliveries. This year's crop is late, but the "corner" is compelled to take all offerings at its abnormal price, and this is expected to stimulate the "into sight" movement. In other years bales becoming visible in September have ranged between 503,000 bales in 1894, and 1,241,000 bales in 1897. Last year's figures were 706,000. This is the only indication of the probable demand upon the money market to carry new cotton for the corner. Practically the only buyers of September and October cotton on the New York Cotton Exchange during the past three weeks have been Brown, Hayne, and brokers employed by the Brown bull clique. Outside interest was never so small as at present. Even with reports of ravages which recur every August conservative traders are of the opinion that the crop will be a bumper one and in excess of 11,000,000 bales.

Exports of cotton from New York for the week ended Aug. 19 were 6,022 bales, with a value of $224,316. Total exports from New York since Jan. 1 were 236,503 bales, valued at $10,194,748, as compared with 188,928 bales, valued at $8,218,932 in the same period of 1902.

MORE ORE FOR THE STEEL TRUST.

Local officials of the United States Steel Corporation confirm the report from Duluth, Minn., that the deal which has been under way for some months looking toward the purchase of additional iron ore lands upon the Mesaba Range has been completed.

The new purchase is that of the entire holdings of the Chemung Iron Company of Duluth. These holdings include eleven more or less fully developed, and as yet entirely unmined tracts, which have passed to the Steel Corporation. In all about 70,000,000 tons of excellent quality of ore, much of it of a high grade Bessemer, has been measured up in the land sold, and there is reason to believe that this figure of tonnage does not cover all that may eventually be mined from these lands. The lands are mostly leased properties on a basis of 25 cents a ton royalty, and the minimum annual requirements are not large for such a consumer. The deal gives the Steel Corporation, therefore, an immense addition to its ore reserves at no undue cost. Some of the deposits average up to 62 and 63 per cent. iron and down to .035 per cent. phosphorus.

The Minnesota Iron Company is now beginning preliminary work toward opening one of these properties, called the Monroe, and has planned to sink two or three shafts. A very large tonnage can be mined at reasonable cost by the milling system.

The properties purchased by the United States Steel Corporation include the Chemung and Monroe, the Miles and Pettitt & Robinson, the Palmer, the McKwan, and Longyear & Bennett.—Wall Street Summary.

WEEKLY CROP REPORT.

Corn Is Making Good Progress in Some Sections and Cotton Is Greatly Improved.

The weekly crop report to Dun's Review from branches of R. G. Dun & Co. in important crop States shows marked improvement this week in some sections of the Middle West as to corn, and decided gains as to the condition of cotton in the leading cotton States. Three or four weeks of hot weather in the Middle West would insure a good yield of corn. In most sections the nights continue too cool. In Ohio the weather is still very unseasonable, and in the southern part of the State rain is needed. The grain forming on the cob is small and irregular. In Indiana the nights are too cool, but the crop is making fair progress. In the Mississippi Valley, where the acreage in corn was unusually large owing to late planting in the flooded districts, rains have improved the condition of the crop, and it is now making excellent progress. In Western Missouri the crop is growing very rapidly, and the weather is exceptionally favorable, with ample moisture. In Iowa conditions are only fair, and in some sections a yield of only 65 per cent. is now anticipated. In Nebraska the crop continues to grow very rapidly, but the weather is too cool. In Southern Kansas the crop is growing well, and a yield of 65 or 75 per cent. is anticipated. Cotton is making unusually good progress in nearly all parts of the South except in Mississippi, where rains have retarded the growth somewhat. The crop looks fairly well, however. In Georgia the progress has been unusually rapid and the weather exceptionally good. There has been ample moisture, and the plant is fruiting well. Indications now point to a very large yield. In Alabama and Louisiana conditions are usually favorable and the crop is much improved. In Texas the growth continues very rapid. In Tennessee the plant is growing well and a good yield is promised, and in Missouri the crop is making good progress. In Virginia recent rains have been very beneficial, although in the eastern part of the State there is some complaint of too much moisture. In South Carolina rains have greatly improved the crop, and the indications are for a good yield. Tobacco is growing rapidly in Southwestern Virginia, and there has been plenty of moisture. In Ohio the crop is short and has been retarded by cool nights, though apparently in a healthy condition. North of Dayton stalks have gone to top without full growth. In Missouri the quality and yield will be the best in years.

THE LONDON MARKET.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES Special Cablegram.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—The Times, in its City article to-day, says money was very abundant at lower rates yesterday, but the discount market was firm.

On the Stock Exchange business was very quiet. The tendency was dull generally, but consols advanced, and most prices closed above the lowest touched in the course of the day.

The American market was dull nearly all day. It opened steady, but business was almost at a standstill. The Wall Street quotations made the closing prices flat, but some recovery took place after the house shut. Home rails were weak.

Foreigns were supported from Paris. There were rises in Spanish and some South Americans, but Bulgarians fell. The general mining market was quiet and prices were somewhat weaker. Kafirs were again weak and there was but little business in them. Diamond shares were exceptionally firm.

Twenty thousand sovereigns were withdrawn from the Bank of England for Bucharest.

Silver was firm. Bars were ½d. per ounce higher for cash, at 25½d., and ⅝d. higher forward, at 25⅝d.

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 20.—The rates for money were easy in the market to-day, which prevented discounts from hardening, as they otherwise would have done, in view of the forthcoming issue of Treasury bills, and persistent Continental demands for gold.

Business on the Stock Exchange was hesitating and dull, and the rallies were short lived. Consols opened easier, but the liquidation was somewhat checked, and they recovered.

Americans opened weak and improved later. The movements, however, were erratic. Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé was the feature. Prices reacted toward the end of the day and closed dull.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 20.—The stock market developed but small interest to-day. The movement closely followed New York, with Reading, Erie, Rock Island, and the Steels furnishing most of the business and the quotations fluctuating as the larger market bid or sold. The purely local securities had only moderate trading, and at the close Philadelphia Company had declined ¼, while Philadelphia Electric had advanced 1-16 and Philadelphia Rapid Transit ⅛. The Lake Superior issues also were inclined toward heaviness, there being considerable disappointment expressed at the paucity of the stockholder subscriptions to the new bonds. The prominent local feature, however, continued to be the reported coming together of the political-financial magnates ruling the town whose quarrels have been suspended for mutual gain and the enhancement of Philadelphia Electric and Rapid Transit.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Aug. 20.—The money market seems to be growing firmer. Time money is very scarce, and particularly so for mercantile paper. Call loans, 4@5 per cent.; time loans on collateral, 5@6 per cent.; time loans on mercantile paper, 6@6½ per cent.; Clearing House loans, 4¼ per cent.; New York funds, 10c discount. Clearings, $20,108,979; balances, $1,570,629. The foreign exchange market is very firm.

On the Stock Exchange business continued fairly active, with Amalgamated Copper Range as the leaders. Both of these stocks were very weak in the morning. Copper Range went below 31. The subsequent rally came on rather small transactions. Lawson brokers seemed to be working on both sides of the market.

TRADING IN BALTIMORE.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 20.—The market today was slightly reactionary, due to the tendency in New York. There was buying of G. B. S. incomes in expectation of an increase in the interest payments and United Railways incomes were absorbed on the theory of an improvement in the status of the securities.

Money on call was at 3@3½ per cent.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The weather has cleared over the eastern half of the country, except along the New England coast and in the South Atlantic States, where showers continue. Over the western half the pressure is low with very high temperatures and fair weather, except in Utah, where local thunderstorms have lowered the temperature somewhat, and on the Pacific Coast, where it is slightly cooler. In the Northwest the maximum temperatures ranged from 90 to 102 degrees.

The warm wave in the Northwest will move slowly eastward and southeastward, extending into the central valleys and upper lake region to-morrow and into the lower lake region and Middle Atlantic States Saturday. It will not be quite so warm to-morrow in the Northwest and at night or Saturday in the upper lake region and extreme Upper Mississippi Valley. The fall in the latter two districts will be due to local thunderstorms. No other precipitation of consequence is indicated, except in East Florida, where showers will continue.

On the New England coast winds will be light to fresh north becoming east Saturday; on the Middle Atlantic Coast they will be light north, becoming east Saturday; on the South Atlantic Coast light and variable; on the Gulf Coast light northeast to east; on the upper lakes light to fresh south, becoming west Saturday, and on the lower lakes light to fresh and variable, becoming southeast.

Steamships departing to-morrow for European ports will have light north winds and fair weather to the Grand Banks.

COLONIAL TARIFF PLAN.

MONTREAL, Aug. 20.—The congress of Chambers of Commerce of the British Empire to-day adopted a resolution providing that a recommendation be made to His Majesty's Government to appoint a commission, consisting of representatives of the empire and the colonies, to consider the adoption of a commercial policy within the British Empire which shall materially strengthen it and which shall be based upon the principle of mutual benefit and by which the components of the British Empire shall receive substantial benefits in trade.

The resolution was introduced by Lords Strathcona and Brassey.

The delegates to the Chamber of Commerce of the Empire were the guests last night of the Montreal Board of Trade at a banquet where a distinguished gathering assembled.

Among those present were Gov. Gen. Lord Minto, Lord Strathcona, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Prime Minister; R. L. Borden, leader of the Conservative Party in Canada; Lord Dundonald, commander of the forces; Lord Brassey, President of the congress.

Notable speeches were made by Lord Minto, Lord Strathcona, Lord Brassey, Sir Wilfrid Laurier and others. Lord Minto made a remarkable speech in which he declared for closer union between the different parts of the empire on a basis of preferential trade, on well considered lines.

He asked if Mr. Chamberlain, with his splendid record and present position, would care to jeopardize his life's work for the sake of a mere imperial dream, and concluded by saying that now was no time for those who had the welfare of the empire at heart to sit with folded arms; it was a time to be up and doing.

JUDGMENT AGAINST LAMAR.

It is for $8,193 on a Note Given by the Broker to H. B. Smith.

A judgment for $8,190 was entered yesterday by default against David Lamar, the Wall Street broker, in favor of Henry B. Smith for the amount now due on a note made by Mr. Lamar on Feb. 20 for $6,000, payable sixty days after date at the Plaza Bank, which was not paid at maturity.

The judgment was filed by Epstein Brothers, attorneys for Mr. Smith, and the summons was served on Mr. Lamar at their office, 320 Broadway.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

New York City.

THE ARKONIA MANUFACTURING COMPANY.—The Arkonia Manufacturing Company, manufacturer of cotton and woolen goods at 417 Market Street, Camden, N. J., with a sales office at 72 Leonard Street, this city, filed an assignment here yesterday to Joseph Guffanti of Philadelphia. The officers are Joseph O'Sullivan, President, and Albert Crenshaw, Secretary and Treasurer. The business was started in 1895 and was incorporated on Dec. 17, 1900, under New Jersey laws, with a capital stock of $200,000.

PETITIONS IN BANKRUPTCY.

SAPIRO & KRAVATZ.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Isaac Sapiro and Louis Kravatz, who compose the firm of Sapiro & Kravatz, manufacturers of caps at 105 Bleecker Street, by Sundel Hyman, for 7 creditors for $516. It was alleged that they are insolvent, have transferred accounts, paid certain creditors $2,500 to prefer them, and permitted one Weinstein to obtain a preference by attachment. The liabilities are reported to be about $7,000.

PEARLMAN & LESSER.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed in Brooklyn against Pearlman & Lesser, manufacturers of skirts under the style of the Empire Skirt Manufacturing Company, at 398 Broadway, Manhattan, and Leo Oppenheimer has been appointed receiver. A notice was posted at the door of their place of business yesterday to the effect that an order had been granted restraining all persons from interfering with the property of the bankrupts. Mr. Pearlman began business in 1896, and Mr. Lesser became a partner in January, 1901. Their liabilities are said to be $35,000.

RECEIVERS FOR FIRMS.

FULLATTAN & KEEN.—Judge McCall of the Supreme Court has appointed James F. Lynch receiver of the assets of the firm of Fullattan & Keen, women's tailors at 1 East Forty-third Street, this city, with stores at 701 Main Street, Buffalo, and 412 Penn Avenue, Pittsburg, Penn., in a suit brought by Joseph Keen against Ferdinand Fullattan for a dissolution of the partnership. It was stated that the firm is perfectly solvent, having assets in the three places of business amounting to $50,000 and liabilities $4,000. The business was started at Buffalo and Pittsburg on Aug. 20, 1898, the firm to continue for five years, and the New York business was started in September, 1901. The bone of contention is the New York business, which both parties want. One partner was willing to take the Buffalo business and the other partner the Pittsburg business.

HOLLINGSWORTH & KIP.—Judge Davis of the Supreme Court has appointed William F. Wells receiver of the assets of the firm of Hollingsworth & Kip, manufacturers of brushes at 447 Greenwich Street, in a suit brought by Clarence V. Kip against William S. Hollingsworth for a dissolution of the partnership and an accounting. The bond of the receiver is $100,000. It was stated that the assets are largely in excess of the liabilities, but no figures were given. Mr. Hollingsworth began the business in 1878, and in 1880 formed the firm of Hollingsworth & Erskine. Mr. Kip became a partner in 1890, and the style of the firm was changed to Hollingsworth, Kip & Erskine. Mr. Erskine withdrew in February, 1901, and the firm became Hollingsworth & Kip. Mr. Kip stated that at first he had a quarter interest in the firm, but afterward bought more money and acquired a half interest, and that the business is one of the largest of its kind in this country. The partnership agreement was not in writing, and there was no provision for a division of the property. Mr. Kip gave notice on Aug. 15 to dissolve the firm and demanded the books, but Mr. Hollingsworth refused to give them up.

PARKS'S DENIAL ON STAND

Declares He Never Saw Accusing Contractor Before Trial.

Swears He Has No Knowledge of $200 Check—Cross-Examined as to Extortion by Other Strikes.

Samuel J. Parks took the stand yesterday in his trial before Recorder Goff on charges of extorting money in his capacity of walking delegate of the Housesmiths' and Bridgemen's Union. He not only asserted that he had not taken $200 from Josephus Plenty last December for calling off a strike on the Hamburg-American Pier in Hoboken, but also declared that he had never seen Plenty until the latter's appearance in court.

He denied that he had ever seen the $200 check, or that he had taken money from Louis Brant to stop the work on the St. Cloud Hotel or from Louis Schmidt to return the metal men to work on the Tiffany studios.

The courtroom presented a stormy scene at times, the defendant's lawyers raising many and emphatic objections to the questions put to Parks. An incident of the afternoon session was the presence of William H. Devery, who said he called to "lend moral support to Mr. Parks."

The case was not called until 11:30 o'clock, other matters having taken up time of the court. In the corridor Parks declared that he wished to take the stand to deny the charges of Plenty, saying, "If I don't go on it will be because my lawyers won't let me." In the courtroom he sat with his counsel—Col. David C. Robinson, Joseph P. Eustace, A. C. Eustace, and ex-Magistrate Brenn.

Joseph Eustace moved for the discharge of the defendant, first, "because the evidence does not establish the crime charged in the indictment; second, because there is material variance between the proof and the allegations; and third, because no crime has been proved."

Then Mr. Eustace took up the argument of the motion and said that to constitute a crime the injury charged must have produced fear, that the statement of a single witness was not sufficient evidence, and that the People had not shown the basis of this fear. "They have not shown that Parks called the strike; that the strike was on the work of Plenty, nor that Parks had any control over the strike. If they have not proved that Parks ordered the strike or that he had authority to stop it, they have not proved that Parks could cause Plenty to fear for the safety of his property."

Mr. Eustace further said that the only testimony advanced which might be considered as a threat was that by Plenty to the effect that after he had presented the check and Parks had declined it, the latter had said that he would have the money or the strike would go on. The construction to be put on that, counsel said, was that Parks or anybody else had a right to exercise his influence to stop a strike.

TWO THREATS MADE.

Assistant District Attorney Rand, in his argument on the defendant's motion, said:

"There were two threats—one Dec. 18, in which Parks said there was only one business way to settle the strike, and one on Dec. 19, which was more explicit. It makes no difference what the means of producing the injury was, so long as the necessary result of the threat was to injure Plenty."

Following Mr. Rand, Col. Robinson said:

"It has not been shown that Plenty had any property, nor any one else, nor had been threatened or injured up to the time when, as he declares, he gave Sam Parks the $200, nor is there any evidence to show that any injury would result after a failure to give the money."

Col. Robinson declared that the men not only had a right to strike, but that they might have decided not to return to work unless their employer should have paid their representative $200, or some other sum. Consequently, the act charged was not a crime. He also maintained that if any crime had been committed, it was against the laws of New Jersey and not of New York, and that the prosecution had not shown the crime unlawful under the laws of New Jersey.

In reply Mr. Rand explained that the question of lawfulness applies to a threat made in this State and that threats in this State it is unlawful to continue a strike for the purpose of extorting money.

Joseph P. Eustace outlined the defense, stating that it would consist in the denial of the charges of Mr. Plenty, and the demonstration of their falsity, proving that until a week ago, when Josephus Plenty walked into the courtroom, Parks had never seen him. "We shall prove that his testimony was wilfully and maliciously false," declared the lawyer.

Parks had made his denials, Mr. Rand asked about his coming here from Chicago, and his connection with labor unions there.

Q.—Did Samuel McConnell bring you here? A.—No, Sir.

Q.—Did you ever see Samuel McConnell? A.—Yes.

Q.—Where? In New York.

Objection was made to almost every question put by Mr. Rand, and Recorder Goff demanded to know the object of that line of examination.

"The object is to show that this defendant, already an organizer of labor, was brought to New York by the Fuller Construction Company for the purpose of calling strikes on work on which the company was not engaged," replied Mr. Rand, and the Recorder instructed the jury to disregard the testimony.

"When you came to New York for whom did you go to work" was asked.

"For George A. Fuller," the witness answered. To questions regarding his connection with the Housesmiths' and Bridgemen's Union, he answered that he had become a member in 1896. The prosecution attempted vainly for some time to get in evidence a book of the by-laws and the constitution of the union, and to have Parks to identify it as such.

NO ACTION BY UNION.

Under further questioning Parks said that a strike is determined by the majority of the men on a job at the time of the strike, and later by the majority of the union, if the matter is taken before it. Parks also said that the transactions of a business agent should be reported to the union, that he had attended the meetings of his union last December and January, and that he had never heard of Plenty before the dates mentioned.

Q.—To your knowledge did Housesmiths' and Bridgemen's Union No. 2 ever take any action regarding the strike on the Hamburg-American Line pier? A.—No, Sir.

Q.—To your knowledge did the union ever have a chance to take any such action? A.—No.

Q.—Did you ever receive cash for settling a strike? A.—No.

Q.—Did you not receive $200 on the first of last December from Louis Brant for sending the men back to work on the St. Cloud Hotel? A.—No, Sir.

Q.—Do you know Mr. Frazee of the Tiffany studios? A.—No.

Mr. Brant and Mr. Frazee stood up in court, and as they did so a storm of protests arose from the defense.

Q.—Is it not true that you were paid $500 by Louis Schmidt for permitting the metal men of the Tiffany studios to return to work? A.—No, Sir.

Q.—Do you know Herman Lobell of this city. A.—No.

Q.—Did you not receive from Herman Lobell $1,000 for calling off a strike on the Holmes's Hotel and the Republican Club? A.—No.

When asked if he knew Bernard Lynch, Parks admitted that he knew him slightly, as he had been adjudged guilty of a charge of assault committed in Lynch's saloon. He did not know whether Lynch could write. He said that Lynch once had cashed a check for him, but that it was drawn in such a way that it was not necessary for the saloon keeper to sign it.

"Didn't you see Lynch sign a bail bond?"

"I wouldn't be sure of that."

Parks said that he had been with his friend Harry Farley in Lynch's saloon about twice since his indictment, and had later talked to Farley outside the courtroom on Thursday.

Henry Farley was the next witness called. He said that he knew Plenty and had gone with him shortly before 2 o'clock on Dec. 19 last to the Ninth Ward Bank.

"And he had the check?"

"Yes."

The witness said that he asked at the bank if Plenty's check was good, and was told that Plenty had an account at the bank on which the check was drawn. However, the check was not then paid. He and Plenty then went back to Lynch's saloon, from where Silvadic went to a near-by store, and finally got the $200, which was given to Lynch. He then told how he met Plenty for the first time at the saloon, and when Plenty said he wanted to get a check cashed he offered to help him.

Farley, in reply to the questions of Mr. Eustace, said that he did not see any money paid to Parks. But when one of the jurors asked him if he saw the check before it was cashed, he said that he had and that it was drawn to Parks or bearer.

The Recorder adjourned the trial until 10:30 o'clock this morning.

CONFUSION IN UNIONS.

Formation of New Organizations Accepting Arbitration Agreement Complicates Matters—Old Engineers Not Wanted.

The organization of new unions under the arbitration agreement of the Employers' Association, to take the places of unions which have rejected the arbitration agreement, is causing more confusion among the old building trades unions, it was learned yesterday. The United Portable, Hoisting and Safety Engineers' Union, which signed the arbitration agreement and then repudiated its action, was "turned down" in its efforts to rehabilitate itself with the Employers' Association on Wednesday night.

Charles L. Edults, President of the Employers' Association, said yesterday evening that the members of the old union could not obtain employment by members of the association. He added:

"The old union wanted to open negotiations with us last night, but it was too late. We can only recognize the new association of hoisting engineers, organized under the arbitration agreement."

In the meantime the members of the Elevator Constructors' Union, which has made an agreement with the Otis Elevator Company and other concerns which build elevators, expiring May 1, 1904, are on strike on all buildings where the general contractors are members of the Employers' Association, which the elevator construction companies are not members of. A representative of the construction department of the Otis company said he did not see any way of stopping these strikes.

A representative of one of the unions which has signed the arbitration agreement said that the only way to end the difficulty was two permanent Boards of Building Trades, one whose unions were working for members of the Employers' Association, and a board with duplicate unions whose members worked for non-association employers.

MAY END MACHINISTS' STRIKE.

International Officers Here to Confer on Boston and Albany Trouble—Protest Against Discrimination.

James O'Connell, President of the International Association of Machinists, and the entire International Executive Committee arrived in this city yesterday to try to avert strikes. The principal business before them is the strike of the machinists in the repair shops of the Boston and Albany Division of the New York Central Railroad for 12½ per cent. increase in wages. A sympathetic strike of the machinists on all the other branches of the road is threatened.

While the committee is here it will notify the National Metal Trades Association that unless it stops alleged discrimination against union men in the smaller manufacturing cities throughout the country, such as Quincy, Ill., the union will take up the question and act in retaliation.

A conference will take place to-day between President O'Connell and his committee and representatives of the construction department of the New York Central Railroad over the strike on the Boston and Albany Division. If the action of the company is adverse to the strikers, the committee will meet in Washington and may consider the question of extending the strike.

The International Association of Machinists permits its members to work along with non-union men when union wages are paid and the union men not discriminated against, the union not to be debarred from organizing the non-union men. The shops are therefore what is known as open shops.

COLONIALS STILL RULE.

Old Stock Descendants Yet Outnumber Progeny of Immigrant Hordes, James A. Heckman Says.

President James A. Heckman's speech at the dinner given him Wednesday night by his fellow-members of the Associated Republicans of Kings County is expected to be followed by the appointment of a committee to urge legislation for an educational qualification for immigrants. The address, which pictured the National deterioration that is following the too free admission of foreigners through the ports here, led to the enthusiastic adoption of resolutions favoring that plan of restricting immigration.

Mr. Heckman called attention to the enormous influx of foreigners since 1840, that "during the short period covering less than two generations" had brought 20,000,000 souls here from other shores. It gratified him to say, however, that the "old stock" still predominated in the citizenship of the land.

"A fact which I think few realize," he continued, "is that a majority of our present white population is descended from the few immigrants who came during Colonial times, and that the immigrants since then, who were one hundred times as numerous, have not yet, with the help of their natural increase, been able to equal the old Colonial stock in numbers. Probably nearly 40,000,000 of our white population are descended from the 200,000 Colonials, while 80,000,000 is a fair number for the more recent immigrants and their progeny. The reason is, the Colonials came early and multiplied very fast, while the others came late and did not multiply fast. Nineteen twentieths of all the immigrants since the Revolution came after 1840, and more than half after 1880. How small has been the degree of fecundity of the foreigners is shown by the fact that their second generation born here, which was living in 1900, amounted to only about 13,000,000. This is practically the second generation of 20,000,000 who came after 1840. The survivors of these 20,000,000 numbered 10,000,000 in 1900.

"It seems to me," he said in conclusion, "that in the light of the exigencies of practical politics, to say nothing of higher motives, the Republican Party cannot be too quick in indorsing an educational qualification for immigrants. And it should indorse it sincerely, not as it has in the past, insincerely, as its treatment of the Lodge bill shows. It is not beyond the bounds of possibility that in the near future the Republican Party will need a good live principle to conduct their party fight on. And what better one could they have than this: Protection to American labor, protection to the American people, protection to American institutions, and protection to the American future?"

NEW JERSEY CITY HOSPITAL.

Board of Finance Appropriates $200,000 for Erection of Model Structure.

The Jersey City Board of Finance has appropriated $200,000 for the erection of a new city hospital, the money to be secured by an issue of bonds, to be taken by the Sinking Fund Commission, so that none of them will be put on the market.

The new hospital will be on the site of the present building at Baldwin Avenue and Montgomery Street, with an additional plot on the south side, an option on which was secured some time ago. The plans have already been prepared by C. P. Long, city architect.

The new building will be 40x121 feet, three stories high. There will also be additional buildings for insane and alcholic patients and consumptives. Besides these there will be a morgue, stable, and power house for electric lighting.

All the buildings will be erected under the supervision of Mayor Fagan and the Hospital Trustees, Dr. George W. Shera, Dr. F. E. Leinbert, E. M. Watson, Andrew Phelan, and Henry Vogel.

New York Hops Reach Market.

Phillip Bickler of 57 Broad Street yesterday received the first bale of New York State hops from this year's crop, and sold it to the Bernheimer & Schwartz Brewing Company. The bale was shipped from Sherburne, N. Y.

TELLS OF 39 BURGLARIES

Brooks Lived in Expensive Style and Robbed His Neighbors.

Patronized Fifth Avenue Tailors and Kept His Wife in Ignorance of His Crimes—Plunder Worth $20,000.

Harry W. Brooks, alias George Robinson, who was captured on the roof of 41 West Forty-seventh Street, after having been wounded in the leg by detectives from Headquarters, yesterday made a complete confession to Capt. Langan of the Detective Bureau. Brooks was carried into the Yorkville Police Court by Detectives Stransky, Finley, Flay, and Dun, who had assisted in his capture. Brooks was remanded to Police Headquarters, so that a specific complaint could be made against him, as Carl Fischer Hansen of 21 West Forty-seventh Street, who had been robbed, had telephoned that he would come to the city immediately and appear against the prisoner.

Brooks was questioned at great length yesterday morning, and gave in detail an account of the houses he had robbed, the amount of valuables taken, and what they brought. He made his confession in a calm and careless manner, and seemed to be narrating a series of pleasant incidents rather than telling of crimes which might bring sentences of eighty years or more imprisonment.

Of his personal history, he said that he had been a baker in New Haven, but had found that he could make much more money by burglary in the "swell residential districts" than by working at his trade. His manner of work was to first get board at one of the most expensive boarding houses in the district he wished to pillage, sometimes paying as high as $30 a week, and never questioning the amount asked. He worked between Forty-fifth and Fifty-ninth Streets on the west side, and would begin his operations usually at about 5 in the morning.

His plan was to gain access to the roof of his house, and then work with rope ladders to the second story of a near-by building, where the windows were generally open owing to it being Summer. If he heard any noise he would immediately give up the attempt and move to another block, and it was his custom to never enter more than three houses in the same block. He summarized his exploits by saying, "I fooled them nicely. They all thought I was a gentleman. I think that I stole, in all, about $20,000 worth of stuff, but I only realized about $5,000 on it, as I was in a hurry to get rid of it."

Brooks's clothing and manner of living bore out his statement. He was always seen correctly dressed, wearing a business suit in the morning, a frock coat in the afternoon, and the conventional dinner coat in the evening. His clothes were all made by a Fifth Avenue tailor, his hats, of which he had a collection, were all made by a fashionable hatter, and his boots were all hand made.

Brooks told of about thirteen instances of robbing the houses of wealthy residents, and also told of two more the details of of which were rather hazy. He spoke of the robbery of Carl Fischer Hansen's house, at 21 West Forty-seventh Street. The robbery was conducted successfully, but as he was leaving the house a caretaker saw him, and threw a bucket of water on him, causing him to drop the silver he had collected. In reply to a question of why he had left the silver, he said: "It was either myself or the silver, and I preferred that it be myself." Then he went on to say that he had not committed a single burglary east of Fifth Avenue, but had to the best of his recollection robbed thirty-nine houses on the west side, doing two or three to a block. He named six pawnshops on the west side where he had pledged various articles.

At the residence of William Nash, 27 West Fifty-third Street he obtained valuables worth $600, and at 41 West Fifty-third Street he got what he valued at $200 of spoil, but it brought him only $2. From the residence of Mrs. Reid at 48 West Fifty-first Street and the house of John Latham at 46 West Fifty-second Street he took jewelry and clothing. The residences of A. Ladenburg at 4 West Fifteenth Street and Dr. Robert Abbe at 17 West Fifteenth Street were pleasantly remembered by him. He called them "good meat," and had robbed both twice. He also went to 13 and 15 on the same street. At the residence of S. S. Stanton at 10 West Forty-ninth Street, Brooks says he was "treated well," getting on his trip there a diamond pin valued at $500, but upon which he only got $23, owing to being pressed for time.

After robbing the residence of Dr. Henry K. Norris, at 11 West Forty-ninth Street, of jewelry and other articles, he saw an advertisement in the papers of a reward of $100 and no questions asked for the return of the valuables, but he said the reward was too little. He was well pleased with that "haul," because it included a fourteen-piece silver tea set and some fine razors and surgical instruments. The razors and instruments he threw away, but the silver was treated as was all that he took, being melted in a crucible and sold to the Assay Office.

Brooks also confessed to robbing the house of Henry Seidenberg, at 14 West Fifty-first Street, on March 4, of two diamond rings, some watches, other jewelry, and $85. He threw the diamonds away, thinking they were paste. There were several other minor burglaries which he had committed in Eighty-sixth Street, but he said "those did not amount to much, as the swell district is the only place to operate in."

Brooks admitted to having served three years in the Wethersfield Penitentiary for housebreaking in New Haven, and two years for manslaughter when he accidentally shot a friend of his wife.

In speaking of Brooks's wife, Capt. Langan said she was a good woman, and did not know that her husband was a thief. While the Captain knew where she was living he would not tell. Brooks's last address in New York was 206 West Forty-third Street, which is a four-story brownstone house on the Sixth Avenue end of the block. He boarded there with his wife up to three weeks ago last Sunday, when he disappeared.

TO STOP DAILY NEWS SALE.

Edward M. Shepard Argues for Injunction Asked by Col. William Brown.

Edward M. Shepard, counsel for Col. William Brown, owner of 140 shares of the stock of The Daily News Corporation, asked Supreme Court Justice Davis yesterday to grant an injunction restraining the sale of The Daily News, which has been advertised to be sold at public auction to-day.

"For many years," Mr. Shepard told the court, "The Daily News was run with great success, until about three years ago the defendant, Frank A. Munsey, acquired a majority of the stock and proceeded to revolutionize the entire business and run the paper with disastrous results, excluding Col. Brown from any say in the management of the paper, and now, at the deadest time of the year, advertises the paper to be sold. Why this haste? Those who know say that the purpose of the sale at this time of the year is so that only one man can bid on it, and that man Mr. Munsey."

Mr. Shepard went on to say that for many years under Col. Brown's management The Daily News was run at a profit of $100,000 a year, and the year before Mr. Munsey acquired possession The News, he said, made a net profit of $72,000. "When Munsey got control," he said, "The News had in its treasury $90,000. Now that $90,000 has vanished and the paper owes $205,000 and has been ruined by the incompetency of Mr. Munsey."

Mr. Shepard added that Col. Brown was willing to be appointed a receiver and would run the paper at his own expense and place it in its old prosperous condition.

Mr. Rushmore, of Stern and Rushmore, counsel for Mr. Munsey, said that the sale should not be enjoined. He said that the paper was wrecked before Mr. Munsey acquired Mrs. Wood's stock.

"When Munsey took possession of the paper, the lawyer said, there was not one whole desk in the office, and that three of the four presses had been taken apart to supply parts for the only press that they were able to run. He said that the total pay roll of the editorial staff was just $114 a week and that the staff consisted of office boys.

Justice Davis took the papers and reserved his decision.

LICENSE BUREAU METHODS.

Magistrate Hogan Talks Freely About Mayor's Secretary's Conduct of It.

Magistrate Hogan of the Tombs Police Court was stirred yesterday afternoon into vehement denunciation of the methods of the License Bureau, under the rule of Mayor's Secretary James B. Reynolds, by Attorney Abram Greenberg's recital of a pushcart applicant's grievances.

Mr. Greenberg's tale was of a Greek, John Lajorcs, of 48 James Street, whose request for a license to operate a pushcart had been persistently refused. Lajorcs has been in this country for two and a half years, and has his first citizen's papers. He renewed his application from day to day till, hopeless of accomplishing anything himself, he employed Mr. Greenberg.

"It's useless for you to plead for the man," said Deputy Meerrieman when the lawyer called at the City Hall, "for I will not honor his application."

Then Mr. Greenberg made up his mind that it was about time to call the matter to the attention of the court, in which these peddlers are frequently arraigned.

"It is a crying shame," said Magistrate Hogan when he had began the story "that these poor peddlers should be buffeted about as they are. Sooner or later a lot of trouble will ensue. Everybody knows that these men carry knives. A year or so ago Secretary Reynolds seemed to be the champion of these poor people. It would appear that he is not trying to make capital out of the people by trying this tack. I say that when a man assumes the responsibilities of a public office he ought to leave politics out of it and do what is expected of him in the way of service.

"If the city has the power to say what streets shall be given to these men, they should grant the privilege alike to all. The Bureau of Licenses was formerly in charge of the City Marshal. There was never such confusion in the department before this present time. It cannot last long. These push-cart men are brought into court, and they invariably say that they cannot get licences and are fined for it."

Magistrate Hogan on "Graft."

Magistrate Hogan said yesterday that he had not yet read the batch of evidence sent him by Police Commissioner Greene on the question of police "graft" raised by the Magistrate, and could not, therefore, make any reply at the present time. "I shall make a reply," he said, "when I have read the testimony. I have been receiving letters from several sources."

ENGLISHMAN'S LEGAL ERROR.

Thought "No Seat No Fare" Was a Statute and Assaulted Conductor—Fined $10.

John King, who said he was a coachman and had recently came here from England, tried to carry out as far as possible the "no seat, no fare" principle on a Madison Avenue street car yesterday. He discovered in the Yorkville Police Court that the rule don't always work here.

King said he got on the car at Sixty-seventh Street. He could not find a seat, so refused to pay his fare when it was demanded by Conductor James McGregor.

"I'll pay my fare when I get a seat, but not a blooming cent do I pay until you find me a place to sit down," said King. Some of the passengers indorsed his attitude and when the conductor threatened to put him off the car King, it is charged, struck him on the jaw. Then he was arrested and taken to the East Fifty-first Street Police Station.

In court yesterday King showed marked indignation at the manner in which he had been treated and was impatient to tell his story to Magistrate Barlow. Then he was shocked to hear the Court ask: "What excuse have you got for this action?"

"Excuse?" echoed King. "All the excuses in the world are mine. This man wanted me to pay my five cents for the exclusive privilege of standing up in his blooming old car. And, by Jove, I wouldn't do it. He must have thought me a blooming idiot, don't you know."

"Where did you get any such idea as that?" asked the Magistrate.

"Idea," exclaimed King. "Why, isn't that right?"

"Not that I know of," was the reply, "and as you struck this conductor you'll have to pay that five cents fare and an extra $9.95 in addition."

"Blooming peculiar laws," muttered King as he paid his fine to the court clerk.

Emmet Centennial Celebrations.

The Clan na Gael is making preparations for observance of the centennial anniversary of the execution of Robert Emmet, which took place in Dublin Sept. 20, 1803. In New York the meeting will be largely of a military character. The commemoration exercises will be held in the Academy of Music on the evening of the anniversary day. Ex-Senator Charles A. Towns of Minnesota will speak.

LEGAL NOTES.

CONTRIBUTING FAULTS OF TWO COLLIDING VESSELS.—On the hearing before Judge Adams of the United States District Court of several libels filed against the steam propeller Newburgh, to recover for damages occasioned by a collision between it and the steam lighter Clifford, it appeared that at the time of the accident the latter, with the lighter Christine in tow, was bound from Hammond's Flats to One Hundred and Thirty-third Street, on the Hudson River. After rounding the Battery, a fog shut down. It became so dense that the Clifford, in the vicinity of Ninetieth Street, took the Christine on her port side and anchored. The tide was flood. The fog was so thick then that the master could not determine just where in the river the vessels were. They were, however, somewhat to the eastward of the anchorage grounds. The Clifford was struck soon after she came to anchor by the Newburgh, going at a speed of about eight miles an hour. Judge Adams finds, upon the facts of the collision, that both vessels were at fault; the Clifford for anchoring in the channel when the anchorage grounds were available, and the Newburgh for navigating at an immoderate speed in a fog. It was contended, however, on behalf of the Clifford that as the Newburgh was obviously in fault for excessive speed, the former vessel should be excused for not being on the anchorage grounds. In support of this contention a case was cited where the master of a vessel which had come to anchor outside the anchorage grounds was excused for doing so because it was shown that he had done everything he could do in the fog to find a proper place to anchor. "This case," said Judge Adams, "is quite different. The master here deliberately anchored his vessel in the channel, when in the vicinity of the anchorage grounds, which he could easily have reached, because, he said: 'I didn't think it safe to get on any anchorage ground there—it was a good place to get in collision.' In other words, the pilot substituted his judgment for the mandate of the law, with the result of contributing to a collision, and the vessel must be held."

FAILURE TO PAY PREMIUM NOTE.—In the case of Ressler vs. Fidelity Mutual Life Insurance Company it appeared that instead of cash a note had been given in payment of a premium on a life insurance policy. The note provided that if it was not paid at maturity the policy should be void. A receipt given for the note stated that it was agreed that a past-due note was not payment, and any obligation given in exchange for the receipt, when not paid at maturity, should render the receipt and policy void. It was held by the Supreme Court of Tennessee (75 Southwestern Reporter, 785) that the policy was rendered void by failure to pay the note at maturity, though the policy contained no stipulation to that effect. The court said in part: "It is difficult, if not impossible, to see why this clause providing for forfeiture, when found in a policy, should be enforced, and yet a similar provision in a note for the premium, which, waiving its strict right to demand payment in cash, for the accommodation of the policy holder, it receives and thus indulges him by an extension of time. For the extension of time, as well as the premium due, furnishes the consideration of the note. Such a transaction is as if the policy-holder should say to the company that he was unable to pay promptly, but desired indulgence in order to save his insurance, and the company replied that indulgence would be given and his note would be accepted, upon the condition, however, that a forfeiture would be declared if the note was not paid at maturity."

JUMP IN WATER RECEIPTS

Commissioner Reports to the Mayor on Measures Taken to Estimate Leakage—Extension of Meter System.

Commissioner Robert Grier Monroe, in the report of the business of his Department of Water Supply, Gas, and Electricity for 1902, made to the Mayor yesterday, lays especial stress on the water waste in this city and the steps that have been taken to check it. He also calls attention to the frauds that have been detected in the working out of the water meter system and the remedies that have been applied.

"The question of water waste has been taken up and given careful consideration," says Mr. Monroe in the report. "The problem was one of immediate public interest. Expert opinions were to be found as to the amount of waste as well as its possible location, but few local facts had been collated and little accurate data were available. The methods of investigation pursued in other cities were considered, particularly the work in Liverpool and Boston, where what is called the "Deacon method" had been adopted. After deliberation is was decided that satisfactory results could be obtained by means of pitometer measurements, and the services of Edward S. Cole, inventor and proprietor of the Cole-Flad pitometer and registering device, were secured and work was commenced in districting the city. The results of this investigation when further advanced will be laid before you in detail.

"As far as the conservation of the supply is concerned, the only step that the department can take for the present is to push forward the use of meters. The introduction of meters and their extension among private consumers will be continued as far as the provisions of the charter allow. Steps have also been taken for the metering of all the public buildings (an important item) and, as far as possible, of the entire consumption of water for public purposes. In addition, an appropriation will be asked for the installation of meters or measuring instruments upon the larger distributing mains. At present the nominal consumption is based upon the measurements made at the gatehouse at Croton Dam—figures that are hardly appreciated.

"By pursuing the investigations already commenced, keeping a careful account of meter readings, extending the meters for public supply, and measuring the flow in the mains, it may be hoped that the proportion of water used, the proportion wasted, how much waste is due to leaks in mains, how much to leaks in service pipes, how much to faulty plumbing and leaky fixtures, and how much to needless extravagance may be determined. When these facts are determined proper remedies can be intelligently applied.

"Careful and thorough work has been done in the collection of the water revenue. Over-due accounts have been taken up and payments secured. Meter readings have been taken more frequently and at shorter intervals, and inspections have been more systematic. Frauds have been detected through which the city was being deprived of substantial revenue. Good service has also been rendered to the many owners of small properties by establishing and maintaining the custom of sending bills promptly, thus giving full notice and opportunity to avoid the addition of penalties. The metering for large consumers has also been extended. There is, of course, much additional work to do, but the actual results so far are extremely satisfactory.

"In the two Boroughs of Manhattan and The Bronx the cash receipts show an increase of $882,240.63 over the year 1901. Owing to the thoroughness with which the collections were made the amount returned to the Bureau of Arrears was considerably less, but the total revenue for the Boroughs of Manhattan and The Bronx for the year 1902 was $6,041,277.10, which, when compared with the total revenue for 1901 of $5,304,984.19, shows an actual increase of 736,292.97.

"The tables covering the water revenue for the five boroughs show that the total water revenue for the whole city in the year 1902 reached the amount of $8,888,931.20, an increase over the total revenue of 1901 of $803,739.47, or nearly ten per cent.

"The report covers the general work of the Department, the progress on the Jerome Park reservoir and Croton watershed developments and advises the construction of two additional filtration plants to effect better sanitary protection to the city's water supply.

Death of Her Brother Unsettled Miss Bowne's Mind.

Grief over the death, a year ago, of her brother Herbert, moved Miss Mabel Bowne, a stenographer and typewriter, to kill herself with illuminating gas at the home of her parents, 67 East One Hundred and Twenty-first Street, yesterday morning.

Six months ago she had inhaled gas with suicidal purpose, but was discovered by her father in time to save her life. She has since been so hysterical that her father had arranged for her removal yesterday to a sanitarium. When they went to her room, on arising, they found her dead with a gas tube in her mouth.

RESCUE OF FATHER SWIFT.

John J. Cosgrove Says He Saved the Vicar General.

The circumstances surrounding the rescue from drowning of the Rev. Father Swift of Troy, Vicar General of the Albany Diocese, at Far Rockaway on Monday last were correctly told yesterday by John J. Cosgrove, manager of The New York Law Journal. Several papers in describing the incident gave Andrew Maloney, the night clerk of the Ocean House at Far Rockaway, the credit for saving Father Swift's life, which report was discovered not to be accurate, and Mr. Cosgrove was asked about it.

"I do not deny that Mr. Maloney was there," Mr. Cosgrove said, "but since you ask me, I am bound to say that it was I who first discovered his helplessness and carried him to the rope. Then his guards and several other men reached us. Maloney may have been one of them, but Father Swift was then out of danger."
